AFRICA KING SKIPS DEATH BY INCHES

ROME, April 11.—Emperor Haile Selassie, his famous beard cut off to prevent recognition, came close to death on the northern front, Italian dispatches said today, but escaped by hiding in an abandoned church while his bodyguard held a defence.

Advices from Asmara, Eritrea, said the emperor was cut off with slight possibilities of fleeing to Addis Ababa or French Somaliland, after his personal troops were defeated by the northern Italian army last week just south of Lake Ashangi.

Native tribesmen friendly to the Italian invaders said they encountered the emperor and a bodyguard of 100 men this week near Haraswa Pass, southwest of Quoram, occupied by the Fascists.

While the emperor took refuge in a church, the tribesmen said, his bodyguard fought off rebellious Galla natives.

Later dispatches quoted the tribesmen as saying the emperor escaped to a grotto called Ciabat, northwest of Marawa.

Spending a night in this cavern, the natives said, the King of Kings escaped the next day, his beardless features going unrecognized generally. His present whereabouts were described as "unknown."

Some vengeful Galla tribesmen, at the same time, said they had killed Ethiopia's new war minister, Ras Ghetaccio, a few days ago in an ambush.

400 Ethiopians Killed

ROME, April 11—Marshal Pietro Badoglio reported today 400 Ethiopian defenders were killed in a battle with rebellious Azebo and Galla native tribesmen on the northern front.

New Appeal Denied

LONDON, April 11.—Reports from Geneva the British government has received a new appeal for help from Emperor Haile Selassie of Ethiopia are without foundation, foreign office circles declared today.

Will Abolish Slavery

ROME, April 11.—A Stefani (Italian) News Agency dispatch from Asmara, Eritrea, reported today Marshal Pietro Badoglio would proclaim abolition of slavery tomorrow in all Ethiopian territories recently occupied.

RUBY KEELER

Canadian-born film actress and dancer supreme, who now is seriously taking up golf as a pastime. Ruby was born in Halifax.

Bare-Legged Ruby Shoots Initial Golf

LOS ANGELES, April 11.—A party of five or six young women and a couple of leg weary caddies drifted toward the club house at the Hillcrest Country Club.

One of the group—the girl with the bare legs, a salmon pink sports skirt and a brown bandana twisted around her hair—carried a golf club.

She paused every few steps to swing at a cow slip, and once followed up with what looked like the first step of a rhythm stomp.

It must have been just that, because the girl was Ruby Keeler, the Halifax girl who is famous as a dancer but hardly so well known as a golfer.

"I just—three and one."

"But I'll do better next time." Ruby assured blushing through her suntan and freckles.

TURKEY SEEKS TO RE-FORTIFY DARDANELLES

ANKARA, Turkey, April 11. —The Turkish government, taking a long expected step, asked signatories of the Lausanne treaty last night to amend clauses on the Straits Convention to allow her to refortify the Dardanelles. Foreign Minister Aras handed the note to diplomatic representatives of the signatory powers stating the Turkish government's decision.

PARIS, April 11.—Siret Halulu, Turkish minister to France, today presented a note at the foreign office asking revision of the clauses of the Treaty of Lausanne providing for the demilitarization of the Dardanelles and neighboring zones.

The request of the Turkish government is based on Article XVIII of the Dardanelles convention attached to the Lausanne treaty.

This article, guarding against possibility of a threat to Turkish security arising from the demilitarization of the Straits area, provides for combined action by Great Britain, France, Italy and Japan, according to measures suggested by the League council, in the event of the outbreak of war in the unfortified zone.

The Ankara government contends that recent events—notably German reoccupation of the Rhineland—indicate the Lausanne guarantees might be slow to function in case of a crisis.

In the face of these "inadequate" safeguards, the Turkish note demands suppression of the Strait's demilitarized status.

STANDARD OIL WILL BUILD 10 NEW STATIONS

To Release $400,000 Flood Here Within Next Few Weeks

A half-million dollar flood of money will be exchanged with Edmonton building trades and supply houses by the Standard Oil Company in the course of the next few weeks, it was learned by The Bulletin Saturday.

The oil company is pouring more than $400,000 into a string of 10 or 12 five-pump, complete-service filling stations, with construction to get under way almost immediately.

The Standard Oil put up its storage tank depot here last year; purchased a big oil tanker truck last November and is all set to go.

Each service station equipped to hang out the sign "one call fixes everything," will cost in the neighborhood of $40,000.

The work will be done on either the cost plus basis or the lump sum fee method.

BANK CHARTER TO BE ASKED NEXT SESSION

Plans for Provincial Bank Will Progress During Year

Application for the necessary charter to establish a provincial bank will be made at the next session of the Dominion parliament, Premier William Aberhart stated Saturday. A resolution advocating proceeding to investigate establishment of such a bank was unanimously passed in the legislature on Tuesday last.

In the meantime, before the next session, the government will continue to probe the whole question.

While no overtures have been made to British Columbia regarding operation of the bank and none would be needed to establish it, since a Dominion charter would cover operation in any and every province, it is believed such a bank would work to the mutual advantage specially of Alberta and British Columbia.

Premier Aberhart said on Saturday that no further action had been taken on the establishing of a $5,000,000 credit fund for the provincial bank.

Senior Motormen Plan Second Strike Vote on Day, Night Runs

Coincident with the announcement Saturday by federal authorities that the Dominion department of labor would not reach a decision on the street railway rhift dispute until the Supreme Court here had handed down a ruling on senior motormen's application for an injunction, came the news that senior operaters were planning to take another strike vote Tuesday.

The prospective strike action adds another angle to the already involved question as to whether junior motormen are going to continue to get a share of day runs in the face of a claim by senior men that their seniority gives them the right to all day runs.

City council, a short time ago, ordered a new distribution of shifts

Minister Gives Views Of Various Proposals For Regulation

Advantages of the government proposal for administration of retail trade regulations are threefold, leading to lower administration costs, elimination of jealousy between existing groups of merchants and leaving all matters affecting the merchants in the hands of a body of their own men, the government merely retaining power of enforcement, according to Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and commerce.

The minister's statement was made in the course of an interview in which the interviewer as well as the minister endeavored to clarify some phases of codes and surrounding regulations which appear to have been confused in at least a section of the public mind.

Discussing the whole situation, the Minister said that the proposal of the temporary advisory committee appointed under provisions of the Act some time ago and the Re-

EXILED CALLES VISIONS MEXICO FACING REVOLT

Disillusioned Ex-President Sees Threat of Communism

DALLAS, Texas, April 11.—Disillusioned and ill in political banishment, Plutarco Elias Calles predicted today a revolution is inevitible in the Mexico that knew his iron hand for 10 years.

"Revolution is already stirring in Mexico," said the former president and maker of presidents. "My exile will make matters worse."

He said he and three of his advisers were hustled out of the country yesterday because of his fight against Communism.

"If there is anything that can save Mexico, it is for labor and middle classes to organize and fight Communism," he said. "Communism," the exiled "strong man" added, "is creeping steadily over the country."

CITY MAY BUY NEW TURBINE

Commissioners will recommend to city council Monday night the purchase of a 15,000 kilowatt turbine for the power plant in order to put the plant in a position where it will be capable of handling the peak power load all the year round, it was learned from a reliable source Saturday.

In a report prepared for council early this year, J. M. Robertson, Montreal consulting engineer recommended the purchase of 20,000 kilowatt machine so that the city would be prepared for higher peak loads for many years to come. He admitted, however, that a 15,000 turbine would be able to provide for all exigencies for a considerable period in the future.

WENSTOB BOUT PLAN AT COAST

VANCOUVER, April 11.—A bout in Vancouver for the Canadian light heavyweight boxing title with Eddie Wenstob of Edmonton, one of the principals, is the object of Jack Allen, fight promoter here.

Allen today announced he would invite Wenstob to come to the coast for the bout for which official recognition would be sought from the Canadian Boxing Commission.

The Albertan's opposition would be the winner of the bout here next Tuesday which brings together Bob Frazier of Tacoma and Sonny Buxton of Victoria.

R. C. Marshall Will Not Seek Leadership Of Alberta Liberals

R. C. MARSHALL

Out of Politics for Years, Does Not Desire Leadership

R. C. Marshall, former alderman, mayor, and member of the legislature for Calgary, and well known in business circles throughout the province, whose name has been prominently mentioned as a possible successor to Hon. W. R. Howson as leader of the Alberta Liberal party, will not allow his name to go to the Liberal convention as an aspirant for that office or for the vacant Edmonton seat in the legislature.

"I have been out of active politics now for ten years, and while I appreciate to the full the requests which have been made for me to allow my name to go to the convention, I cannot see any reason at the present time why I should re-enter politics," he said on Saturday when asked regarding the matter. Edmonton friends of Mr. Marshall had been working on his nomination for the vacancy caused in Edmonton by the elevation of Judge Howson to the Supreme Court bench, but his announcement

DOMINION TO WATCH TRADE PACT NEGOTIATIONS

BRITISH TREATY WITH STATES IS NOW IN MAKING

By LLOYD A. LEHRBAS

Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The United States and Great Britain Friday were engaged in a survey of Anglo-American trade, which may result in negotiation of a reciprocal trade pact with this country's biggest customer.

This word was passed in a highly authoritative quarter, which disclosed also that preliminary discussions, designed to explore the feasibility and possibility of concluding an agreement, actually are under way both in Washington and London. Officials of both nations were reported hopeful.

OTTAWA, April 11.—Negotiations for a trade agreement between Great Britain and United States will be watched with keen interest in Canada. Such an agreement would be almost certain to have some advantages and possibly some disadvantages for this country, tariff experts here state.

The greatest advantage Great Britain obtained from the United States during trade agreement was the reduction of the U.S. tariff on whiskies from $5 a gallon to $2.50. As Great Britain already has a treaty with United States giving the U.K. most favored nation treatment, when the tariff against Canada was cut concurrently it was to the same extent against Britain.

U. S. GENERAL FINED $50

GEN. JOHN J. PERSHING

TURLOCK, Calif., April 11—General John J. Pershing was fined $50 here Friday for what City Judge H. O. Carlson said was "one of the most aggravated cases of speeding" ever brought into his court.

Pershing and his chauffeur, Shaffer, were accused of speeding 48 miles an hour through a 25-mile zone last Monday, finally being tagged several miles away, after allegedly failing to stop at the sound of a patrol siren.

ROYAL COURTS OFF THIS YEAR

LONDON, April 11.—No royal courts will be held this year but the King instead will hold two afternoon garden receptions at Buckingham Palace on July 21 and July 22.

At these receptions presentation will take place of ladies who ordinarily would have been presented to His Majesty at the courts.

Mourning will not be worn at these receptions. (Full court mourning ends on July 20, six months after the death of King George.) It is understood that the debutantes will pass before King Edward and make their bows just as they would at a royal court.

ULMANIS WILL BE DICTATOR

RIGA, Latvia, April 11.—Karlis Ulmanis today will join the list of dictators.

Since 1934, when he led a coup d'etat which put Latvia under martial law, the heavy-shouldered Ulmanis, son of a farmer, has been a virtual dictator of Latvia, with the official title of Prime Minister.

Today, with the expiration of the mandate of President Albert Kviesis, he will by law assume the functioning of president as well—a decisive step towards the concentration of state power in the hands of one leader.

Two Girls Short Wave Operators

VANCOUVER, April 11—Two girls are included in the 30 short-wave amateur operators licensed in British Columbia. Both are efficient "hams" as radio amateurs are known, and talk nightly with other fans all over the world.

Miss Ewen Manning of Vancouver is the most recent enthusiast. With a short-wave set built by herself she talks with operators thousands of miles distant.

Her call letters are VE3NG, the NG standing for "no good," she says. She commenced practicing last August, and received her license and call letters in December, 1935.

The only other girl operator in British Columbia is Miss Lois Dixon, of Victoria, whose call letters are VE3YL.

DYNAMITE, FIRE STRIKE TERROR IN COAL AREA

Six Bombs Sent Through Mails, Killing One, Injuring Five

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., April 11.—Dynamite and fire spread terror through the sanctity of Holy Week in this Wyoming Valley anthracite area Friday.

At least six bombs were sent through the mails as "Easter gifts," killing one man and injuring five others.

Flames, reported to have started from an incendiary bomb tossed through a window, swept the vestory of St. Mary's church, in the heart of the city, while Good Friday services were being held.

FRIEND TO WORKERS

Monsignor J. J. Curran, pastor of the church, has been known for 40 years as "friend to the mine workers."

Suspecting a renewal of mine labor dissension, state and local police and every available postal inspector in the east spread a dragnet over the area, for the fear other bombs may still be in the mails.

Six persons were rounded up and taken for questioning to Wilkes-Barre postoffice, where state police and inspectors had established headquarters.

tail Merchants Association, had been that all merchants "who forced to join a provincial merchants association and pay the required fees to such organization. Otherwise the government would cancel their licenses to do business. In addition the provincial executive of this organization would deal with all violations of the code and be responsible for its enforcement. Also the government would act only as a final court of appeal.

In commenting on these proposals, the Minister declared there were several disadvantages to them.

"Compulsory membership is regarded by many merchants as registentialism," he said. "There is a strong antagonism toward the Retail Merchants Association sponsoring this set-up. Under the present Trade and Industry Act, the government has no authority to delegate administrative powers to such an organization, nor to enforce the payment of fees to an outside organization, by threat or suspension of license to do business.

NOT REPRESENTATIVE

"No existing organization is representative of retail merchants of the province, there being three groups in existence, namely, the Retail Merchants' Association, Merchants belonging to Chambers of Commerce and Boards of Trade, and those belonging to no organization."

On the other side, declared the minister, there were the government proposals. He said that owing to the above circumstances, in the considered government opinion, it would have been unwise to have asked for statutory authority to carry out the advisory committee's proposal.

"The department will set up a permanent advisory committee of experienced merchants representing the general classification of retail trade," he said. "The merchants themselves will be asked to appoint directors in all leading points of the province. All questions arising out of the Code will be referred by these directors to the advisory committee, the department merely enforcing their recommendations.

"I claim that the advantages of the government plan are that it will lead to lower administrative costs, elimination of jealousy between existing groups of merchants and leaves all matters affecting the merchants in the hands of a body of their own men, the government merely retaining the power of enforcement."

Million Sought For Jack Miner Bird Sanctuary

KINGSVILLE, Ont., April 11—In explanation of the Jack Miner Migratory Bird Foundation Bill before the Ontario Legislature, it is pointed out the Foundation was first incorporated in the State of Michigan in 1931 by admirers of the Canadian naturalist and his work in bird preservation.

The Foundation is a non-profit organization to raise funds to perpetuate Miner's activities at the Kingsville sanctuary and to carry on school education in the value of bird life to humanity.

Provisions of the Bill make the Foundation a Canadian corporation to receive gifts and bequests to carry on the work. The objective for the Foundation Fund is $1,000,000.

HEAL BREACH MINE UNIONS

GLACE BAY, N.S., April 11—Plans for healing the five-year-old breach between United Mine Workers and Amalgamated Mine Workers of Nova Scotia have been approved by John L. Lewis, International U.M.W. president.

International board member Silby Barrett, who carried the plans to Minneapolis reported to the district headquarters here Friday and arrangements were made for a meeting of representatives of the rival unions Sunday night.

Members of the A. M. A. formed when they broke away from the U. M. W. have signified their willingness to return to the older organization under certain conditions which are expected to be adjusted soon.

Woodsworth Advocates Labor Colleges, Daily Papers In C.C.F. Ranks

TORONTO, April 11.—Establishment of labor colleges, C.C.F. daily newspapers and of Christian fellowship within the ranks of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation were advocated by J. S. Woodsworth, M.P. for Winnipeg North Centre and National chairman of the C.C.F., before a banquet of the provincial C.C.F. convention here last night.

"We should have labor colleges to teach people how to help others in their disputes, to teach them how to carry on campaigns, and to give them a thorough grounding in economics," he said.

"Why should we not have one in this great city? We have the facilities for one. Our present colleges are subsidized, one-sided, biased. And we should have our daily newspapers, not weeklies, struggling along, but big dailies."

BUILD REAL FELLOWSHIP

"And I might say something about the churches," Mr. Woodsworth continued. "In days the church was supposed to stand for these things along social lines. Fellowship, inspiration and education. If we are going to get the fellowship we want, if we are going to get the inspiration and the education that will fit us for the new social order, we must in the C.C.F. will have to build up some such institution as that right in our midst. We have to build this organization of ours into a real fellowship, a real brotherhood," he said.

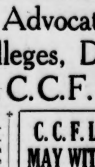
Angus MacInnis, M.P. for Vancouver South, said: "If this party is not going to go forward, it is time we quit."

He said, "and associate yourself with that you do want. Don't try to do two things at once. You can't be done." Mr. MacInnis said.

CEASE "ROAMING AROUND"

J. S. Taylor, M.P. for Nanaimo, also urged the movement to cease "roaming around." If sufficiently faithful to their ideal, the party could change the "whole course of this nation," he said. Mrs. Angus MacInnis, daughter of Mr. Woodsworth, said there was no uncertainty of the party object. "And that is the complete taking over of the ownership of the means of maintaining life in this country," she said.

C. C. F. LEADER MAY WITHDRAW



J. S. WOODWORTH, M.P.

TORONTO, April 11.—Hint of a desire to withdraw from the National leadership of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation was given by J. S. Woodsworth, National chairman, last night. Speaking before the Provincial convention, he reminded it he had been in office since the movement was first organized and said "it would be a very good thing to have a change in this office every few years as in the British Labor party." The delegates immediately thundered "No, No!"

SHIFT RULING GIVEN HOIST BY DOMINION

giving junior employees a share of day work. Local 569 of International Union representing the senior motormen, then applied to the federal department of labor for a board of arbitration to consider the justice of the new shift change.

As the dispute had been hanging fire for well over a year, however, council went ahead and adopted the new shift plan without waiting for a decision by the department of labor.

NEXT STEP

The next step was taken by Local 569, which submitted a statement of claim in Supreme court recently, asking for an injunction preventing the city giving junior employees a portion of day runs until federal officials had handed down a ruling on same. The court action was adjourned for two weeks by Judge Tweedie.

A wire received Saturday by Mayor Jos. A. Clarke, K.C., from W. M. Dickson, deputy minister of labor, read, in part: "Would assure you no decision will be reached regarding application for board pending receipt of additional information sought from applicants and outcome of present injunction."

PARADOX NOW

The paradoxical situation which now exists is that a decision by the federal department would make Local 569's injunction proceedings null and void, while on the other hand the department will not make a decision until a ruling is made on the application for an injunction.

And on top of all this some motormen plan to take another strike vote in protest against the new shift system.

Inter-Colonial Flying Company Plans Service

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana, April 11. — Preliminary arrangements for an air-line operating between the different colonies of the British West Indies have been begun here by a company known as the British Guiana Air Service.

The Service will operate four seven-passenger amphibian planes on a regular schedule from Georgetown as far north at least as Barbados. A special service will be operated to the picturesque Kaieteur Falls in the British Guiana hinterland.

Officials of the new company who have interviewed governments of most of the colonies in the interests of the air-line arrived here recently from Trinidad. They included R. Checker, of the Indo-Peruvian Fine Arts Association, president; Charles F. West, of Hasbrouch Heights, N.J., chief pilot; S. F. Golwali, Karachi, India, general manager; Noel L. F. Tringham, North Wales, chief radio expert.

The company also plans to form a flying school in Trinidad.

MARSHALL NOT ASPIRANT FOR HIGH GRIT POST

this morning put an end to their activities.

The idea behind his nomination for the Edmonton seat was to get him back into active politics with a view to his taking over the leadership of the party, as it was recognized that Mr. Marshall has experience as an alderman for several years and mayor for two terms of Alberta's largest city coupled with his legislative experience made him ideally qualified for that position. The fact that he would draw large support from the southern portion of the province as acceptable leadership material was also not overlooked.

Since his name was first mentioned in connection with re-entering politics, Mr. Marshall has been waited on by several delegations from various sections of the province asking him to consider the matter. While non-committal he gave no definite answer unfil this morning when in an interview with the Bulletin he stated that he was "definitely not interested and would not be a candidate."

With the decision not to re-enter politics definite, the name of Ex-Mayor Barrowman of Lethbridge is now being prominently mentioned as the successor to the leadership of Alberta Liberals.

SOVIET, JAPAN TROOPS CLASH ON FRONTIER

New Patrol Skirmish Reported Friday Night in Russian Dispatches

By JOHN LLOYD

Associated Press Foreign Staff

MOSCOW, April 11.—A new patrol clash on the Soviet-Manchukuo frontier was reported last night in Soviet dispatches after the government here charged its embassy in Tokyo was held in a "veritable blockade."

An undisclosed number of trespassers, the dispatches said, were discovered 1,000 yards inside Soviet territory by a frontier patrol of six Thursday.

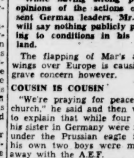
TRESPASSERS OPENED FIRE

When the Russians ordered the others to halt, the accounts continued, the trespassers opened fire and after 20 minutes of fighting retired to Manchukuo. The clash took place at a spot known as Sonovaya Plat.

The dispatches, from Kharbarovsk, did not state whether the trespassers wore uniforms, and did not mention casualties.

Japanese sources here confirmed Russian claims several Japanese employes of the Soviet embassy in Tokyo had been arrested but said they were merely being "detained" pending legal proceedings.

VISITOR PRAYS FOR WORLD TO ACCEPT PEACE



"We're praying for peace."

So said white-haired Henry W. Horst of Rock Island, Ill., member of a board of directors of the Evangelical Lutheran Synod of Missouri, Ohio and other states, when he arrived in the city Saturday to confer with the officials of Concordia College, Canada's only Lutheran college.

One of the highest potentiates of the Lutheran church, which extends its influence from Edmonton to the Argentinian pampas, and from Bronxville to Oakland, Mr. Horst first came here in 1911, and disregarding the attractive offers made by Winnipeg, Saskatoon and Calgary, Vancouver and the eastern Canadian metropolises, decided that the church would locate in Canada's premier college on Edmonton's Ada boulevard.

SHUNS POLITICS

"We may feel strongly on those subjects but we are not mixing matters of church and state," he said in answer to questions on the subjects of Aberhart and Hitler.

"You must remember," he said, "that the American section of the Lutheran church was founded in 1839 when five boat-loads of our people left Europe determined to seek freedom of worship in the new world."

While having strong personal opinions of the actions of present German leaders, Mr. Horst will say nothing publicly pertaining to conditions in his native land.

COUSIN IS COUSIN

"We're praying for peace in the church," he said and then went on to explain that while four sons of his sister in Germany were fighting under the Prussian regime in 1914, his own two boys were marching away with the A.E.F.

While in Edmonton, Mr. Horst will confer with the local executives of Lutheran administration; Rev. W. C. Eifert of Leduc, Rev. E. Eberhardt, of Stony Plain and the Messrs. J. Armbruster, H. Enders and E. Forster.

University to Receive Bequest

SASKATOON, April 11.—Second largest bequest to the University of Saskatchewan, totalling around $250,000, has been announced by Walter C. Murray, university president.

It is a gift to the college from the late Norman MacKenzie, K.C., of Regina, to be known as the Norman MacKenzie Bequest, and contains a valuable collection of old masters and rare antiques, estimated to be worth $500,000. The remainder of the estate, amounting to about $100 000 will be used for erection and maintenance of an art gallery.

Largest bequest was received several years ago from the late Burford Hooke, publisher of the Regina Leader-Post, and is now valued at more than $500,000. Wife, life interest is exhausted the income on this fund is to be devoted to agricultural education and research.

Victoria Jubilee Stamps On Letters

MOOSOMIN, Sask. April 10 — Stamps issued 39 years ago are being used daily here by A. Bell. They are the one-cent green three-cent Queen Victoria Diamond Jubilee issue, which bear two portraits, one as a young girl, the coronation robes in 1897, and the other a portrait of Her Majesty made in her latter years, 1897.

The stamps, eagerly sought by collectors, are turning up at several widely separated points.

W. J. Moffat, Moose Jaw's city assessor, received a letter from Mr. Bell bearing one of the stamps. The sender says he has a small supply of the stamps which have lain unused for many years.

Girl Cop, 24, Gives Smile To Car Spooners

CHARDON, O., April 11.—Ohio's only woman constable has little use for her "old meanie" fellow officers who prey on young couples taking advantage of secluded roads on moonlight nights.

"Most constables forget the mystic influence of the moon and balmy evenings," says Miss Pauline Hunt, aged 24.

"They seek to force their officiousness on couples who are efficient to parley sweethearts in the spell of love, on the secluded highways. But not me. Of course, if I thought their car was endangering traffic, I might pleasantly tell them to move the car to a less-dangerous spot, give them a smile and then depart," she said.

"Some of these old constables forget they were ever young."

Miss Hunt won her badge without campaigning. Her name was mentioned at a township caucus, she consented to act, and that was that.

Drumheller Line Repaired After Bridge Washout

DRUMHELLER, Alta., April 11.—Train service on the Canadian National Railways between Drumheller and Calgary was resumed last night after workmen had completed repairs to the bridge over the Rosebud Creek at Beynon, Alta. The line was closed Thursday while flood waters washed out the bridge piling, weakened by tons of ice piled against it. Beynon is about 60 miles north-west of Calgary.

Cats Menace Bird Life In Province

HALIFAX, April 11.—Domestic house cats that have taken to the woodlands of Nova Scotia constitute a most serious menace to feathered life in the province, R. W. Tufts, chief migratory bird officer for the Maritime province, told a Halifax service club.

"Thousands of birds and small animals are killed each year by these cats," the bird authority said, "and the time has come when we must face this problem and use some method of extermination."

own exile and that of three supporters, Luis Morones, former minister of labor; Luis Leon, former minister of agriculture, and Rafael Melchior Ortega, former governor of Guanajuato.

They were arrested in Mexico City Thursday night on orders of Cardenas and rushed under guard by air to Brownsville, Texas, where they took a Dallas plane.

Mexico Will Take Over Calles' Property

MEXICO CITY, April 11.—A movement of expropriation of the vast properties of the exiled former dictator of Mexico General Plutarco Elias Calles was started today by left wing members of the Chamber of Deputies.

Manlio Fabio Altamirano Radical deputy from Veracruz who predicted the exile of Calles and his followers three days ago, sent a telegram to General Lazaro Cardenas, in which he said:

"Well done Mr. President. Now it is necessary that the working masses be given back the evilly-gained property of those who betrayed the revolution."

Calles, together with Luis Leon, Rafael Melchior Ortega and Luis Morones, three "Callists" leaders also exiled, are considered among the most wealthy Mexicans.

CROP OUTLOOK LITTLE BETTER

WASHINGTON, April 11—The United States agricultural department Friday reported better crop prospects than last year, but found even these not "particularly bright" because of recent freezes and storms, weather too wet in the eastern states and too dry in the great plains.

April 1 conditions projected a winter wheat harvest of 500,166,000 bushels, the department said, compared with 433,447,000 bushels produced last year. The average production from 1928 to 1932 was 618,186,000 bushels.

The entire wheat crop to be harvested this year was planted by farmers in compliance with crop control contracts signed under the AAA was held invalid Jan. 6.

The Irish potato and the peanut crossed the Atlantic twice to reach the United States. They were introduced to this country from Europe, although they are both natives of South America.

Don't Stake Your Child's Life against a Few Pennies

Don't Try to "Save" by Not Calling a Doctor or Risk Giving Unknown Remedies Without First Getting his Opinion

NOT seeing your doctor, when illness threatens your child, is not economy — it's a mistake upon which life itself often has depended.

By the same token, giving your child unknown remedies—"bargain close-outs" and "just as good" as standard remedies is staking a child's health against a few pennies.

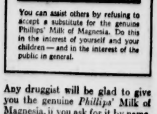
Mothers are becoming more and more conscious of this every day, and acting accordingly . . . accepting no remedy they don't know all about without asking the doctor first.

Do This If Your Child Takes "Milk of Magnesia"

If your child takes "milk of magnesia," ask your doctor, in your interest as well as ours, about Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

He will tell you, we are sure, that doctors, for over 60 years, have said "Phillips" for children. A remedy time has proved SAFE for your child . . . one of the finest products known to modern science; the kind you want your child to have.

Safety for You and Yours



You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children — and in the interest of the public in general.

Any druggist will be glad to give you the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, if you ask for it by name. It now comes in tablet form, as well as liquid. Little, peppermint-tasting tablets that contain the exact equivalent of a teaspoonful of the liquid — and that children like to take. A large box, only 35¢.

VOTE CLIMAXES HEATED DEBATE OVER PROPOSAL

TORONTO, April 11—Firm objection to a united front with Communists and other groups for political purposes was registered here last night by the Ontario section of the Co-Operative Commonwealth Federation when a proposal for this was defeated decisively.

The vote followed a heated debate, climaxed by a wild 15 minutes as Arthur Williams, C.C.F., reeve of East York township, staged a filibuster and was threatened by President John Mitchell with expulsion from the hall unless he took his seat.

RAILROADING CHARGED

"You just railroaded this thing in the convention," said Williams as he paced up and down the floor between tables. "I take the strongest exception to it," he shouted.

"How many privileges does Comrade Williams want on this?" asked E. B. Jolliffe, of Toronto. The East York reeve had been granted an extension of time for debate.

"As many as I can get," Williams returned.

SHOUTED FOR ORDER

The chairman vainly shouted for order as tables were pounded and delegates demanded Williams take his seat.

"I refuse that," said Williams when the chairman asked him to sit down.

"Then you will be ejected from the committee room," Mr. Mitchell replied.

Two delegates attempted to pacify the reeve, who heads the workers' organization in East York and recently won an acclamation to the reeveship after being unseated by a technicality owing to unpaid taxes. Williams apologized to the chairman, but reiterated his charge of "railroading." It seemed the trouble was over.

TIRED OF LISTENING

When he started to speak again, J. V. McGuigan of Toronto arose at the back of the hall and declared: "I can shout louder than Arthur Williams can." He added he was "sick and tired of listening to him," and would remain standing until Williams sat down.

Eventually the meeting came to order and cheering broke out when the vote on the proposal was taken.

"We are engaged in East York—we are engaged in Toronto—in the class trouble," said Williams at the start of the discussion of the proposal. "When you know there are people being turned out on the street, then you come face to face with the class struggle." The C.C.F. constitution had to be revised sooner or later, he said.

"The Communist party all over the world today is on the way out," said Professor E. A. Havelock of Victoria college, Toronto. Its heroism and willingness to go to prison had given the party a place in the Socialist movement.

The convention concludes today.

CROWD DELAYS DOG'S SEARCH FOR LOST TOT

TRAIL, B.C., April 11.—Curious onlookers who surrounded the dog, "Tuffy," brought here from Vancouver in a final effort to find four-year-old Julian Burtnick, lost since last Saturday, Friday caused postponement of the search until today.

E. H. Cour Barron, owner of the dog, decided to abandon the search after persons had closed in on the dog and distracted Tuffy's attention. He said he would gladly give a demonstration of the Doberman-Pinscher's prowess after completion of the search but requested they be allowed to work unmolested Saturday.

The Vancouver man took his dog to a point where the boy was seen last but onlookers attracted to see the dog work prevented trailing. "Tuffy" succeeded in tracing several children placed in various hiding places.

Mr. Cour Barron reported the dog slept during most of the air trip to Trail from Penticton.

B.C. INDIANS MOURN DEATH OF CHIEFTAIN

ASHCROFT, B.C., April 11.—Indians of the Bonaparte reserve last night mourned the death of their centenarian chief and one of the most colorful figures of early British Columbia history, Chief David Basel.

The aged chief, 102 years old and one of the last survivors of the tribe that inhabited the Bonaparte district before the white men came, died at his rancherie eight miles north of here last night after a short illness.

Chief Basel led a party of British Columbia chiefs to London for a conference with King George in 1925 when Indians of the district became perturbed regarding the titles under which Indian lands of the province were held. They were unable to procure admission to the Sovereign and returned to Canada.

The chief drove a bull team over the Cariboo roads in the early 80's, but gave it up in 1886 when he wished to enjoy a long life and the work was too hard for an old man.

NATURAL GAS AS SUBSTITUTE FOR AUTO FUEL

MINNEAPOLIS, April 11.—A successful demonstration of natural gas as a substitute automobile fuel was reported Friday by the Minneapolis Gas and Light Company. The company announced an automobile had been propelled over short distances at an average fuel cost of half a cent a mile by natural gas.

John Swanson, vice-president of the company, has been directing tests of gas for automobile use for several months. He said the principal problem was compressing the gas to a pressure greater than the 125 pounds used.

VESSELS SEEK LOST SEAMEN

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld., April 11.—Government vessels were ordered Friday to join search for eight south coast fishermen driven out to sea Wednesday by a sudden northeast gale.

Fears for the safety of the missing men mounted last night as no reports of them came to land. If the two open boats they were in had not been capsized by the gale, the men would be suffering from exposure, lack of food and water, it was believed here.

THE SHADOW LINE

Touching on post-war history of taxation, an English writer says: "Actually the English scheme for luxury taxation was never put into force, and the French scheme, after a very short trial, was changed into a general tax on the turnover of all business . . . This really amounts to a tax on all expenditure, necessary and unnecessary, and as such must tend to raise the cost of living and to hit the poor (who have a smaller margin beyond necessary expenditures) much more heavily than the rich."

Alberta's new 2 per cent sales tax is intended to be essentially a luxury tax. Promise is given that it will be so applied as to exempt the purchases of those who are on relief and of prime necessaries generally. Otherwise the poor will be hit "much more heavily than the rich."

The legislators, out of consideration for their own peace of mind and the desirability of ending the session, have left to the Ministers to draw the line between necessaries and luxuries. Perhaps they can succeed where the Government of Great Britain gave up in despair and refused to try, and the French Government tried and failed.

If they do not succeed, and to the degree to which they do not succeed, the sales tax will turn out to be simply a turnover tax, with the injustice and hardship incidental thereto.

NEW HIGH LEVELS NEEDED

President Roosevelt has to be counted among those complacent people who think and say the depression is not yet over or just about over.

He said the other day that if industry in the United States returned to the 1929 prosperity level there would still remain five millions of the present eleven millions unemployed, without jobs.

With an election in sight this cannot be discounted as political propaganda. A government leader never stakes his hope of getting re-elected on representations that conditions are worse than they really are. Telling people they are in for continued trouble is not good platform talk. Mr. Roosevelt only does it because he is an honest man and the facts are convincive.

Applied to Canada, where conditions and outlook are comparable, this means that a half million Canadians would still be on relief if production and trade rose to the level of 1929. They will have to rise higher than that to open up jobs for everybody.

For two reasons at least. People who could live without jobs in 1929 have lost their wealth and now need wages. And in each of the intervening years scores of thousands of young Canadians have come of age and started looking for employment.

Recovery does not mean merely restoring the production and trade volume of seven years ago. It involves catering to thousands of young larger army of wage-earners and salary-earners than the country ever had before. And we are a long way from the 1929 volume yet.

THE EASTER TIME

The name of Easter comes down from Teutonic mythology. It is supposed to have been derived from Eostre, the Anglo Saxon goddess of spring. Thus while to the Christian the day commemorates the resurrection of Jesus Christ, and the holders of an older faith at this season celebrate the feast of the Passover, the Easter-time is also associated with the awakening of the reproductive forces of nature from the sleep of winter.

Underlying these varied conceptions there is a unity of significance. To all it is a time of promise and of hope. It marks the escape from quiescence into life. It invites a looking forward to the glories of summer and the gifts of the harvest time—emblems and evidences of God's care for his children—and to the coming of the eternal summer after the sleep of death.

To those who live in these northern latitudes, where the seasons are sharply demarked, the coming of spring is an event of particular importance and its arrival is peculiarly welcome. It means release from in-door life to the delights of the great out-of-doors. Dwellers in tropic lands can know little of the joys of anticipation that come with April in the north.

And little also of what is involved in the resumption of "seasonal occupations," the undertaking of all sorts of out-door work, work which cannot be carried on when the ground is frozen and buried deep in snow.

Nowhere in the populated world are these changes more marked than in western Canada, and here the coming of spring carries a material meaning strongly mindful of the spiritual significance of the Passover and the Resurrection.

WHY NOT HONEST RATES?

The rental value of money in the open market moves up or down with the cost of living. When the price level is high, interest rates move downward.

But this natural law is suspended when money is borrowed over a long term of years at a fixed rate of interest. The fixed interest rate operates like a fixed rate of wages over the same period; it is usually "robbing" one party or the other. For the reason that a fixed rate stipulates only that a certain quantity of money shall be paid as interest. It takes no account of the varying value of money.

Thus during the last five or six years taxpayers have been sacrificing twice the amount of income it was intended they should hand over to the bond-holders. Had the price level gone up, instead of down, the bond-holders would have got only half the income they were intended to get.

When a bond-issue is sold at a fixed rate of interest, nobody knows what the lender is going to get for the use of his money or what the taxpayers are going to have to pay. The number of dollars to be paid and received is known to a decimal place, but what the dollars will be worth to either party neither of them knows.

Now that the province of Alberta has launched a general refunding scheme, and the Ministers are left free to refund at whatever rates they can get the money for, there is an opportunity to introduce into our financial dealings the altogether novel feature of an honest interest rate—one that would move up or down with the movement of prices.

If that is done, the man who accepts or buys the new bonds will know beyond any doubt or guesswork what return value he is going to get, and the taxpayer will know to a certainty what the loan is going to cost him. Unless that is done, the bond-holder may find that over the next five years he is being given a smaller return than he should get, just as the taxpayer over the last five years has been paying more than he should have been required to pay.

If the Indians of the northwest were never before properly supplied with material with which to make a living and carry on their farming operations, some of them at least will have no cause for complaint this year. An advertisement of the department which appears in this issue calls for the supply of almost every conceivable article that a white man could put to use in or around or in connection with farming in this country.

Amongst the governn.ent paper relating to the rebellion trials last summer, lately laid before parliament, are the following from the minister of justice to the Crown council at Regina. It is apparent from these instructions: One. That a fair trial of the prisoners present or prospective, was not what was desired by the ministers of justice (?) but a certain number of convictions, some 30 or 40, which he instructed his council to procure.

Two. That by these wholesale convictions to induce the remainder of the prisoners to plead guilty, whether they were or not, in order, on their part to save themselves from the extreme penalty, and on his, to exhort from them such acknowledgements as would justify the government in its course towards the northwest before the rebellion. As witness the extensive use of the alleged expression of the Indian prisoners—that they had no cause of complaint.

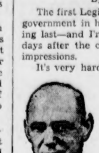
The Passing Show

By J. S. COWPER

The first Legislature of the first Social Credit government in history ended on Monday morning last—and I'm only recovering enough now, days after the closing, to be able to write my impressions.



J. S. Cowper

It's very hard work—much harder than being on the floor mingling in the debates—to sit up in the Press Gallery day after day, straining your ears to listen to debates in the Alberta chamber. The acoustics are very poor.

While the session lasted, it seemed like a dream, or like something out of Alice in Wonderland — members acclaiming the Premier as "the greatest leader in history"—the "greatest leader in history" sitting there day after day, like a bump on a log, as if he didn't know what it was all about—the government which had gone into office on a pledge to make food, clothing and shelter free to all, placing taxes on food, clothing and sheiter as well as on the earnings with which we must continue to buy our food, clothing and shelter—Social Credit members pounding their desks as they gleefully voted down opposition legislation requiring them to bring in a Social Credit plan a year hence and to exempt food, clothing and shelter from the new sur-taxes.

I pinch myself—or think I do—to test if it is real. Unless I'm dreaming a dream, I'm sitting at a typewriter, writing about the most dismal collapse of government in history—a bond-holders government, sweating the last drop of blood out of people who put there here thinking they were putting a Social Credit government into power.

Am I dreaming or not? Did a sport fan put in my hand the following Turf Notes?

"News from the Aberhart stables is that Social Credit, the dark horse by Microphone out of Alberta, will not run in the 1937 Dividends Futurity Stakes. Trainer Aberhart, says my informant, will rely on his recent importation, the Magor-bred colt Balanced Budget. The latter is said to be going strong just now, backed by the blood of those two grand horses, Income Tax and Sales Tax. The wise ones point out, however, that he also carries the blood of Compulsory Refund, ex Bondholder, on his dam's side. Horses with the blood of Bondholder in them are notoriously nervous and uncertain. The boys in the Social Credit stable who bet heavily at the start are now trying to hedge their bets, as their promising (too promising) colt pulled a ligament trying to emulate the tricky Douglas mile at Parliament Hill."

Now the dream changes. The race track vanishes. In its place is a three-ringed circus beneath the flood-lit dome of Alberta's four million dollar brain incubator. Blaring blasts of wind instruments introduce the jugglers who pull $25 bills out of the air, as the Minister of Ceremonies, proud of his supper - charged physique, gazes benignly towards the Opposition with a satisfied "Full House" look on his face—the full house consisting of three grits and a pair of tories.

At a nod from the ring-master the chorus sings a requiem for Major Douglas, "My Bonnie lies over the ocean," followed by, "Won't you come back to me" and "Brother, can you spare a dime." The opposition under the baton of Jim Bowlen answers back with the chorus of "I've got a lovely feelin' inside."

This most marvellous, spectacular, splendiferous pageant ever to be displayed beneath the big flop, put on at a cost of $21,000,000, finishes up with a sketch entitled "Whipped Screwy," in which the member for a certain railroad and mining constituency displayed his gifts as a clown. As the audience disperses the band plays, "Out in the cold again."

The thing that broke the dream and brought me back to the stern realities of life was receipt of a proposed new cost-of-arms for the Social Credit Party sent in from Red Deer—one of the hotbeds of Social Credit in the last election.

The coat of arms is in the shape of a shield, quartered. It has evidently not passed the College of Heralds for it lacks the customary jargon of "passant gardant in pali or" and such like gibberish that wealthy American pork packers and chewing gum kings pay good money for when they wish to discover and honor their ancestors.

I'm not skilled in the correct language of heraldry, but the shield which bears no scutcheon might be described as follows:

On the upper dexter quarter in sable a device showing three balls, two being in row above the third bal—such as the Medicis showed and that "uncle" symbol when he went into the pawn-broking business.

On the lower dexter quarter in vert a device showing a relief camp.

On the lower sinister quarter in gules a device showing a devil rampant, pointing the way towards a place known in the polite language of the Bible as Gehenna.

It might be easier merely to refer to them in the terse terms of today as first, second, third and fourth quarters.

With the same impulse that has impelled other Social Credit governments to adopt symbology, the Red Deer originators of the new Social Credit coat of arms have taken as their motto, the opening stanza of the lyrical version of the famous "Old Hundredth." To each quarter a line of the verse is applied. It works out like this:

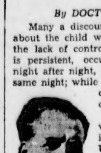
To the first quarter:
"O, God! Our help in ages past,"
To the second quarter:
"Our hope for years to come,"
To the third quarter:
"Our shelter from the stormy blast,"
To the fourth quarter:
"And our eternal home."

Last any should accuse the Red Deer people of impropriety in using the verse of the grand old hymn for this purpose, it should be pointed out that the same verse was used without protest as the campaign song of the Social Credit party when soliciting votes.

Bed-Wetting Largely Due To Habit

By DOCTOR FRANK McCOY

Many a discouraged mother writes to me about the child who wets the bed. Sometimes the lack of control of the bladder evacuation is persistent, occuring with great regularity night after night, or even several times in the same night; while sometimes it occurs only occasionally when the child is over-excited.



Dr. F. McCoy

In the majority of cases, wetting the bed or enuresis, is largely the result of habit. Usually the child is a heavy sleeper and is not awakened by the accident. Of course, there are other causes but it must be admitted that the most common cause is faulty training which allows the habit to start.

Enuresis is said to exist in the child of three who manifests improper bladder control. It must be remembered that normal healthy children may fail to acquire control by emptying the bladder until the age of two or even a little later. Therefore, it is not until the child reaches the third year and then demonstrates incontinence of the bladder, that enuresis may be said to have developed.

When enuresis occurs, it is a good plan to have a test made of the liquid elimination from the kidneys. If the test shows the presence of white cells, then cystitis or bladder irritation should be suspected. Cystitis is one of the possible causes of enuresis. Enuresis due to this cause is often accompanied by frequency and urgency, that is the child empties the bladder frequently and the desire is urgent. The urinalysis will also show whether the liquid is concentrated and acid, in which case the child should be given more water to drink, or whether it is of low specific gravity. When the specific gravity is low and the child voids a large quantity of fluid, it is likely that he is being given too much water to drink. In such cases, the youngster should be allowed no water drinking after four in the afternoon.

Each case of enuresis should be carefully considered on its own merits; for example, in some children, bed-wetting is mainly a behavior problem, arising from an unconscious desire on the part of the child to attract the attention of the parents. The child generally feels neglected and takes this way of getting revenge. Understanding and removal of the psychic cause is all that is needed to cause the complete disappearance of the bed-wetting, in such a case.

In the majority of cases, where faulty training has led to the establishment of this habit of wetting the bed, excellent results are secured by very simple means. The first thing to do is to restrict the water drinking after 4 in the afternoon. The second thing to do is to decide not to punish the child. Scolding him or nagging at him will do little good and will serve to make matters worse. Instead of scolding him for his failures, praise him for his successes. When he keeps the bed dry during the night, call this to his attention in a reassuring way so that he will look for further improvement. The use of suggestion will very often work wonders. The suggestions to use are given in my article on ENURESIS which will be sent free to any mother who desires it. To secure the article, write to me and enclose ten cents and one large, self-addressed envelope.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

QUESTION: Mrs. Ada W. inquires: "I have been told I have an extrasystole. My doctor says not to worry about it. Do you think it is serious?"

ANSWER: The word extrasystole means the period during which the heart contracts. By extrasystole is meant a premature contraction of an auricle or ventricle, or both, while the fundamental rhythm of the heart beat is maintained. At the present time it has not been determined what causes these premature beats. Often the patient is entirely unaware of the extrasystole. However, when the extra beat occurs, it may be found that it is more likely to develop when the nervous system is emotionally upset. Occasionally the extra beats accompany paroxyzmal tachycardia or rapid beating of the heart. Sometimes the extrasystole is associated with a heart disorder such as mitral stenosis. As a general rule, the extrasystole of the heart causes no treatment unless it proves particularly troublesome to the patient. As long as the heart is otherwise normal, the extrasystole does not require attention. However, it is generally true that there is definite relief in this area from which toxins are being discharged, which prove irritating to the heart. For example, the patient may have trouble with the teeth, sinus cavities, gall bladder, or in the intestinal tract. In fact, I consider that the absorption of poisons from the intestines is the main toxic cause inducing extrasystole. In such cases, when the intestine is returned to a normal functioning power, the disturbance in the heart beat disappears. It is also advisable for the patient to avoid stimulating beverages as coffee or tea. I find that indigestion may affect the heart by reflex action and overcoming the digestive distress will banish the extra heart beat. You have done the right thing in consulting your doctor and if he tells you not to worry you may rely upon his judgment.

Poems That Live

VENICE

How light we go, how soft we skim!
And all in moonlight seem to swim.
In moonlight is it noon, or shade?
In planes of sure division made,
By angles sharp of palace walls
The clear light and the shadow falls;
O sight of glory, sight of wonder!
Seen, a pictorial portent, under,
O great Rialto, the vast round
Of thy thrice-solid arch profound!
How light we go, how softly! Ah,
Life should be as the gondola!

SIDE GLANCES — By George Clark

On This Date

A Day in Canadian History —o— By FRED WILLIAMS

On this date in 1878 John Young died at Montreal. Another of the many Scots who are among the true makers of Canada, he is chiefly remembered as the man who did most to make the St. Lawrence route safe for shipping and a great trade route into the heart of a continent. He came to Canada when only 15 and made such progress that 11 years later he was able to raise a regiment of mounted volunteers to aid in suppressing the political troubles. By 1861 he had begun to agitate for a deeper St. Lawrence and for the building of a railway which would connect Montreal a winter port, this resulted in the Grand Trunk line to Portland. He was one of the promoters of the Grand Trunk, pressed for its speedy construction to Toronto and is development to the Detroit river, which came about after his death by the amalgamation of the Grand Trunk and the Great Western in 1882. One of the representatives of Montreal in the Legislative Council he was in 1851 commissioner of public works in the Hincks-Morin ministry and as such inaugurated a policy of deepening not only the St. Lawrence canals but also the Welland, foreseeing a day when our great system of water communication would be the traffic highway of the American continent, foretelling the day when vessels would load at Montreal and carry freight right through to the head of the lakes and vice versa. He was the father of the Canadian mail service across the Atlantic, asking the parliament to vote the first subsidy to the Allan line. John Young was also one of Canada's first publicity agents, for he organized the exhibit which the Canadian provinces sent to the great international exhibition in London in 1851 and which won 25 medals and 145 honorable mentions. He was, indeed, a great Canadian, another of that galaxy of Scots who have done so much to create the Dominion of today.

DOUGLAS VS. ABERHART

Editor, Bulletin: Apropos the Douglas-Aberhart deadlock and its attendent political propaganda, misinformation, and interminable confusion of ideas, I trust that this contribution will not be unkindly received, more especially by those readers of the Social Credit persuasion.

Unfortunately there exists in our modern society a growing tendency to treat honest criticism as from disgruntled and pestiferous individuals, heresy-hunters, actuated by a desire to destroy all the works. Generally speaking, our powers of analysis are being drugged with a mixture of partizanship and blind prejudice; wherefore to blame Major Douglas for events presently transpiring in Alberta politics is to recall the old lady who, after sitting down on her hat, had all the other members of the family running around looking for it.

Briefly, the facts concerning this controversy, some of which are well established and others coming to light daily, are that Aberhart rode into power on his oft-repeated statement that he had no plan but would, if and when elected, have Major Douglas advise and assist in the inauguration of social credit in Alberta to whatever extent it was then found possible so to do. Furthermore, while, immediately after the election it was made to appear that the promise would be honored, as witness a cablegram to Major Douglas: "How soon can you come?" subsequent events and communications indicate clearly and must, when fully revealed, prove conclusively a keen desire on the part of the Premier to have Major Douglas elsewhere than in Alberta. This is the point of the "wedge", to which reference has been made, together with much of the force used to drive it home.

To state that, in order to open the way to Social Credit, we must first be placed on a sound fiscal financial footing, is akin to saying that a drunkard must drink stronger whiskey in order that he may sober up, or that before taking the Dr. Douglas prescription the province of Alberta must, on advice from the darling doctor of St. James street, pull in her belt and proclaim a fast.

Social Credit is, of course, an economic theory of wealth monetization and not, as some would have us believe, merely the name of a political party.

In order clearly to view the background of the Alberta movement one should bear in mind the well-known fact that William Aberhart has persistently vulgarized the Social Credit theory of Major Douglas, stubbornly refusing to be corrected either by Douglas himself or by his executive council in London. To those of us who have followed closely the progress of the movement from its inception three and a half years ago, it is abundantly clear that Aberhart has uncharted course at any time and, while bringing him warmest praise from the plain people, the masses to "money consciousness," it becomes our duty to most solemnly remind him that he with his government were elected for the purpose of making certain adjustments in Alberta's credit structure and, whatever the outcome the tempes of those electors will permit no compromise on this undertaking.

TWO CANADIAN FLIERS

The opportunity Canadians have to do honor to two of their citizens who have brought honor to Canada, and especially to Canadian aviation is a rare occasion it would be a pity to miss.

Mr. Herbert Hollick-Kenyon has nearly reached this country on his home-from-us flight across the Antarctic the Ellsworth flight which now forever remains one of the world's historic flights.

Other nations have already honored their participants in this exploratory flight.

The rest of the world cannot be blamed for not being aware of what Canadians themselves appear as little to realize. The Canadian nationality of Messrs. Hollick-Kenyon and his co-pilot and engineer, Mr. J. H. Lymburner, can best be demonstrated by its jealous appropriation by Canadians that Messrs. Hollick-Kenyon enjoys the privilege of having actually flown the flight, but upon which Lymburner's ability, amounting to genius, depended the airworthiness of the plane in which the flight became possible.—Winnipeg Free Press.

Bricks Without Straw

By R. T. ELLIOTT, K.C.

From 1930 to 1935 the Province of Alberta bought its merchandise requirements in the most highly tariff protected and restricted market in the world; and was forced to sell its products in a hostile and irritated world market with resultant sub-celar auction prices and a minimum volume of commerce. As a supervening calamity was added the tightest of tight money; and the removal of fixed assets as a security for loans.

The general election placed the Liberal party in power with a restoration mandate and with an overwhelming majority in Parliament.

The leaders of the Liberal party have sidetracked the policy of restoration—leaving the public to dig themselves out—and stubbornly refuse to take efficient steps to provide an adequate supply of managed currency, for the purposes of commerce and development of the nation.

At a time when the members of the public have nothing that can be used for money with which to meet existing tax loads, the Ottawa government is pressing forward apace with the British North America Act which will permit substantial additions to the tax load, without any provisions guaranteeing an adequate supply or any supply of currency to carry on the commerce and development of the nation.

Just why the leaders of the Liberal party should convert an overwhelming mandate for restoration into a policy of political suicide is not apparent at this distance; but it is certainly as night follows day the Liberal party without an efficient restoration policy and an efficient currency policy is headed for the political ditch and travelling with the speed of light.

Should war break out, there would be no hesitation in providing, by managed currency, billions of dollars to destroy life; but with upwards of one million people on direct relief and three million people on reduced earnings, the situation has swept over the Liberal leaders will do nothing but hold enquiries and discourse in general terms on ethics and public welfare.

Efficient leadership, having a definite realization that in Canada there must be restoration now or chaos soon, is the missing factor in the public life of Canada.

MASTERING BRIDGE (37)

A large proportion of even good players have hazy ideas of when to prefer an opening call of a 4-card major suit, also when to rebid a 4-card major suit after partner has assisted. Recently I have had partners ask if the "Four Aces" and Sims had not abandoned opening bids of 4-card major suits, in favor of an opening minor suit call, regardless of whether strength worth an opening bid was held in the minor suit. Recently that question was asked of me when we happened to be opposed in a trophy match by Oswald Jacoby and Sir Derrick Wernher, the former one of the "Four Aces," the latter one of Sims' strongest followers. Both of these players promptly informed me (inquirer that they always made opening bids of biddable 4-card major suits, unless a longer biddable minor suit was also held, or unless the hand called for an opening bid of no trump on evenly divided suits and distributed strength. I hope the same cured my partner of that evening of his annoying habit of preferring opening minor suit bids, regardless of whether the minor suit was properly biddable, or preferable to the 4-card major suit.

Six tricks average to be won by trumps, of course. Including ruffing Declarer should be able to win at least half of those 6 tricks in his own hand to do well. A sound opening bid, major or minor, should at least possibility of winning 3 trump tricks in declarer's hand, provided dummy holds not fewer than 3 small trumps, and provided opening hands lie favorably in defender's hands. Such weak opening bids have no rebid, unless partner jumps his assist.

To a great extent procedure depends upon your partner and your opponents bidding. I would bid the hands shown below as indicated:

♠A 10 6 4	♦K J 10 8
♥K Q 7	♣7 3
2—1-Spade:
♠A 10 6 4	♦K Q J 6
♥K Q 10 7	♣7

3—1-Spade:	♦A J 9 7
	♥K 8 4 2
4—1-Spade:	♦A J 9 7
	♥A K Q J

Hand 1 may support partner's shift to either major suit, or bid 2-No Trumps in lieu of raising minor suit. Most partners I would let alone if they bid 1-No Trump. Hand 2 may bid 3-Hearts if partner bids 2-Spades. In some partner then bids 3-No Trumps. A shift to 3-Diamonds, to complete the picture. Bid 3-No Trumps with Hand 3. If partner bids 3-Spades. Hand 4 bid 3-Hearts if partner gives minimum support for 1-Spade bid.

5—1-Spade:	♦K 9 5
♠A K 9 7	♣7 3
♥K J 4 2
6—1-Spade:	♦A 9 5
♠A 4 2	♣K 3
♥10 8 4 2
7—1-Spade:	♦K J 5
♠K Q J 7	♣7 3
♥A 8 4 2

Hands 5, 6 and 7 bid 3-Spades over partner's 2-Spades. Let him do the rest.

8—1-Spade:	♦K Q 5
♠A K Q 7	♣7 3
♥K J 4 3
9—1-Spade:	♦A J 5
♠K Q J 10	♣7 3
♥K J 4 2
10—1-Spade:	♦A 9 8
♠A Q J 9	♣K 3
♥J 8 4 2

Hands 8, 9 and 10 justify bidding 4-Spades if partner raises to 2-Spades Two-trump strength and side strength over that shown. Hands 5 and 7 make it unsafe to bid only 3-Spades, when partner gives a minimum assist.

TOBY RYAN, 19, is a photographic model, posing for photographs to be used in advertisements. Unknown at first, she is soon in high demand in the studios, particularly after she is chosen as Hillyer Sloan Girl.

Toby shares an apartment with HARRIET HOLT, aspiring model, engaged to marry CLYDE SABIN, whom Toby detests.

Wealthy TIM JAMIESON shows Ora Toby with attentions for a time, and then seems to forget her. Toby's oldest friend is BILL BRANDT, who works in an advertising agency. She is fond of Bill, but has never thought of him romantically.

After weeks of silence, Tim telephones; but Toby makes an excuse for not seeing him.

JAY HILLYER, president of the Hillyer company, comes to the studio while Toby is posing for pictures for Sloan. Later she goes to dinner with him.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVIII

TOBY went with Jay Hillyer to see "Here Comes the Queen." The play was gay and amusing and brilliantly staged. The star was a radiant and graceful dancer—a dynamic little creature who looked scarcely older than Toby herself. She sang almost as well as she danced and her costumes were dazzlingly lovely.

Toby said, over her shoulder to Hillyer, "She's beautiful, isn't she?"

He agreed. Toby, intent on the scene behind the footlights, was not aware that Hillyer's eyes were on her more often than they were on the stage.

She went to dinner with him twice in the week that followed and to a concert. On Sunday they drove to a famous inn across the Hudson. Toby enjoyed that, too. She hadn't realized that spring had actually arrived. Trees were spreading their leaves and fields were deep green. The sunshine was warm and yellow.

She said, "It must be wonderful to live in the country."

"Would you like that?"

"More than anything I can imagine. Think of looking at trees like those!" (Toby swept one arm in a wide gesture toward a picturesque group at the right) "and think of being where you can really see the sky and walk on grass with no 'Keep Off' signs. And being able to see things growing and maybe plant them. I'd have a garden if I lived in the country. And I'd have a dog—no, two of them. And all day long I'd stay out in the sunshine—"

Hillyer laughed. "You make it sound attractive," he said, "yet I imagine there are hundreds of girls who have all those things who would be glad to change places with you."

"Then they'd be making a mistake."

"I have a country place." Hillyer's tone was sober. "It's in Connecticut. I don't seem to be able to spend much time there—"

In New York, she knew, he lived at a hotel. A very elegant hotel where everything he could possibly want was supplied him.

"I should think you'd like being in the country," Toby told him.

"I might, if there were someone there to make it seem like home. Most of the time it doesn't seem worth the bother to make the trip from there. Getting old, I guess—"

Hillyer had often made references to his age and he did it jokingly, yet Toby felt that the fact that the years were creeping on disturbed him. She didn't know how old he was. At first she had thought of him as definitely middle-aged, but now she knew him better he seemed younger. He was leanly built, athletic. She knew he liked sports, though he seemed to have little time for them. He might be 40 or he might be closer to 50. That, of course, was old to Toby.

It was a day or so after that drive that Toby took the new Hillyer car and to a concert. On Sunday they drove to a famous inn across the Hudson. Toby enjoyed that, too. She hadn't realized that spring had actually arrived. Trees were spreading their leaves and fields were deep green. The sunshine was warm and yellow.

She said, "It must be wonderful to live in the country."

"I should think you'd like being in the country," Toby told him.

"I might, if there were someone there to make it seem like home. Most of the time it doesn't seem worth the bother to make the trip from there. Getting old, I guess—"

Hillyer had often made references to his age and he did it jokingly, yet Toby felt that the fact that the years were creeping on disturbed him. She didn't know how old he was. At first she had thought of him as definitely middle-aged, but now she knew him better he seemed younger. He was leanly built, athletic. She knew he liked sports, though he seemed to have little time for them. He might be 40 or he might be closer to 50. That, of course, was old to Toby.

It was a day or so after that drive that Toby took the new Hillyer car and went to a concert. On Sunday they drove to a famous inn across the Hudson. Toby enjoyed that, too. She hadn't realized that spring had actually arrived. Trees were spreading their leaves and fields were deep green. The sunshine was warm and yellow.

She said, "It must be wonderful to live in the country."

"Would you like that?"

"More than anything I can imagine. Think of looking at trees like those!" (Toby swept one arm in a wide gesture toward a picturesque group at the right) "and think of being where you can really see the sky and walk on grass with no 'Keep Off' signs. And being able to see things growing and maybe

RUGGED COAST HOLDS SECRET OF LOST FLIERS

Honeymoon Couple Lost Since Sunday Sought by Coast Guard

SEATTLE, Wash., April 11.—The rugged northern British Columbia seacoast apparently held the secret last night of the whereabouts of Albert Almonslino, Seattle flier, and his bride, unreported since last Sunday on a 750-mile honeymoon flight from Seattle to Ketchikan, Alaska.

Although the coast guard cutter Alert was searching out of Ketchikan, friends here believed the honeymooners had landed at some isolated place along the coast and were safe.

An unconfirmed report was circulated in Prince Rupert, B.C. that the Almoslinos had been located at nearby Granville Bay.

Two Piper Cubs, Charles Anderson, and Mechanic Clyde Linch, were killed near Ketchikan Friday when their airplane crashed and burned but inquiry developed they were not involved in the search. Anderson had done much of his flying in eastern Canada.

GLOSSARY OF PHILATELIC TERMS.

Intermediate Die—A die made from the original die and used to produce the printing surface. Upon this, Intermediate alterations (e.g., of denomination, etc.) may be effected.

Inverted Frame—Used on stamps on which the frame is inverted in relation to the rest of the design. Example: 1870 to 1899 issues of Denmark.

Inverted Head (or centre)—As above but when the Head or central design is inverted in relation to the Frame.

Issue—Term used to denote the quantity of stamps of a given design or date sent out for public use.

Distinguished from "Remainders" of stamps printed, but not so issued.

Ivory Head—A term used to express the presence of the effigy on the back of a stamp, the rest of the back being "blued." Example: Great Britain 1d. and 2d. of 1841.

Jubilee Issue—A term frequently but wrongly applied to series of stamps of Great Britain issued in 1887. The term has since been used for commemorative issues of many countries.

Jubilee Line—The colored line which surrounds the sheets or panes of the current stamps of Great Britain and many of the British Colonies is known by this name, sheets showing it having been first issued in 1687, the Jubilee Year of Queen Victoria's reign. The lines were added to prevent the edges of the plates from becoming unduly worn by pressure. Such "machine work" is found on certain Crown issues of Canada.

Key Plate—See under Duty Plate.

Letter Cards—Printed stationery officially issued like postcards, but able to be folded and fastened so as to be free from inspection, etc., contents, and therefore liable to letter rate.

Locals—Stamps whose franking validity is limited to a town, district, or route in any country or between particular areas.

Maltese Cross—See Cross.

Margin, Pane—The margin of paper left between the "panes" of a sheet of stamps.

Margin, Wing—The extra unprinted margin sometimes left as part of a stamp by the perforating machine, e.g., many British Victorian issues which often occur with wide margins either at left or right.

Marginal Guide Marks—Marks made upon the margin only of a plate or stones to serve as a guide for the correct perforating of a sheet printed from it, or to assist in the rapid division of a sheet into definite sections ("panes").

Marginal Inscriptions—Inscriptions printed upon the margin of the sheet, not forming part of the design. The inscriptions are as a rule instructions to the public, a statement of the face value of the stamps, the name of the printer, etc., or may consist of a number or numbers, or a letter or letters denoting either the plate from which the sheet was printed or the series or date to which it belongs. The inscriptions are also known as "Control Letters." In some instances, as on many plates of U.S.A. issues, the number is also actually prints from a plate, stamps his initials or mark upon it, thus producing a further marginal inscription.

Benefit Payments To Wheat Farmers Announced Friday

WASHINGTON, April 11. — The agricultural adjustment administration announced Friday it will pay 21½ cents a bushel in benefit payments to wheat farmers to be made to United States wheat plantings before Jan. 6, 1936, date of the AAA's invalidation.

Total payments are expected to be $40,500,000, less local administrative expenses. They will be full settlement of the AAA's obligation to farmers who complied with the AAA's wheat adjustment contracts before the old program was outlawed by the United States supreme court.

Congress in February appropriated approximately $290,000,000 to meet the contracts' obligations" incurred by the old AAA.

Following The Fleet

GINGER ROGERS AND FRED ASTAIRE WITH IRVING BERLIN'S NEW TUNES DANCING ACROSS CAPITOL SCREEN

There doesn't seem to be any ceiling to the rhythmic hops that the talented Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers essay into the stratosphere of entertainment. Critics declared "Top Hat" was tops, but Astaire, Miss Rogers, Director Mark Sandrich and Producer Pandro S. Berman and a stellar cast have conspired in production of "Follow the Fleet," which is now playing at the Capitol theatre, to make reviewers dig deep for new superlatives.

That old Rajah of Ragtime, Irving Berlin, has written seven new songs to test the vocal excellencies of Astaire, Miss Rogers, and a newcomer to the screen, the lovely Harriet Hilliard; and to provide the rhythms for the tantalizing toes of the King and Queen of Terpsichore in the new screen show.

"Follow the Fleet" is a real "down to earth" musical, employing a logical and meaty story, every day habiliments for the players, and a battleship, a freighter, and the colorful city of San Francisco for realistic backgrounds.

The story is based on the romantic adventures of a pair of Uncle Sam's blue jackets." Fred Astaire and Randolph Scott, ashore. The objects of their affections are Ginger Rogers, who is a night club entertainer, and Harriet Hilliard, a school teacher whose romantic nature responds to the call of love for the first time. The film is an adaptation of the popular Hubert Osborne comedy, "Shore Leave," which enjoyed a long run on Broadway.

The leading players are supported by a strong and well-balanced cast, including Astrid Allwyn, Ray Mayer, Tony Martin, Edward Burns, Harry Beresford, Lucille Ball, Betty Grable, Joy Hodges, Jeanne Gray, and others.

REVUSICAL OPENS NOW AT STRAND

Music Box Revue Runs Week With "First a Girl"

The new musical romance, "First a Girl," showing at the Strand theatre, has Jessie Matthews, and that means everything. It's just about the last word in dancing, singing and comedy. In addition, the story gets four delightful people in a tangled plot that is funny, thrilling and romantic.

Jessie is an errand girl with stage aspirations who gets her chance when she meets a female impersonator in a rainstorm. He catches cold and can't go on with the act. He's broke and needs the money, so Jessie pinch hits for him.

She's scared and terrible, but, with the aid of several accidents, she panics the audience. A talent scout sees her, thinks she's good, but when she takes off a wig and apparently reveals herself as a boy he decides she's terrific and gives her a contract.

When Jessie Matthews sings "Everything's in Rhythm With My Heart" your heart and feet will be in rhythm with the provocative Princess Personality herself. Other attractive numbers are "The Little Silkworm," "It's Written All Over Your Face," "I Can Wiggle My Ears," "Half and Half," and "Say Say the Word and It's Yours."

Sonnie Hale, husband of Miss Matthews in real life, once more proves himself the perfect comedy foil for the star. Anna Lee, svelte and solgnee, is also snippy and snooty, but makes you like her. And you'll like the Nice and Monte Carlo atmosphere for some of the action—it's the real thing!

PLATINUMS TURN TO BROWNIES

Jean Harlow started it once, and has started it again. First, she became the original platinum blond, as shown below. Now she has restored her natural brown tresses that she hurls about in curls above.

HARLOW IN LEAD

HOLLYWOOD, April 11.—Movietown drug store owners are wailing over depleted revenues. As might have been expected, Jean Harlow crippled their peroxide trade when she let her celebrated platinum hair get rusty.

Whether or not anybody will admit it, Miss Harlow led a lot of actresses—and no telling how many hundreds of extra girls—into blondness, and now she's leading them out again. The majority are acquiring that shade adroitly termed "brownette"; others have changed right back to their natural colors.

The best guess is that by summer, and the resumption of picture production at full speed, there will be highly few extreme blonds left. Anita Loos, statement about gentlemen's preferences notwithstanding. Beauty shop operators and cosmeticians are giving advice, and so are producers with honey-headed stars on their payrolls.

* * * *

Among those who already have darkened their hair are Carole Lombard, Ann Sothern, Bette Davis, Joan Blondell (whose name becomes less appropriate now), Alice Faye, Astrid Allwyn, June Lang, Shirley Deane, and Glenda Farrell.

Their announced reasons were similar to that of Miss Harlow. The latter claimed her hair typed her for siren roles, and that darker hair would widen the scope for her acting ability. Fact was, too, that the Harlow tresses just wouldn't stand any more bleaching.

EMPRESS HAS PIRATE SAGA FOR MONDAY

Romantic Adventure, "Captain Blood," is Billed

With the filming of "Captain Blood," opening Monday at the Empress theatre, the entire studio found itself struck with amazement over the quaintness of the costumes. Never, say old-timers, has a picture been decked out with such a lavishness and beauty of period clothes, even on a lot famous for the success of its costume pictures.

Filmed from the Raphael Sabatini novel laid in the 17th century, "Captain Blood," of course, deals with lovely ladies, dashing men of daring and wit—and pirates. An assemblage of these, on the first day's shooting schedule, left studio onlookers gasping at the picturesque color of the scene. But when Olivia de Haviland, playing the leading role of Arabella, came along the set, there wasn't even a gasp left. She had them both breathless and speechless.

Underneath she wore long stockings of heavy silk, the seventeenth century equivalent of step-ins, which happened to be of tucked, ruffled white lawn, to the knees, and a tucked white lawn camisole.

Then there was a corset—and what a corset! Hung on over the shoulders with wide pink satin ribbon straps, it reaches almost to the knees and is complete with whalebone stays running both ways, eyelets lacing up the front, and two tabs by means of which the wearer keeps it pulled down. All this is done in pink slipper satin, and modestly finished off with an underskirt-flounce reaching from the end of the corset to the ankles.

Motorist

Wally Berry Is Princess' Star

Wallace Beery and Jackie Coogan are united once more in the Metro - Goldwyn - Mayer picture, "O'Shaughnessy's Boy," at the Princess theatre. Their new picture is described as a dramatic, human interest story of father love told against a background of universal appeal—the circus with all its pathos, humor and spectacle abundantly punctuated with sure-fire animal thrills.

The picture was directed by Richard Boleslawski, whose star is the fastest rising in Hollywood, with such recent hits to his credit as "Les Miserables" and "Clive of India."

Jean Parker, in RKO Radio's "Farmer In the Dell," plays the role of a simple Iowa maiden who moves with her father (Fred Stone) to Hollywood.

Glorious Glenda Has New England Romance, Rialto

ONE OF TRIO

GLENDA FARRELL

"Snowed Under," a rollicking First National comedy romance with a New England setting, comes to the Rialto Theatre on Monday, bringing together a leading man and three leading women, all of whom are top notch Hollywood stars in their own right. George Brent has the lead, while the feminine trio is composed of Genevieve Tobin, Glenda Farrell and Patricia Ellis.

The hilarious comedy situations show a handsome young playwright snowbound in a Connecticut farmhouse with two ex-wives and a new sweetheart, a lovelorn lawyer and a romantic sheriff.

The human and historically dramatic side of the long fight by Arizona and California ranchers to harness the Colorado River by the great Boulder Dam project in thrillingly and deftly depicted.

"Red River Valley," starring the popular cowboy actor Gene Autry, presented with pictorial perfection the grim story behind the greatest government irrigation project in the world. It is the other half of the two-feature program.

Dramatically the picture reflects the long battle of cattlemen and ranchers against private bankers, politicians and financiers who sought to control water supplies for their own profits. The picture was filmed along the scenic and turbulent Colorado River itself, some of the actual Boulder Dam project construction camps, diversion dams, and other works having been used for realistic and striking backgrounds.

Autry was ably supported by such talented actors as George Cheseboro, Smiley Burnett and Frances Grant, a pert screen newcomer destined to win acclaim.

Reeves Eason, one of the most capable makers of action pictures in Hollywood, disclosed the deftly art of his long experience in directing "Red River Valley."

"Breath O' Spring" dinnerware will, as usual, be given away free to the ladies.

PALS

AUTHOR

Stuart Palmer, prolific author of the "Hildegarde Withers" series of mystery tales, wrote "Murder On a Bridle Path," forthcoming RKO Radio thriller which co-stars Helen Broderick and James Gleason.

- Listen Inn -

With music taking up 96 per cent of radio's time and pop songs occupying the biggest cut on the kilocycle melody hours, the ciggie sponsors of the NBC Hit Parade are taking themselves very seriously. Doubling the time two months ago, the smokes outfit which pays the shot for wire charges on two coast-to-coast webs, is now throwing the Hit Parade open to listeners.

The Hit Parade set-up in past months has been a selection of week's pop song successes by a group of "name" bandmen, the NBC artists bureau, ASCAP's score-keepers and Variety's tabulation. With these four agencies to guide the final section, listeners on the Hit Parade have a ballot say-so and can vote their favorite tunes to a listing on the NBC-WJZ edition of the Hit Parade Wednesday or to the Saturday six p.m. edition on the NBC-WEAF web.

On the NBC Red net tonight Al Goodman's band and featured vocalists will have "Goody, Goody" at the head of the Parade for the third time in succession.

Following in order will be: "What's the Name of That Song," "I'm Gonna Clap My Hands, I'm Gonna Snap My Fingers," "Love is Like a Cigarette," "I'm Shootin' High," "I Feel Like a Feather in the Breeze," "Melody From the Sky," "I'm Putting All My Eggs in One Basket," "Let's Face the Music and Dance," "Lights Out," "It's Been So Long" and "In a Sentimental Mood."

This week last year, The Parade showed "Sweet Music," "Cloudy" and "She's a Latin From Manhattan" to be the top choices in pop songs. "Isle of Capri" after six weeks of white-hot popularity had just died a slow death.

---By G. D. H. COLE

GEORGE HARRIS kissed his wife rapturously, and then, with a laugh, said "Catch!" and threw something into her outstretched hand.

"O, George, what beauties!" said Nancy Harris, laughing back at him. "They must be worth thousands."

"Nine or ten thirty, if they're worth a penny," said George. "Pleased, darling?"

"George, you're an angel," replied his beloved, clasping the string of pearls round her neck.

They were really magnificent—far too magnificent to mess it all in place in the dingy environment of Mr. and Mrs. Harris' little flat overlooking Battersea park. Nor did George Harris look the man to be able to give his wife a string of pearls worth thousands, or Nancy Harris the sort of woman to wear them to advantage. Nancy was definitely plain, and plainly dressed in a style that indicated little enough care for appearances. Nor did her sharp, keen-witted face look as if it belonged to a fancier of such expensive bauhles as these. Yet she was manifestly delighted, both with them and with her husband for bringing them.

George Harris ranked at the very top of his profession. Many a notable achievement was his. He had the soul of an artist, and was never satisfied unless he could feel that his work had been done, not merely with competence, but with a touch of originality as well. Just now he was very well satisfied with his latest success, which had enabled him to throw that costly string of pearls across to his wife. He felt he had done well, though he neither expected nor desired to have his well doing recognised by the world of public praise. For him, and for Nancy, the consciousness of success, and the monetary reward attaching to it, were quite enough.

Once again he had pulled it off, and the pearls were the sign of his triumph. Lately the most cherished gewgaw of Miss Wynne Wynne, the film star, had vanished from Viscount Flighle—they had now passed into the possession of Mr. George Harris, professional burglar and thief. For these, and no other, were the highly skilled trades by which Mr. Harris lived and throve.

With the details of George Harris' coup we are not here concerned. It is enough to say that Mr. Harris, presenting himself to Miss Wynne in her seaside hotel in the guise of a young American millionaire, had so won upon the lady as to be persuaded to carry home his precious dressing case from her apartments to her waiting car when she was leaving, and used his chance to effect a rapid substitution. Some days before he had executed a wax impression of the key which Miss Wynne had left lying out on her table; and before starting out to despoil Miss Wynne at all he had provided himself with a cheap string of imitation pearls good enough to pass muster at a casual glance. The actual substitution had been the work of a moment; and Miss Wynne had been seen off safely in entire unconsciousness of her loss. Indeed, she did not become aware of it till some days later, when she next wished to wear the pearls, and it was then impossible to discover when the theft had taken place. Suspicion thereupon fell upon Miss Wynne's maid, and no breath of it rested round Mr. George Harris' private ma; with whom Miss Wynne had struck up a friendship at her seaside hotel. He had announced that he was returning to America within a day or two, and there was no reason for remarking upon his complete disappearance off the face of the earth.

George Harris, however, was a careful soul, and only now, a week after the commission of the crime, had he felt sure enough that there was nothing at all to connect him with it to return to his usual haunts. Only now, accordingly, had he the opportunity of showing off the fruits of his prowess to the wife of his bosom.

"You're glad, Nancy, no one spotted you?" Mrs. Harris inquired anxiously. "Because it's a bit of a risk having these things about the place."

"It's as right as rain, my dear. No one has the tiniest little glimmering of an idea. All the same, when you've done admiring them, we'll put 'em away nice and safe. Better not take any risks."

Nancy Harris unclasped the pearls from her neck and held them lovingly in her hands. Then she passed them over to her husband. "Will you be getting rid of them at once?" she asked.

"Not on your life. Got to wait for the hue and cry to die down. Then I'll be able to get a good price for them over the water—Paris, most likely, or Antwerp perhaps. Boomer there would jump at them. Not a penny less than five thousand. That's my line. But not yet. They'll be quite safe here. I'll put 'em away at once."

George got a screw driver and deftly removed the handle of a handsome chair. Then, with the aid of his clever lock, laying open a small cavity within the woodwork of the door. There he bestowed the pearls, wrapped in a handkerchief, and carefully replaced the lock and handle.

"That's that," he said. "Leave 'em there a month or so and then guess they will make a little trip to the dear old Continong. Well, darling, what d'you say? Do we have a bit of celebration this evening? Dinner, theatre, a night out—that's about the style, I fancy, for us both."

Nancy agreed; and husband and wife spent a very pleasant evening together. It was late when they got back to the flat, or rather to the basement below it, on the morning. Nancy went up first, while George lingered to pay the taxi. Following her a couple of minutes later, he found her in a high state of agitation.

"O, George," she said, breathlessly, "some one's been here. Some one's been searching the flat."

"My dear!" said George in alarm. "Have they got it?" He dashed in, banging the front door behind him.

The signs showed plainly that some one had been there. Several drawers of the writing table were open, and papers scattered on the floor. The carpet was up at one corner, and a chair near it had been overturned. And in the middle of the floor lay the single article in man's Nancy pounced on it. "This isn't yours, George," she said.

But George had made a dash for the screwdriver, which was undisturbed in its usual place. In a minute he was feverishly removing the lock from the bedroom door. The job did not take long, and he was soon able to plunge his hand into the cavity. He drew something forth and unwrapped it. "Thank the Lord!" he said. "They didn't find 'em. They're safe. What's been taken, Nancy?"

"Nothing at all, as far as I can see. You hunt here, and I'll try the bedroom."

George hunted. The disturbance appeared to be mostly superficial, almost as if the searcher had been interrupted in the act. Nothing of value was missing. Nancy picked up the glove, which Nancy had flung down upon the table. It was certainly not his.

His wife returned from the bedroom. "Nothing gone from there that I can see," she said. "A bit of a mess, but I've put it to rights. What about here?"

"Nothing gone." Nancy echoed. "That's just what I don't like about it. There was money in that drawer, and they've left it. Must have been looking for something special, and there was nothing to look for—except the pearls."

"O, George. Then some one does know. Could it—could it have been—the police?"

George Harris shook his head. "This wasn't a police search," he said. "They'd have come with a warrant. And, if they had come when we were out there'd have left everything tidy, so as you'd hardly have known they'd been here. No, it wasn't the police."

"Then who it? You said no one knew."

"Damn it all! No one can have known. They can't have come for the pearls." George spoke confidently, but he was plainly rattled.

"What'll you do now, George? Get rid of 'em at once?"

"Have to think. No, I don't think so. After all, they didn't find 'em, and I don't see why they should come back. I reckon we'll risk it."

"I don't like it, darling," Nancy answered.

"Neither do I. It's hell. But it simply isn't safe to try and get rid of the stuff now. And I shouldn't get half the value if I come to bed. I'm too fagged to think."

They went to bed, but their peace had been destroyed, and George at any rate slept but ill. All the next day he was as jumpy as a cat. The person that could go out and leave the flat unguarded. Nancy went out to buy food, and announced on her return that she had asked Bill Grainger to stop in. "I met him in the street," she said, "and he'll be company."

Granger was a close friend of the Harrises, and a member of the same rookie profession. But he was a safe expert, whereas George Harris specialized rather in the confidence game. They sat late, exchanging reminiscences, and an acute observer might perhaps have noticed that Bill was on very good terms indeed with George Harris' wife. There were glances of love between them when George was not looking, and even touchings of feet and hands under the table. But, to all appearances, George and Bill were good friends, too.

The postman's knock resounded on the door of the flat and George went out to get the letters. Nancy and Bill exchanged a hasty kiss. But there need not have hurried. George was a long time coming back. At length Nancy, after calling to him in vain, went out to see what was the matter. She found him standing there, still in the hall, holding an opened letter in his hand. He had gone white as a ghost, and looked haggard and frightened—a good ten years older than he had looked a few minutes before.

"George! What's the matter?"

George Harris hastily stuffed the letter in his pocket, and made an effort to regain his composure. "Tell you later, when Bill's gone," he said. "Get rid of him early. It's had a bit of a shock."

Nancy kissed him, but she asked no further questions. They went back together into the sitting room. "Clear out, Bill," she said. "George and I want to talk about something."

Within a few minutes Bill obediently cleared out. Nancy closed the door behind him, and turned to her husband. "Well, what is it?" she said.

"It's the Partner," he said. "It must have been he who came here last night. Here, you'd better read it."

Nancy took the letter from him and read. It was short, and written throughout in block capitals.

"TO MR. GEORGE HARRIS. PRESENT CUSTODIAN OF MISS WYNNE'S PEARLS. GREETING. THE UNDER SIGNED PRESENTS HIS COMPLIMENTS. HE PROPOSES TO RELIEVE MR. HARRIS OF THE RESPONSIBILITY OF LOOKING AFTER THE ABOVE MR. HARRIS WILL THEREFORE PLACE THE PEARLS IN A REGISTERED POSTAL PACKET AND ADDRESS THE SAME HIMSELF AT VAUXHALL BRIDGE ROAD POST-OFFICE. MARKED 'TO BE CALLED FOR.' HE NEED NOT, HOWEVER, TROUBLE HIMSELF ABOUT THEM. THAT WILL BE ATTENDED TO BY HIS OLD FRIEND

THE PARTNER

P.S. IF MR. H. WILL CAREFULLY OBEY THESE INSTRUCTIONS, ALL RISK OF UNPLEASANTNESS WILL BE AVOIDED. MR. H. WILL BECAUSE A PHOTOS ON OCCASION WHEN THIS WAS NOT SO. VERB. SAP."

"The Partner?" said George, heavily. And then he added a heartfelt but inapposite imprecation on that worthy's highly misleading name.

Nancy looked as upset as her husband as she read the letter. Her language was also too unladylike for reproduction.

"What the hell are we to do? That's what I want to know," George muttered.

Nancy made no answer. She led him to the sofa and made him sit down. And then, like a loving associate of her husband's career, she sat beside him, stroked his forehead, kissed him, and made much of him.

"The truth is," George said at length, "I daren't stand up to the Partner. You know what happened before."

"The Partner" comprised the over eighteen years of the free hospitality of his majesty the king.

The man who signed himself "the Partner" was, indeed, at the time of our story the single arbiter of his fate. He had invented for himself an entirely new profession, that of a secondary thief on a grand scale. The principle of his operations was to steal nothing that had not been stolen already by some one else. Aided by an admirable intelligence service, worked none knew how, he had a way of getting to know when a coup was afoot. Professionals had brought off a particularly good coup, and then coming down on them for a share of the swag, with unspecified threats of unpleasant consequences if they failed to comply with his demands. Some of them, George Harris knew, had failed to comply, and had been, at considerable risk to themselves, in the extreme.

Only a year ago George's particular friend, Willy Cropper, had got off with ten thousand weekly pay at a big motor works, had been promptly served with "the Partner's" demand for half the proceeds, and, on failing to comply, had been promptly denounced to the police in an anonymous letter. Cropper was even now languishing in jail as the reward of his continency. Moreover, as George Harris knew himself, earlier in his career of crime, had made the same mistake of underestimating "the Partner," and he had no desire to repeat the experience. He was quite afraid enough of "the Partner" to be ready to pay reasonable toll on his unlawful earnings without protest.

But on this occasion "the Partner" was not asking to go shares. He bluntly demanded the surrender of George's entire booty. Really, a bit stiff. But George again set himself up against the redoubtable spoiler of the ungodly? It would be better to lose the necklace and say his own skin than to lose necklace and liberty together.

George cast round vainly in his mind for a way of escape. The obvious thing to do was to open negotiations with "the Partner" for a share out. Surely the scoundrel—for such George felt him to be—ought to be prepared to go halves, and let him off the trouble of disposing of the pearls into the bargain. If he could get into touch with his tormentor, and talk things over with him, surely the fellow could be made to see that his usual practice, George knew, was only to claim a share in the proceeds of crime, and not to collar the lot.

But it was not so easy to open negotiations. For George, in common with the rest of the criminal fraternity, had no idea who "the Partner" was. The man never appeared in person, but ordered his victims to deliver what he claimed in some way that would avoid the betrayal of his own identity. Since his first error of judgment George had paid up on receipt on every one occasion, and always he had been called upon to deliver up the goods in some such simple way as this latest letter prescribed.

If he now obeyed he could see what would happen. "The Partner" would call at the postoffice and sign a receipt for the packet in George Harris' name. He would probably go to the length of getting himself up to look like George, and of producing a plausible forgery of George's signature. Then, if anything should come to light, it would appear that George had posted the packet to himself, and duly collected it, and there would be no trail leading to "the Partner." It was all very ingenious, but it was also perfectly preposterous. It wasn't Mr. He, George, had had all the risk and trouble of stealing the pearls, and now his tormentor proposed to walk off with the entire swag. He vowed one minute that he would defy the scoundrel, and would the next that he dared not, because, if he did, "the Partner" would have no compunction in denouncing him to the police. The thing was sheer blackmail, he protested, with the criminal's horror of the type of crime he does not himself commit.

Nancy was soothing, but not helpful. She knew, and he knew, well enough that, whatever he said he would not in the end dare to defy the order. The most he would dare he would do by temporizing and negotiating. He sat down at his desk and indited a letter to "the Partner," offering to go shares. He valued the pearls at 8,000 pounds. Suppose they realized 4,000 pounds—a low estimate. He was willing to take 2,000 pounds in cash, and to hand them over to "the Partner" for that sum. Enclosing his letter in an envelope, he addressed it to Mr. George Harris, Vauxhall Bridge road post-office, and marked it to be called for. He then awaited the result of his overture.

But his serenity was gone. During the next twenty-four hours he lived in purgatory. The possession of the stolen necklace had now become an ever present peril, instead of a source of joy in the contemplation of its own cleverness. He could not for the life of him imagine how "the Partner" had tumbled to his exploit, for he had worked absolutely alone and had had no confidant. How had that devil found him out?

At length his letter was answered. Tremblingly he drew the flimsy typewritten sheet from its envelope and read the contents. They were brief and to the point:

"YOU HAVE TILL TOMORROW."

That was all. No signature this time, and no attempt to answer his arguments. Simply an ultimatum. What should he do?

He and Nancy talked it over endlessly. She was for giving way, but George's courage was rising, and the more she urged surrender the stronger he became on the other side. He agreed, however, that it was out of the question simply to refuse. The only possible defience was a counter attack. Gradually a plan devloped in George's mind, and at last he managed to talk his wife into accepting it, though he had much trouble in doing so. There was only one way out, he argued. He must entice "the Partner" into a trap and murder him. Anything else—that meant either ignominious surrender or denunciation to the police.

George wrote another letter and addressed it to Vauxhall Bridge road postoffice. "Call there at midnight," it ran, "and you shall have what you want. I dare not send them through the post."

That ought to catch him," he commented to his wife.

George Harris was powerfully built and not deficient in personal courage. He felt that he and Nancy together, with the aid of a little strategy, ought to be a match for their adversary, if they could but get him into the flat. Their plan was simple. If he came, George was to go to the front door, admit him, and then precede him into the sitting room. Beside the sitting room door, Nancy was to be waiting with a good supply of pepper, which she was to fling into his face. George suggested a knife, but Nancy would not go beyond pepper. While "the Partner" was half blinded, George was to lay him on the flat with a life preserver, and then to strangle him with a length of cord as he lay unconscious. In case of accident, Nancy was to cover the enemy with an automatic, but this was to be fired only if things went wrong. For, though the flat below was empty and the noise not very likely to be heard, George had something of a horror of firearms.

So far, so good. But of course, the real difficulty lay in disposing of the body. For this the plan was not quite so clear-cut. The tenants were away on the continent for some months, and George had already provided himself with a key with the idea of using the flat if it contained anything worth having. He proposed simply to deposit "the Partner's" body in the bath in the empty flat, in the hope that it would remain there undiscovered until the tenants' return. He and Nancy meanwhile would unceremoniously remove elsewhere and leave behind them no clue which would help it, no clue to connect them with the crime.

George was not by instinct at all a murderous type, and he did not like the idea. But he had confidence in Nancy's courage, and in his own skill, and he had allowed him to persuade her, did everything to keep his courage up. At midnight dear to near they waited, tensely, listening for every sound.

Midnight came and passed. No one arrived. George waited on, poised between hope and relief. Still no one came. He and Nancy sat up all night. They looked haggard and ill in the light of morning. At length George gave his visitor up, and Nancy set to work to prepare breakfast.

The first post brought another letter, laconic as the last. It consisted of four words:

"FOOL. LAST CHANCE TODAY."

George and Nancy had another interminable discussion. Evidently "the Partner" had no mind to walk into a trap. Nancy again urged surrender, but George would have none of it. His new plan was to make tracks immediately for the continent and there sell the pearls at once for what they would fetch. Nancy meanwhile was also to disappear, and they were to meet again in a week's time in Paris under a false name. Before they went to see if "the Partner" had carried out his threat of denouncing George to the police. If he had not they would in due course return to England. If he had, they would endeavor to start a new life somewhere else with the proceeds of the sale.

Nancy Harris at first strongly opposed this plan, but George was set on it, and at length she gave way. He had his passport and for his intended journey to Antwerp he would not need a visa. The only difficulty was to start at once before "the Partner" had time to take action.

Now, George Harris had made similar journeys to the continent before and he had a hiding place for the pearls ready prepared in the sole of a specially made boot. Within the sole and under the heel were small cavities in which quite a wealth of precious stones had before now lain concealed. In this convenient cavity Nancy now undertook to conceal the pearls while George was packing his suitcase for the journey, and, within an hour of his decision he had left Nancy behind to clear things up at the flat and remove any possible incriminating traces, and was on his way to catch the afternoon boat for Antwerp.

George Harris passed the British and Belgian customs with flying colors, and the following morning saw him safe in a little hotel he knew on the quayside at Antwerp. You may be sure his boots had not left his feet in the course of the journey and even now as he went for a bath into the private bathroom attached to his apartment, he carried his boots with him and set them down on a chair beside him to view. He put the same pair on again when he dressed, and then rang up M. Boemer, the fence with whom he had had similar dealings before, and arranged an appointment for the following morning. He would have preferred to get his business through at once, but Boemer was busy, and he did not want to alarm him by seeming too urgent for an interview, as that might only suggest the police were hot on his track.

George then went out and dined at a cafe, well, but with temperance as to drink. He returned straight to his hotel and ordered a final drink in the lounge. He had the place almost to himself, and, when one of his few fellow guests—an Englishman like himself—attempted to open up a conversation, George rebuffed him. He regarded every stranger with suspicion. He wanted to keep himself to himself until that delicate business of his was safely over. When his fellow-guest offered to stand him a drink he refused, and announced his intention of going to bed at once as he was tired with his journey.

Back in his own apartments George carefully locked the door and arranged two chairs against it so that any attempt to open it would cause them to fall flying. He closed and fastened all the windows and, after looking carefully in the bathroom and wardrobe and under the bed, undressed, placed the precious boot directly under his pillow, and went to bed with a life preserver handy to his side. Superfluous precautions, maybe, but he could not feel safe with the pearls in his possession and "the Partner" on his track. He had half a mind, before retiring, to open the heel of his boot and have another look at the pearls. But, he decided, they were safer as they were. Since Nancy had put them in their hiding place his boots had been continuously on his feet or on his night. No one could possibly have tampered with the pearls. George restrained his impulse to take the unnecessary risk of removing them, even for a moment.

George Harris slept heavily and woke late. He would be only just in time to snatch his early dejeuner and keep his appointment with Boemer. He rose and ordered coffee and rolls, dressed hastily, and consumed his breakfast, and then made ready to go. He did not remove the pearls from their boot even then. He could do that in Boemer's office, for Boemer knew already the secret of his hiding place.

Thirty minutes after an hour later he was shaking hands with Andre Boemer, a fat smiling Belgian whose ostensible business in ornamental brassware veiled a brisk trade in various kinds of stolen and contraband objects. He spoke almost perfect English, with a curious thickening of the vowels. As soon as George mentioned pearls he appeared to know all about it.

"Ah, the pearls of the Miss Wynne," he exclaimed. "I have read of this in your newspapers. You are a lucky man, Mr. Harris, but there is luck and luck. It is a great risk—in disposing of them. You have them here?"

For answer George took off his boot and began to work the heel gently from side to side.

"Ah, I remember," said Boemer. "Your ingenious place of hiding."

The heel came away, revealing a small handkerchief stuffed into the cavity. George put his hand to draw it out, and an expression of utter dismay came over his countenance. For as he pulled out the little handkerchief nothing fell from it but a tiny piece of paper. The pearls were gone.

M. Boemer looked quizzically at his bewildered visitor. "For myself," he said, "I do not yet see your famous pearls."

"They're gone," said George, putting the obvious into words. "Gone—and that boot hasn't been out of my sight since I left London. They can't have gone."

"Pardon me—the other boot," Boemer suggested.

"No, it was this one." George answered. But he tore off his other boot, removed its heel, and revealed another cavity—this time completely empty. Once more he stared at Boemer in sheer dismay.

Boemer, meanwhile, had retrieved the scrap of paper which had fallen out of the handkerchief. "Perhaps," he suggested, "this may throw some light on the matter."

George snatched it from him and read it through. It threw only two words to light. This is what it said:

"THANK YOU. I SHALL NOT NEED TO TELL THE POLICE ABOUT YOU THIS TIME.

THE PARTNER."

George ground his teeth with fury. So that devil "the Partner" had got the pearls after all. But how had he got them? George was utterly bewildered. There in M. Boemer's office he tried to cast his mind back over every incident from the time of his departure from Battersea to his arrival at Boemer. He could see no possible moment at which the pearls could have been abstracted, unless some one had contrived to enter his bedroom while he slept without disturbing the chairs piled against the door and to take the boot from under his pillow. It seemed incredible, but there was no doubt at all that the pearls were gone.

M. Boemer went across the room to his safe, took something from it, and came back and dangled it before George's eyes. George felt his reason tottering. There could be no mistake. Those were the identical pearls he had lost. He tried to grab them, but Boemer drew them swiftly away.

"They're the ones," George cried. "They're mine. How did you get them?"

"These pearls," said Boemer, "were sold to me last night. The seller stated that they had belonged to Miss Wynne. I paid 2,500 pounds for them in your money."

"Then the Partner sold them to you," George stormed. "He had no right to them. He stole them from me."

Boemer shrugged his shoulders. "It is, perhaps, not so useful to speak of rights in your business, Mr. Harris. I bought them from a person desiring to dispose of them. I paid in good money. That is my concern from its point of view." He threw the pearls back into the safe and banged it to before George could stop him.

"Tell me who sold them to you," said George. "By God! I'll make him pay . . ."

"Not so fast," said Boemer. "My client was—a lady. She travelled from England yesterday by airplane. It was because of her I could not see you last night."

Boemer's manner, even more than his words, caused comprehension to dawn in George Harris' mind. With a volley of oaths he rushed from the office. At full speed he returned to his hotel, packed his bag, and paid his bill, and was just in time to catch the morning boat back to London. A taxi took him to Battersea and he raced up the stairs to his flat and opened it with his latch key. The place was in darkness. He switched on the light, and knew the worst. The flat had been gutted; not a stick of furniture was left.

The wall facing the entrance was a letter addressed to him in Nancy's hand. He tore it open. It ran:

"Dear George:

"This is in case you come back. I've sold the furniture and am just off with Bill Granger. A bit blind, aren't you? I suppose you realize by now that I was, but am to you no more.

THE PARTNER."

George read the letter through and then tore it angrily into fragments. "By God," he said, "this is almost enough to make a chap lead an honest life."

Our Old Country Letter

By J. Edward Norcross

CLITHEROE, Lancs. (By Mail)— I am afraid a matter code for retailers, such as that which, by the time this appears in print, may be in operation in Canada, would not be popular just now in this part of Lancashire.

For this is the season of the fairs, when itinerant vendors of various commodities descend at their appointed times on our market towns, market-places and offer us wonderful bargains.

We have just had here in Clitheroe what is popularly known as "it pot fair," the carnival of the buyers and sellers of china and delf for household use.

We walk around the stalls and note huge piles of crockery in full array in admired disorder, brilliantly-colored tea-services chock-a-block with huge pannuns and gargantuan meat platters, glassware, pretending to be "cut," mingling with wash-bowls and soap dishes. There are vessels for honor and vessels for dishonor, and the latter are invariably in the most conspicuous positions.

We are looking for bargains, for a fruit-set, say, or a dinner set for Mrs. Jones we got for "four and thruppence" and which is exactly the thing for Mrs. Jones to have on Castle Street a month ago. Willing salesmen, most obliging in knocking off coppers off prices, assist in our quest.

IT IS at night, however, that the fair is in its fiery glory. The salesmen have now all become auctioneers, mostly of the Cockney variety. They are a quick-witted lot and the man with the best stories, preferably in dialect, draws the biggest crowd.

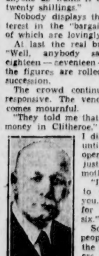
"You won't get this for less than two pounds 'up street'," one begins, displaying a dinner service of forty or fifty pieces. "but aw've got to take some money home tonight so anyone as wants it can 'ave it for twenty shillings."

Nobody displays the slightest interest in the bargain," the points of which are lovingly described.

At last the real business begins. "Well, anybody else? Nineteen-eighteen — seventeen — sixteen" — the figures are rolled off in rapid succession.

The crowd continues quite unresponsive. The vendor's tone becomes mournful.

"They told me that there was no money in Clitheroe," he says, "but I didn't believe it until a woman stopped her pram just now and a moth flew out. I shall have to take pity on you. 'Ere's the lot for twelve and six."



J. E. Norcross

Some of the people begin. The potential buyers, there for weekly rather than amusement, begin to look more closely at the goods.

"Twelve shillings—eleven and six —(pause)—yes, just look at it ma'am—you won't have to give the children them cracked plates any more if you take this—eleven—none of you want it?—better put it away, Jim," and, as his assistant comes forward to receive it, "This sort of thing will send me to the Institution (as the workhouse is called nowadays) but I mean to sell and you have a set for ten and six and it's the last one. You won't 'ave another chance—ten and six—for the last time, 'ere and—"

AND so it goes on until midnight. One wonders how their lungs stand it. And there is not only the competition of nearby vendors to drown out but also the blaring of the mechanical organs in the amusement section close by.

We wander off among the swings and merry-go-rounds, resisting temptation as we pass the gambling devices straight money down with no camouflage of prizes such as dolls and teddy-bears) which would hardly be tolerated at an agricultural show in Edmonton.

Factory lads are treating their lasses and feel that they are seeing a bit of life.

They may be called by other names and have a somewhat different modus operandi, but fairs are the same in their essentials the country over. Moreover, they are held in the same places and at the same times of year as when performing Indian medicine-men made their way to them along the dusty high roads.

But that was before the amusements were syndicated and moved about in gay-colored motor-trucks and the immense astonishment of the old Castle which has looked down on pot fairs and horse fairs and fair of all sorts since the days of the plantagenets.

IN THESE days when Parliament is occupied with so many matters of the utmost gravity it is well that Mr. A. P. Herbert should furnish a little light relief now and then.

Mr. Herbert is one of the most brilliant members of the staff of Punch. He has also more than once amused the House during the short period for which he has been a member.

The other day Captain A. H. M. Ramsay, M.P. for Peebles, gave notice of a motion "that this House, etc., is of the opinion that, etc., His Majesty's Government should continue to explore every avenue of conciliation provided by the machinery of the League of Nations."

Mr. Herbert promptly tabled an amendment to leave out the words "explore every avenue" and insert the phrase "leave no stone unturned."

There is reason to believe that Mr. Herbert will never be a cabinet minister; he is much too volatile for any such dignity.

NINE out of ten of the most juvenile men at Cambridge would give a positive tail to get into the Army," recently declared Dr. C. E. Raven, Regius Professor of Divinity at that university.

"A shameful statement," was the comment of Mr. Duff Cooper, secretary for war.

It is not the views of the young intelligentsia of the universities, however, that have made recruiting a problem which is causing considerable concern at the War Office. Nothing more tantalizing to many a young unemployed man can well be imagined than the brilliant posters advertising the attractions of the Army to be seen outside government buildings in this country.

Join the army and see the world," they proclaim. Enter an employment which will provide you with food, clothing, recreation and other necessities of life.

The young man, sick and tired of the fruitless search for work and the misery of the dole, presents himself to the recruiting sergeant, and the latter, who is most anxious to enroll him.

But—"No, I'm afraid you won't do, my lad," he may say after looking him over in a glance being sufficient to tell him that the candidate for the King's uniform is under the minimum height or otherwise physically unfit.

Three out of every ten get no farther than this. A cursory, non-medical examination disposes of another, and of all who apply only two out of five are found fit being of or above the very moderate physical standard required.

Good food, regular hours and training can do something to eradicate certain defects, but for sixty per cent of young men to be under the forces the malnutrition and over-crowding of early years have produced too much physical damage for the struggle of life and useless for military purposes.

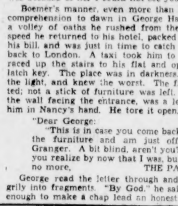
The Debunker

By John Harvey Furbay, Ph.D.



Many people have the ridiculous idea that the more sunshine they can get the healthier they will be. Sun bathers frequently look for serious dangers abound in sun bathing. Two hundred thousand people a year are lost each year because of illness due to sunstroke, and many more have died from too much exposure. If more than half of the body is sunburned, serious results are experienced, often death. A small dose of the sun's ultraviolet rays is healthful to most people, but a large dose may cause serious internal damage, even including blindness. If the skin is blistered, infections are possible through the broken skin. Even when the body is wet, the skin burns faster than when dry.

"Chairing of The Bard" Evan Williams, Climax To Annual Eisteddfod

HIGHLIGHT in the splendid program arranged at Friday evening's section of the Fourth Annual Eisteddfod (Musical Festival) sponsored by St. David's Welsh Society, in the Masonic Temple, was the traditional and charming ceremony of "chairing the bard," the award being unique to an ecstatic degree, for the "Dryddest." Mr. E. E. Davies received the honor on behalf of Mr. Evan Williams, winner of the essay, who lives in North Wales. Mr. D. M. Duggan, M.L.A., donated the fine oak chair, which will be gifted to Mr. Williams. Druids at the ceremony were Mr. W. T. Williams and Mr. Jack Jones, assisted by guards, composed of men and women. Mrs. Earlys Williams sang the "chair song."

Singing, recitations, pianoforte solos, literature competitions, challenge solos and selections by the Women's Chorus and the Male Voice Choir were also enjoyed in the evening division, for which Mr. D. M. Duggan acted as chairman.

Excellency of entries received from Welsh folk in Calgary, Alix, Woodriver, Ponoka, Red Deer, Granville in the United States, North Wales and Edmonton, made competition interestingly keen and the task of the judges most difficult. Mr. Rhyddid Williams of Lethbridge was musical adjudicator and Professor J. T. Jones and Mrs. M. A. Davies of Alix judged the recitations.

During the afternoon session, which was the children's section, J. J. Duggan was chairman, Eos Y. Garth was conductor. An excellent standard was maintained by the youthful entrants in the pianoforte solos, singing and recitations. D. M. Duggan was chairman at the evening session, devoted to the adult's section.

Accompanists during the afternoon and evening sessions were Miss Ivy M. Stanley, A.T.C.M., and Miss Roberta Williams, both of Edmonton. William R. Davies was general secretary.

Surprise! For Big Daddy Bunny, Easter Morning

Easter bunnies! They typify the joyous season of the year when the dullness of winter is lifted. And here, Daddy Rabbit looks benignly at his two cute young "bunnies."

the social round . . . .

Springtime is here again, and with it comes the glorious feast of Easter! Although, today, Easter is celebrated as a Christian festival which tells us that in old pagan days the Goddess of Spring, known in Teuton mythology as Oslera—from which the name Easter is derived—was honored with a great festival at this time.

At Easter, we, too, celebrate a festival of springfor nature awakens from her death-like winter sleep.

So on Easter day, all over the world, flowers are trees become green and flowers come to life again, seen in great profusion. Homes and churches are resplendent with their beauty—and every man, woman and child wants to wear flowers of some kind.

All flowers are appropriate for Easter, but the stately, majestic Easter lily has become the accepted favorite for this joyous time. The lily is more closely entwined with religion and faith than any other flower. In the Bible, references to the lily are frequent, and it is used as a symbol of faith, humility and purity.

There are many legends regarding the lily—but two that come from old Judea in Palestine are especially inspiring. One legend has it that when the Savior arose from the tomb, the earth was said to be marked by white lilies, which sprang up and blossomed in His footsteps.

The other is that when Christ walked in Gethsemane the night before His death, every flower in the garden bowed its head before His agony—all except the lily, which said: "He chose me as the most beautiful of all, and gorgeous above the splendor of kings. I will stand erect and comfort Him with my beauty and fragrance." As the Savior passed, He stopped a moment to gaze at the beautiful flower shining in the moonlight. The lily was so overcome by His humility and its own unworthiness that it bowed its head in shame. Since that day, it is said the lily has never held its head erect.

The Easter lily, as we know it today, is a comparative newcomer to our shores. About the year 1875 bulbs were brought to this country by a Philadelphia woman, and given to a florist of that city. In the course of a few years they had increased greatly and were bought by an enterprising florist, who named them after himself, Lilium Harrisi, and who introduced them all over the country.

EDITH DAKIN IS CHARMING EASTER BRIDE

One of the most prettily arranged ceremonies of the early spring-time season was that at which Miss Edith Dakin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dakin became the bride of Mr. Robert Robson Stoker, only son of Mrs. Stoker and the late Mr. Mrs. Stoker, in McDougall United church at a quarter to eight o'clock on Thursday evening.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was prettily gowned in an exquisitely moulded gown of white satin, worn with a flowing veil of point lace, caught with orange blossoms. Her shoes and accessories were in silver and she carried a bouquet of Madonna lilies. A cameo bracket and ring, gift of the bridegroom, were her only ornaments.

Mrs. H. Mallory, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor and was prettily gowned in pink net. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and wore a cameo brooch.

Two bridesmaids, Miss M. Robson, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss J. Stoker, his sister, were becomingly frocked in pink lace. Their flowers were pink carnations and they each wore a cameo pendant.

Mr. C. M. Rowell was best man and Mr. R. Dakin, brother of the bride, and Mr. W. Arnelt acted as ushers.

Mr. C. Marl played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mrs. R. S. Emmott sang "A Dawning."

Following the ceremony a reception to more than 70 guests was held in the Peacock room of the Shasta cafe.

To travel with the bridal party, Mrs. Dakin wore an attractive costume in navy blue softly trimmed with white point lace. Her shoes and accessories were in navy and she wore a corsage of deep pink carnations.

Mr. Earl Dutton was master of ceremonies. Mr. H. McFarland proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the bridegroom.

During a short after-dinner program, Miss W. Crowther, who was accompanied at the piano by Mr. A. Dutton, sang delightfully and seven-year-old little Miss Robert Bissett played several piano selections.

Mr. and Mrs. Stoker will make their home in Edmonton.

A BEDTIME STORY

Story by HAL. COCHRANE — Pictures by GEORGE SCARBO

"Help, help," cried Duncy, filled with fright. "I'm running, now, with all my might, but I soon will be captured by a very big, black bear.

"I'm out of breath and I can't rest. The bear is running much too fast. I didn't harm the fellow, and this really isn't fair."

The Tinies heard him and rushed to his aid. "This will wake him up and do him lots of good.

"Let's just look on and watch the race. Say, Duncy's getting quite a pace." The old man said. "I'll stop the bear whene'er you think I should."

"Oh, let him catch our little friend. 'Twill be a dandy way to end the funny race," said Scouty.

(READ THE STORY THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

ed out. "He's in a mess, without a doubt," said Goldy. "Hey, prospector, can't you chase that bear away?"

We don't want Duncy injured, and we beg of you to lend a hand. Inside your cabin, after this, we'll see Duncy ought to stay."

The old prospector smiled. Said he, "Now, listen, all you tots, to me. That big bear is a pet of mine. He wouldn't hurt a child.

"The chase, to him, is heaps of fun. Oh, my, just watch old bruin run. Whenever he gets full of pep like that, he's simply wild."

"The joke's on Duncy. I am glad, because he is a lazy lad," said Copper. "Duncy's getting all tired out.

"There is no real cause for alarm, since your tame bear will do no harm." The bear then grabbed at Duncy, and the fun began to shout.

Then bruin lifted Duncy high, and Goldy yelled, "Oh my, oh my! The lad, now, knows the bear is tame. A smile is on his face.

"Hey, bruin, bring our playmate here." The bear did, and it brought a cheer. With Duncy in his arms the bear walked all around the place.

Smart New Hair Styles Suit Chic Spring Hats

By GLADYS GLAD

Historians claim that Catherine the Great, of Russia, possessed an amazing number of differently coiffed wigs. Catherine changed her wigs frequently, for she had a decided yen for variety, it seems. But she wasn't very different in that respect than we moderns, for we, too, like to vary our coiffures now and then.

As I told you in a recent article, the new coiffures that have been designed for spring and summer are certainly chic and intriguing. I described a number of them to you recently, and today I'll tell you about a few more of the smarter ones. Try some of them, if you want a new coiffure to go with your new spring bonnet.

One of the smartest of the new coiffures is designed especially for the girl with delicate, piquant features. The hair is parted on the left and combed straight back off the forehead. A horizontal wave is then fashioned at each temple and the hair combed behind the ears. Some fluffy ringlets are fashioned at the front of each for softness. Then the hair is waved flat to the head at the back and a number of small pin curls made. When the hair is combed out, these curls are brushed around the finger to form soft, horizontal curls at the nape of the neck.

Another of the new coiffures designed for the vernal season is ideal for the oval-faced type. The hair is parted in the centre and waved softly back off the face and behind the ears. Very tiny tendrils of hair are then arranged in wispy ringlets, extending from each temple to each ear. Then the wave is continued around the back of the head, and the ends of the hair are fashioned into curls, or into a narrow roll that hugs the head from ear to ear.

Many of the new hair styles are fashioned to harmonize with the old-fashioned poke bonnets that many of the smart young gir's will be sporting in the annual Easter parade. A horizontal parting is made at the front of the head, and this portion of the hair is fashioned into a frou-frou of soft ringlets that tumble softly down on the forehead. The rest of the hair is combed straight back from this parting, and soft shadow waves fashioned in it. The hair comes down in this waving so that only half the ear is revealed. And at the back, the hair is fashioned into brush curls.

Your Children -

By OLIVE ROBERTS BARTON

The saying goes that people are better judged by a cross section of their lives than by the incident. And, although the law does not work on this plan, I agree that the good and the bad of any individual, mixed together, make the blend that is his color.

All of us are gray. Only the new born babe is white. The shades of gray vary as much as the number of people on the earth. Each has his own tint.

And so it is with children. Each is a mixture of obedience and disobedience, cruelty or kindness, selfishness or generosity, duty and carelessness, just as we are.

O. R. Barton

Yet we don't think of them this way very often. Let a child do the things we lay out for him six days out of seven, and on the seventh day lead us a merry chase, and there are no words to express our discouragement.

Even in one day a child goes up and down in his conduct ratio. Perhaps he is good until three o'clock. Then suddenly something tempts him to stamp in ranks or to hide someone's hat, or tweak a hair ribbon.

Gone is his reputation as a "good" boy. The teacher says, "Henry, I am surprised at you. Surprised and disappointed."

A fall from grace at home is seldom overlooked, either.

"But what am I to do?" cries Mrs. Brown. "Henry can't be allowed to play the radio when he knows he must study. I keep at him and at him, and finally get him to work. But I dread to see seven o'clock coming. It's good, otherwise."

This is something different. It is neither the impulsive act nor the unpremeditated slip. It is something that has taken deeper root. When things are like this, repeated scoldings and coaxings are a waste of time.

"Don't touch that radio. Now get to work," should be sufficient. If Henry knows what an order is, he will obey. If not, then there is something wrong with his training.

But even this terrible crime of Henry's, plus a few tricks in school, plus a fight now and then, balkiness, forgetfulness, or any of the hundred things that small boys fall in—if they add up to ten per cent, say, of his whole character picture, he's still pretty white. At least a very pale gray. I don't call him a bad boy if the ninety per cent or even less is found in his pepper and salt mixture. What a sap he would be if he were 100 per cent perfect!

Playboy Husbands Make Poor Mates

Recently the girls in a famous women's college were asked to define their ideal man and to tell just what qualities they most desired in a husband. The reply made older people feel like smiling out of one side of their mouths and crying out of the other. Their desires were so young, so craving for the joy of life, so ignorant of life itself, so impossible of fulfillment.

The one thing that these girls wanted in a husband, more than anything else, was for him to be a playboy. They wanted a husband who would "show them a good time," one who would "get around," one who would "always be ready to go places and do things," one who would "have lots of friends who would be fun" and who would "always be a popular member of the crowd."

Of course the explanation of this remarkable choice of husbandly qualifications is the result of these girls being at the playtime of life when their brains, if any, are in thier feets, and when all that seems important in the world are dats and chiffons and partners whose steps match theirs in the dance. They cannot even imagine ever getting tired of amusing themselves, or being bored at night clubs, sick of restaurants and desiring something more of the men to whom they are married than be merely escorts.

Dorothy Dix

O' course, older women who have had experience with the actualities of matrimony could tell these girls that for a man to love good times does not automatically fit him to be a good husband. Quite the reverse because, after all, marrizge is no picnic. It is a hard-working proposition in which a woman wants a yoke-mate who will pull his share of the load, instead of a playmate who will trip the light fantastic toe with her.

No matter how gay and pleasure-mad a girl is before marriage, she automatically has to settle down after marriage when the babies begin coming and she has no one to leave them with at night. Besides she has the housework to do. Money is scarce and after the rent and the grocery bill and the doctor's bills are paid there isn't much left with which to buy pretty frocks and pay cover charges and for champagne at expensive places of amusement.

Then it is, if a girl has married a boy because he loved a good time and to go places and do things that she is likely to find that he steps out without her and leaves her at home to give the baby its bottle and darn his socks. For the man who loves a good time always goes out to seek it, and he doesn't always take his wife along with him.

However, one need not take too seriously schoolgirls' ideals of the kind of a man they would like to marry. Some day a chap comes whistling down the street and then all their cherished theories go blooey and they only know that he is IT.

Sunday Night Supper Is Ideal Easter Party

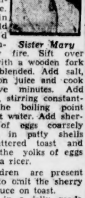
By MARY E. DAGUE

An ideal Easter party is a Sunday night supper. It's a good time to entertain both grown-ups and young people and mark my word, grown-ups will find just as much pleasure in the tricks you plan for the children as will the children themselves.

CREAMED EGGS AND MUSHROOMS

One pound mushrooms, 4-tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, 1 cup milk, ½ cup cream, 3 tablespoons sherry (optional but good), 4 hard cooked eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, few drops onion juice.

Clean mushrooms and slice. Melt butter in sauce pan, add mushrooms and simmer ten minutes over a low fire. Sift over flour and stir with a wooden fork until perfectly blended. Add salt, pepper and onion juice and cook and stir for five minutes. Add milk and cream, stirring constantly. Bring to the boiling point and put over hot water. Add sherry and whites of eggs coarsely chopped. Serve in patty shells or on hot buttered toast and sprinkle with the yolks of eggs pressed through a ricer.



Sister Mary

If small children are present you may want to omit the sherry and serve the sauce on toast.

Fruits served in a jelly made with grape juice make a beautiful and appropriately colored salad for an Easter party.

EASTER PARTY CAKE

Two eggs, 1-4 cup orange juice, 1 tablespoon lemon juice, 3-4 cup sugar, 1-4 teaspoon grated orange rind, 1 cup flour, 1-4 teaspoon soda, few grains salt.

Beat whites and yolks of eggs separately. Beat yolks until thick and lemon colored and then beat in fruit juices, sugar and grated orange rind. Add whites of eggs beaten until stiff and fold in flour mixed and sifted with soda and salt. Turn into a small loaf or tube pan and bake in a moderate oven (325 degrees F.) for thirty-five to forty minutes. Cover with

LEMON FROSTING

One tablespoon grated orange rind, 3 tablespoons butter, 3 cups (about) confectioner's sugar, 2 tablespoons lemon juice, 1 tablespoon water, few grains salt.

Cream grated orange rind and butter. Gradually beat in 1 cup confectioners' sugar. Beat in lemon juice and water alternately with remaining sugar, adding just enough sugar to make the frosting of the right consistency to spread. Always beat after each addition until the mixture is perfectly smooth. Beat in salt. If you want the frosting a deeper yellow tint with a drop or two of yellow vegetable coloring.

To make the bunnies, cut marshmallows with sharp scissors to make tiny pointed ears. Then cut tiny pieces of gum drops and put a piece under each ear to hold it in. With your fingers pinch the marshmallow to make the body longer and then pinch in a tail. Dip a toothpick in red vegetable coloring to make eyes and noses.

Monday's Menu

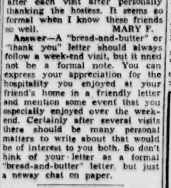
What To Do



I know the subject of the "bread-and-butter" letter has been discussed many times, but I frequently visit, and I'm wondering if it is necessary to write a note of thanks after each visit after personally thanking the hostess. It seems so formal when I know these friends so well.

MARY F.

Answer—A "bread-and-butter" or "thank you" letter should always follow a week-end visit, but it need not be a formal note. You can express your appreciation for the hospitality you enjoyed at your friend's home in a friendly letter and mention some event that you especially enjoyed over the week-end. Certainly after several visits there should be many personal matters to write about that would be of interest to you both. So don't think of your letter as a formal "bread-and-butter" letter, but just a way to chat on paper.

Pay Yourself Rent . . .

Some persons argue that interest on the value of the home, insurance, upkeep and high taxes, make home-owning a poor investment. This is hardly the true unless it be assumed that the landlord is a philanthropist who relieves his tenant of the various items of cost that are inseparable from the ownership of property. Building houses for rental purposes was always a good investment. BUILD YOUR OWN HOME.

GOOD FRIDAY OBSERVED IN ROME CHURCH

Garbed Priests Create Din As Part of Traditional Rite

By CHARLES GUPTILL
Associated Press Staff Writer

ROME, April 11.—Black-garbed priests, banging their prayer-books violently on their kneeling benches in St. Peter's, climaxed last night Rome's Good Friday observance.

TRADITIONAL RITE

The din which the clergy created was part of a traditional rite symbolizing the confusion of nature at the death of Christ. It occurred at the conclusion of the mourning services conducted by Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Papal secretary of state and high priest of St. Peter's.

SIMILAR SERVICES

Elsewhere in Rome's many churches similar services were conducted. At sunset those churches which bear the name of the Virgin Mary held the "Desolata" ceremonies dedicated to the grief of the Virgin Mother as she stood at the foot of the cross.

Many an Italian community had its own traditional Good Friday observance. In the village of Grassina, near Florence, peasants joined in the presentation of "Gesu Morto," Italian equivalent of the Oberammergau Passion Play. They joined in a vast procession representing Christ's journey to Calvary. Nine of their number carried on their shoulders a canopied bier supporting the recumbent figure of the Saviour.

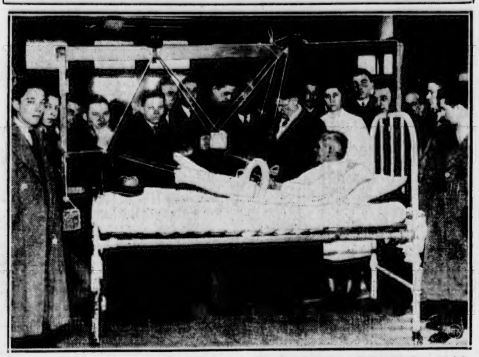
KNELT TO PRAY

The procession paused at three tall crosses on a hill where the participants knelt to pray. Afterwards the peasants led their livestock into the village church to have them sprinkled with holy water and blessed by the priests.

The mourning atmosphere was accentuated in Rome last night by the closing of all motion picture theatres and other amusement resorts.

Barberry bushes harbor a rust that attacks wheat. For that reason they are undesirable in wheat-growing sections.

Lesson To Reckless Drivers



Hammering home a lesson in safety to reckless drivers, Municipal Judge John Gutknecht, shown at left of the nurse, conducted 39 youthful speeders to the Chicago Hospital bedside of John McCann, a traffic victim, shown with his injured limbs strapped up and elevated. Following that, the party visited the morgue and the offenders contributed a fund of about $200 to aid victims of careless driving.

Major And Minor Notes

Among the churches that will feature music in connection with Easter services is Knox United, over the musical destinies of which, W. M. Mawer presides as organist and choirmaster.

Mr. Mawer will direct the following program for his two Easter services:

Morning: Organ prelude, 'Easter Morning,' Malling; anthem, 'They have taken away the Lord,' Stainer; anthem, "As it began to dawn," Martin; offertory, "Intermezzo in D flat," Hollins; solo, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," Handel, Mrs. F. G. Sutherland; organ postlude, "Triumphal March," Grison.

Evening: Organ prelude, "Selection of Easter Carols," arranged by W. M. M.; anthem, "Break forth into joy," West; solo, "The Lord is risen," Sullivan, Mrs. Adam Smith; anthem, "King All Glorious," Barnby, soloists, J. Richardson and R. Huggett; offertory, "Andante," Beethoven; solo, "Hosannah," Granier, Mr. Frank Williams; chorus, "Hallelujah," (Messiah) Handel; organ postlude, "Offertoire in C minor," Wely.

Musicians hereabouts will learn with the most profound regret of the death of W. H. Tompkinson, in Los Angeles. For several years Mr. Tompkinson was prominent as a pianist and musical director here, holding positions in several local theatres in the pre-talking pictures days. For several years he was the musical director of the Macdonald hotel, where his orchestra became famous throughout the West for its excellence. Later he went to New York where he firmly established himself in musical circles. Later he migrated to the Pacific Coast. Mr. Tompkinson was a pianist of consummate ability and a highly trained, efficient executive.

Below is the program of the eagerly awaited joint recital by Harold Samuel, pianist and Arthur Cranmer, baritone, which will be given in McDougall auditorium on Friday evening next under the auspices of the Edmonton Musical Festival Association:

Pianoforte: Chromatic Fantasia and Fugue (Bach), Harold Samuel.

Pianoforte a—In der Nacht (Schumann); b—Fabel (Schumann); c—Nocturne in E flat, Op. 55 (Chopin); d—Etude in A flat, Op. 10, No. 10 (Chopin) Harold Samuel.

Pianoforte: a—La fille aux cheveux de lin (Debussy); b—Danse de Puck (Debussy); c—Rhapsody in E flat (Brahms) Harold Samuel.

Songs: a—"The Fairy Lough" (Stanford); b—"Why so pale and wan" (Parry); c—"As ever I saw" (Peter Warlock) "The Water's mill" (Vaughan Williams); e—"Money O" (Michael Head) Arthur Cranmer.

TRAFFIC RULES FOR VIOLATORS TAUGHT IN CITY

Violators' School Sentence Given In Cases At Milwaukee

MONTREAL, April 11—A "Violators School," to which traffic offenders are sentenced one night a week for six weeks, is Milwaukee's main wapon in a drive for safer streets, says Dr. B. L. Corbett, Milwaukee Safety Commissioner.

But motorists were not the only law-breakers, Dr. Corbett said when interviewed here. Pedestrians too need education in the avoidance of "jay-walking," even though there is a special white "walk" signal included in Milwaukee traffic lights.

Former speedsters were inclined to take their time, he said, since police started recording offences on the back of driving licenses. It's either a case of no speed or no car. Automobiles of gross offenders are confiscated.

Fear For Safety Of Aged Trapper

CHURCHILL, Man., April 11—Anxiety for safety of Bill Mackenzie, 76-year-old trapper, developed here Friday as he became long overdue in travelling here from Caribou Post, 100 miles northwest of this Manitoba seaport. Mackenzie was expected here two weeks ago.

Treacherous ice conditions has prevented a search being made for Mackenzie but as soon as possible a search party will leave here to investigate.

Jesus Triumphs Over Death

Illustrated Sunday School Lesson

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell and Alfred J. Buescher

COPYRIGHT, 1936, CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

Early in the morning of the first day of the week certain women came with spices to finish embalming Jesus' body. They were amazed to find the tomb open and the great stone rolled away from the door.

Entering the tomb they found the body of Jesus was not there. Two angels spoke to them, saying, "Why seek ye the living among the dead? He is not here but is risen."

The women rushed back to tell the apostles what they had seen and heard. The apostles regarded their words as idle tales and would not believe. But Peter and John ran to the tomb and saw and believed.

That afternoon as Cleopas and another disciple walked to Emmaus, Jesus joined them and talked with them. But they did not recognize Him until they were eating in their home. Then they hurried to Jerusalem to tell the apostles.

HONORED NAME IS REMEMBERED

In the Christian World the name of Dr. Francis E. Clarke, founder of the Christian Endeavor Movement and for years its head is loved and revered by a great host among the youth of many lands. Dr. Daniel A. Poling grew up in the Movement, beginning in a Junior Society and rising stage by stage until Dr. Clark, himself nominated him as his successor, President of the International Society. Two years later when the great leader was called to his rest, Dr. Poling became the World's inspiring chairman. It is generally agreed that he "is the right man in the right place." He has both the physical and spiritual qualities to charm young people and inspire confidence among the old. His many duties caused him to resign the pastorate of the Marble Collegiate church, New York, one of the historic Presbyterian congregations. At present he is in Australia where Christian Endeavor has many organized members; he last World convention was held a few months ago in Budapest.

First Service In Australia

The first Christian service in Australia was held 148 years ago under a tree near Sydney. An interesting anniversary was observed under the auspices of the Church of England's Men's Society. Along with Archbishop Mowll, the heads of other denominations took part, namely: Rev. V. Clark-Duff, Moderator of the State Presbyterian Assembly; Rev. M. K. Gilmore, President of the Methodist Conference, Dr. G. W. Thatcher Chairman of the Congregational Union and Rev. A. Driver President of the Baptist Union. One of the speakers stated that in contrast with the day of small things Australia now possessed churches, manses, theological institutions and other buildings erected for religious purposes valued at not less than £50,000,000. The Bible used at the first service was in the pulpit.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

"Are Sin, Disease, and Death Real" is the subject of the Lesson-Sermon at the local Christian Science Church and at all Christian Science Churches tomorrow. The following is one of the Scriptural quotations contained in the Lesson-Sermon: "Bless the Lord, O my soul, and forget not all his benefits: Who forgiveth all thine iniquities; who healeth all thy diseases; Who redeemeth thy life from destruction; who crowneth thee with lovingkindness and tender mercies" (Psalms 103:2-4). One of the correlative passages from "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy, is as follows (page 482): "Does God send sickness, giving the mother her child for the brief space of a few years and then taking it away by death? . . . Instead of God sending sickness and death, He destroys them, and brings to light immortality. Omnipotent and infinite Mind made all and includes all. This Mind does not make mistakes and subsequently correct them. God does not cause man to sin, to be sick, or to die."

Noted Preacher Creates Record

Dr. J. D. Jones, the popular Congregational minister of Richmond-hill church, Bournemouth, England, would be named in any list of the ten greatest leaders in the pulpit today. He is a wonder. He has been forty-seven years a minister, thirty-seven being in his present charge. All the gifts of Nature have been bestowed on him; a fascinating personality; a marvellous voice; the gift of making and inspiring friends; always calm and for ever busy; an expository preacher and although he reads closely from his manuscript, a pin could be heard dropping in the congregation. He is the statesman among Congregationalists, having led the Forward Movement Campaign when $2,500,000 was raised for the church. Recently his legion of friends are urging him to forget about the age of retirement.

Revival Meet Is Successful

The Revival Campaign in the Pentecostal Tabernacle has been launched with keen interest. The Kentucky Evangelist, Ass F. Miller is holding the interest of the crowd with forceful messages from the Gospel of Christ. His subjects this past week have been of a sane and practical type, giving much food for thought. The theme of the campaign, as expressed in both the songs and preaching of the Evangelist, is for a revival of the old gospel-message, which he believes is still the power of God unto Salvation to every one that believes. Mr. Miller has just come from Eastern Canada, where he has conducted successful revival meetings at Hamilton, London, Owen Sound, Kitchener, Toronto and other Eastern cities.

HUGILL PREDICTS DEBT PROBLEM TO BE FORGOTTEN SOON

Thinks Alberta To Stand Ace-High In Markets Of World

Edmonton Bulletin

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER IN PUBLIC SERVICE

LOVE ASSAILS REGAL SWEDE

His Highness, Prince Bertil of Sweden, (above), 24 years old, son of Crown Prince Gustav Adolf of Sweden and grandson of King Gustav V. of Sweden, is in Nice, France, to plead his romantic cause before his grandfather. Bertil hopes to overcome royal objections to his proposed marriage to a Stockholm shopgirl, Miss Margarita Brambeck. The girl is the daughter of a captain in the Swedish navy.

Attorney-General Tells Calgary Audience "We Are Going to Try to Live Within Our Income."

CALGARY, April 11—Alberta's debt problem would be forgotten in a comparatively short time and the province would stand "ace-high in the markets of the world," was the prediction Attorney-General J. W. Hugill, K.C., left with bondholders and citizens last night.

"We are going to try to live within our income," Mr. Hugill declared when he spoke at a banquet of the Oil and Gas Shareholders' Association here Thursday night. Premier Aberhart of Alberta, expected to be chief speaker, was unable to attend.

RAPS PARTY POLITICS

There was no room for party politics in Alberta, the Attorney-General told the gathering after paying tribute to "constructive criticism" given by J. J. Bowlen, leader of the Liberal opposition in the legislature, during the last session.

Intensive development of potential oil lands in Alberta in the near future was forecast by Mr. Hugill who said more than 250,000 acres had been covered by prospecting permits issued during the last few months.

LICENSE STOCK BROKERS

New amendments to the Securities Act, formerly the Security Frauds Prevention Act, provided for registration of new oil companies and licensing of stock brokers with the Board of Public Utility Commissioners, at present consisting of Judge A. A. Carpenter, the attorney general stated.

The Alberta government was ready to investigate any bona-fide complaint respecting operation of an oil company or a brokerage house, Mr. Hugill said, but the government would have to possess good grounds for launching an expensive investigation if there were not good grounds, it would be necessary for the group applying for an investigation to meet the expense.

$70,000,000 INVESTED

Approximately $70,000,000 had been invested in Turner Valley up to the close of 1935, Mr. Bowlen told the shareholders. Value of naphtha and light crude recovered between 1913 and 1935 inclusive was $27,000,000 and the value of natural gas during the same period about $10,000,000.

Erection of a cairn or memorial by the provincial government, in honor of the late A. W. Dingman, pioneer oil operator and driller of the Discovery well in Turner Valley, was proposed by J. C. Noell, president of the Shareholders' association.

Mr. Noell described Mr. Dingman as "a man responsible for the development of one of the three great oil fields in the world," and said both the Dominion and provincial governments had benefitted by hundreds of thousands of dollars due to the activities of Mr. Dingman.

Succumbing to a heart attack while dancing at the Emery Hall Friday evening, Emil Priche, 35, of 10210 99 street, died on the way to the hospital.

It is reported that Priche had been dancing a fast fox trot when he suddenly collapsed on the floor. An ambulance was called but he died en route to the hospital.

Priche had been suffering from a heart ailment for sometime, stated his wife. No inquest will be held. He is well known in the city having been in the barbering business for several years.

Gay Lad Makes Sweep Of Saddle Classes At Show

The wins were outstanding in that Gay Lad went on to win after an unfortunate accident in which the horse was scared and jumped into the arena after climbing a flight of six steps. According to his handlers the horse was struck by a trailer which was being moved and the unexpected blow caused him to become momentarily unmanageable.

Gleaned From Today's News

Mr. Justice T. M. Tweedie left Thursday night for the coast for a short visit during the Easter season.

E. L. Brisbane, executive of the Canadian National Carbon Company, arrived in the city from Calgary Saturday morning to attend a one-day convention of his concern in session at the Macdonald hotel.

Held overnight at Lac la Biche by adverse weather, Pilot Marlowe Kennedy of Mackenzie Air Service, left that point at 11:30 a.m. and was expected to arrive at South Cooking Lake about 12:30 p.m. He has six passengers.

TINY MOOCHERS PREY ON NAIVE LOCAL CITIZENS

"Gimme a nickel, Mister?"

A small, shy face, framing a sharp, observing eye, looks up as the query is put. About once in three times the solicitee fishes quickly in his pocket, hands out a nickel and quickly brushes by.

But it's a racket and the apparently naive youngsters know all about it, number of small boys, incorporated but working singly, have apparently been making a good thing of the gimme-a-nickel business by a modernizing gimme-a-nickel angle. Standing on a street car corner, particularly in the evening, they can count on making with fair frequency.

Chief Constable A. G. Shute stated he knew juvenile pan-handling was carried on to some extent, although complaints had not been made to the police department.

"Naturally a man does not wish to report such a small incident to the police," the chief said, "but he should at least give these youngsters a sharp talking-to. They are never in need of the money and they should not be encouraged in this practice."

Little girls played at pan-handling more than little boys, according to Chief Shute. "I have seen them ask for nickels more often than boys.

"Another bad practice of youngsters in some localities in this city is going up to men who are slightly under the influence of liquor and asking them for money. This should be watched and reported," the police head said.

Heavy Demand For Licenses By Autoists Made

Improvement of weather in the last few days has greatly increased the demand for the issuance of motor plates and drivers' licenses, according to provincial government officials.

While no definite figures are available, it is estimated from reports received from various parts of the province, that the licenses issued are well up to the figures of the corresponding period of last year.

In addition to the auto plates licenses there has been a heavy demand for drivers' licenses.

On Saturday morning large numbers of motorists crowded the license and drivers' license offices getting their plates and cards and keeping officials working overtime. It is estimated that several hundred of each class were issued on Saturday.

Mayor Speaks At Sandlot Banquet

Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, K.C., was the principal speaker and presented the prizes Thursday night when the Sandlot hockey league held its annual party in Alexandra hall. Orange Crush, Falcon Juniors and Buchanan Bandaliers midgets were the teams thus honored.

Rev. J. T. Stephens of Buchanan United church, presented baseball hats to every member of the midget club and eulogized them for their play through the season. A. W. Barnes, president of the league, presided.

UNIQUE STORY BEHIND DINNER FOR S. MORRIS

There is an interesting story behind a public luncheon given in the Macdonald hotel Thursday night by W. G. Morris, Edmonton, in honor of his son Sidney, who swept the boards at the Edmonton Spring Livestock Show this week with his Aberdeen Angus steer.

Young Sidney won the Prince of Wales trophy, the Edmonton Exhibition challenge cup, the Lieutenant-Governor's silver medal and $100 in prizes for exhibiting the champion animals in the children's calf feeding contest. The Grand Champion steer is the best beef animal in the show was also awarded to Sidney's entry and the Edmonton Exhibition Association gold medal was won by him as a result.

Mr. Morris invited his personal friends and representatives of the institutions which have given his son assistance and encouragement in the proper way of selecting and fitting livestock. Provincial and federal government representatives, packing house representatives, livestock commission men, the managers of the Edmonton Stock Yards and Edmonton Exhibition Association officials were among those invited. Forty guests attended.

A unique feature of the dinner was the fact that Roy Ballorm of Wetaskiwin, who bred the prize winning steer, W. G. Morris, the boy's father, Sidney Morris, the exhibitor, and J. H. Wildman, T. Eaton Company, purchaser of the animal, were all present at the dinner.

The foundation for Sidney's success as a livestock producer was laid several years ago when his father took him to the Edmonton Spring Livestock Show to use exhibits from the best farms in northern Alberta. Sidney entered a little white calf which cost him $4.00 as his first exhibit and has improved his entry every year.

PREMIER OFF TO CALGARY

Premier William Aberhart leaves on Saturday for Calgary, where he will spend the week-end, speaking at the Prophetic Bible Institute on Sunday. He will remain over to attend the wedding on Tuesday of Hon. Ernest C. Manning, minister of trade and industry. Later in the week he will speak at the annual convention of the Alberta Teachers' association and will then go on to Vancouver for a two weeks' holiday, returning here in about two weeks.

Hon. J. W. Hugill, K.C., attorney general, will be acting premier in the absence of both Premier Aberhart and Hon. Mr. Manning.

Want Swim Pool

SASKATOON, April 10 — Members of the Nutana high school board are faced with deciding whether they should give permission to students to hold a swimming party in the school gymnasium. The students have informed the board they have already raised a fund of $2,500 towards its cost which they estimate at $10,000.

Police Court

Convicted on a charge of bigamy, George Straber, Lloydminster, was sentenced to two years less one day at Fort Saskatchewan by Magistrate James Ritchie in police court Saturday.

Straber pleaded guilty to the offense. His first wife, whom he married in 1930, left him following a family quarrel and went to Duluth, where she is now living. The second wife is living at Lloydminster.

An Edmonton man who advertised the sale of a return ticket to Vancouver and sold the same was charged with a breach of the railways act. He was fined $20 and costs or 30 days. Unable to meet the fine he went to jail.

Ben Lopatinsky, charged with theft was fined $3 and costs or 7 days. One of his accomplices, Bill McDonald, received a similar fine while the other, Paul Foisik, was given six months suspended sentence.

John Buck, charged with keeping liquor for sale in a downtown rooming house, pleaded not guilty. The case was adjourned until Wednesday.

Mary Day, charged with vagrancy, was remanded until Wednesday for hearing.

SPECIAL MUSIC FOR EASTER IN CITY CHURCHES

Special music and sermons will feature Easter Sunday in all city churches. Music in particular will play a prominent part, being specially appropriate, in view of the fact that some of the most enduring of religious music has been composed for this season.

Churches will be decorated with Easter lilies and other flowers and with the promise of reasonably fair weather, congregations are expected to be large.

In the afternoon there will be the Easter Parade along the main streets of the city when new finery and the latest in automobile models will be displayed.

First Presbyterian, All Saints, McDougall United, Central United, St. Joseph's Cathedral and many other churches have arranged for special sermons.

Choirs in some cases have been augmented for the occasion and congregations will hear such lasting works as excerpts from "The Messiah," "La Crucifixion" and other standard oratorios and cantatas.

In some churches special communion services are being held.

MAYOR SCORES OVERTIME PAY FOR EMPLOYEES

Pay sheets indicate that for a recent two-week period, 20 outside civic employees drew a considerable amount of overtime pay, wages averaging $130 for a fortnight's work, according to Mayor Joseph A. Clarke, K.C. He will report to city council Monday that overtime payment is contrary to his order, and will recommend that it be discontinued in the cases in question.

The twenty men have been working outside city hall should not be given extra time in view of the existing unemployment condition. When there are additional hours to be put in, the work should be given to those working on short time or those who have no jobs at all.

SIX CASES OF TYPHOID HERE

Five cases of typhoid fever and one suspect case of the disease have been reported to the city health department, which plans to employ the services of another physician temporarily duc to the large number of persons suffering from communicable diseases. The total for the week was 400, exclusive of typhoid cases, as compared to 395 last week.

Dr. R. B. Jenkins, medical health officer, he had been busy for the past four days in an attempt to track down the source of the typhoid cases here. Four children and one adult are suffering from the malady, while another adult is believed to have contracted the disease. The health official stated that typhoid is communicable, and he expects by reasons connected with holiday, returning here in about two weeks.

Possible sources of typhoid include contaminated milk, water or food Dr. Jenkins is continuing his investigations in this direction.

Asked whether there was a definite possibility of a typhoid epidemic in Edmonton, the health officer said he did not believe so but warned citizens to report suspicious symptoms immediately to their family physicians or the health department. "Typhoid is sometimes confused with influenza, but early symptoms are similar," he stated. These include headache, depressed spirits and sometimes nose-bleed, together with high temperatures."

The threat of rain on the week-end is perilling Sunday's Easter parade as the forecast Saturday read: "Fair and mild today and Sunday with probable light showers."

Early risers Saturday found cement sidewalks "sweating"; 40 inches of sleet drifted down from overcast skies at daybreak. The slight precipitation, however, did not remove the threat of rain from the Sunday fashion parade on Jasper.

Friday's high of 50 above was reached at 3:00 p.m. from where the mercury fell to a low of 31 above at midnight, holding at that point until 2:00 a.m. Saturday when the long pull back to the 32dier started.

By 9:00 a.m. Saturday at rise was as far up as 38 above, and going higher.

Teachers Give Instruction in Theory and Practice To Boys

In the first of a series of articles published on the Young People's page recently, the work taken by the first year students at the Edmonton Technical School was described. The article below, written by one of the students, is a description of the woodwork and electrical group.—Editor.

On entering the room one would find about two dozen students busily engaged designing various projects. Their equipment consists of T square, 2 angles and 1 scale and various other equipment.

The students learn how to use the instruments properly. Each student's portfolio contains sixteen finished drawings.

The instructor would show you how each drawing finally led the student to capably design practical models. Some of these working drawings that have been designed for practical use are, Footstools, Occasional tables, End tables, Pedestands. Many of the designs include woodcarving, inlay work, and veneering. The construction of these are shown by the working drawings which consist of top view, front view, end view and cross-sectional view.

From here you follow the class to the Woodworking Shop. As it is formed by the instructor, Woodworking 1 comprises 280 minutes per week, 200 of these are spent in practical work.

CARPENTRY IS IMPORTANT

The practical work consists mainly of one piece of carpentry, one piece of cabinet work and one piece of wood turning. Among the carpentry projects I saw a kitchen stool, an ironing board and a beautiful flower box. Among the cabinet work was an inlaid tray, carved boxes, footstools and other beautifully done work. The wood turning consists mainly of table lamps, fruit bowls and such.

The other 80 minutes are spent in learning woodwork theory. This includes the proper caring and use of all woodworking tools. The study of wood from the time of its growth until it is converted into finely made projects. Various kinds and ways of wood finishing and decorative work are included.

The equipment for each student consists essentially of a bench and a set of hand tools. Other equipment is attainable. There are eight lathes for the classes to use but other larger machines are used only by the higher grades.

IS VARIETY

The large variety of projects, the keenness of the students in their work and the well lighted shop with the various machines, cannot help but impress a visitor.

The next shop is the Electrical Shop. Here 80 minutes of theory is taught in this course per week. included much information. Such as, the learning of various electrical laws, magnetism in all of its phases, generating of electricity in the different forms, the study of various circuits, such as bell and lighting circuits, in series and in parallel.

TEACH THEORY

The remaining 200 minutes are spent in applying the theory taught to practical purposes. The projects consist of the making of a number of joints, an electric magnet and a bell transformer, besides these he must wire bell circuits, lighting circuits, and metal light wiring in a room of a frame structure.

When he finishes this first course the student has a good general knowledge of the principal underlying the construction and operation of common electrical appliances and installations.

GIRL GUIDES TO HOLD RALLY ON EASTER MONDAY

A district rally of South Edmonton Girl Guides, on Monday, April 13, at Holy Trinity church will be held for the pleasure and entertainment of the Guides and as a relaxation, from their more serious Guiding activities.

The program will consist of moving picture, selected and shown by Executive Commissioner of Boy Scouts W. S. Buchanan, who himself filmed many of the shots that will be shown. Scenes of life visit of Lord and Lady Baden-Powell will be of particular interest to the Guides. All phases of the movement on the South Side will be present including Brownies, Guides, Rangers, Mother Associations and Local District Association. The evening has been arranged by Mrs. S. H. Gandier, South Side district commissioner. Mrs. F. Butterworth will lead the group in a sing-song.

GUIDE IS ENROLLED

Eileen Hales now of the 2nd Girl Guides of Holy Trinity church was enrolled this week when District Commissioner Mrs. Gandier and Mrs. P. H. Warren, District Secretary, were present on an informal visit. The commissioner taught the girls a dance which was much enjoyed by the girls. Several members of the company recently received their service stars.

SEBA HAS LONE SCOUTS

"Since the beginning of the year, Fred Le Clair of Seba Beach and Gordon Jamieson, R.H.B. of St. Albert, have been registered as Lone Scouts. Jorgen Swanson of Chip Lake has been transferred from the 30th Edmonton Troop to the Lone Scouts. Fred Le Clair passed his Tenderfoot tests on February 4 and his Counsellor and Friend says he has shown a splendid understanding of the Promise.

"We were pleased to hear from Edwin Carlson and Wilfrid Olsen of Owlseye, another recruit and Myrnam and William Simpson, of Bentley, who sent in letters containing their recruiting fees for this year, which we appreciate. Norman Flack of Opal called to see us and visited the 30th Edmonton Troop when he was in Edmonton and has since written to us. To all of you we say 'Thank You,' and we trust others will follow your example."

Lone Scout Essential To World Body

Useful Way to Connect Outlying Districts With Boy Scouts

One of the aims of Boy Scout movement is to bring Scouting and all that it means to the out-door boy, into the lives of those whose homes are off the beaten track and far-distant from settled communities.

It is for these boys that the Lone Scout movement was inaugurated. This feature of Scouting has meant much to those who have availed themselves of its privileges. One of the little things that these boys receive is a regular personal letter from Provincial Scout headquarters, written either by Lone Scout Master, B. H. Backus or Provincial Executive Commissioner W. S. Buchanan.

WRITES LETTER

In his letter to Lone Scouts this week Mr. Backman writes in part as follows:

"Dear 'Lonies': Your Lone Scoutmaster, Mr. Backus, has again extended an invitation to all Lone Scouts to camp beside his lake in the Gluzy Hills. Those who were there last year will assure you that it is a dandy camping spot. The Lone Scouts from Ranfurly who were there last summer, are now organized as a regular Troop with their own Scoutmaster. The fun they had last summer made them more enthusiastic than ever about Scout Training.

"Camp Woods Sylvan Lake, is also available to all Lone Scouts. Provincial Headquarters will conduct a camp there during July. Registrations for this camp should be in early so that the dates can be definitely set.

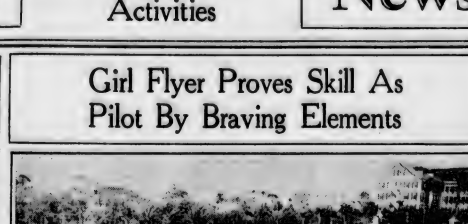
Girl Flyer Proves Skill As Pilot By Braving Elements



Wind and wave held no terrors for petite Elizabeth Burns, who dared both to set this tiny seaplane down at Ormond Beach, Fla., after a perilous flight from New York.

If you think—or even if you do not—that the time's coming when we'll all fly our planes just as we drive our own autos, read this story of Elizabeth Burns.

The other day people were sitting lazily on the veranda of a fashionable Ormond Beach hotel across the street from John D. Rockefeller's home. A tiny speck fell out of the sky in the heat of noon. People scrambled from their chairs and dashed to the beach of the bayou on the Halifax river.

The tiny craft swooped to a neat landing on the river. It was a small seaplane. Out of the cockpit climbed a little girl of 20, weighing exactly 110 pounds, and cute as Christmas. That was Miss Burns, all right.

"It was like this," she explained. "I had no ship in Port Washington, N.Y. I had had it in my mind for some time to run down to Miami and back to visit my father and my mother. The weather was bad, in fact, there was a sleet storm. But I just started.

"I'd never made the trip before, and had no idea about the route, so I just followed the coastline. I had to come down several times, of course. This ship carries only 13 gallons of gas, and I get about 20 miles a gallon.

ELIZABETH BURNS

"I never flew before in any such weather. Once I ran into a storm of fog and wind. Of course I have to land on the water. Once in the Carolinas I dropped into the water and there was nobody around. I just waited for the bad weather to subside, and then I took off and went on.

"I struck strong head-winds just before I hit Ormond Beach, and when I saw the big hotel down below, I thought that would be a good place to light. It was. Here I am. I've telegraphed my father and mother, and they're driving up to meet me."

After an overnight stay, Miss Burns got three or four men at the hotel to push her plane back into the water, and she was away again for Miami Beach to complete her trip as originally planned. She hopped into the tiny, open cockpit, adjusted her helmet, goggles, and zoomed off into the wind. She circled the hotel twice, dipped a wing in salute, waved a hand, and was gone, just like that.

Elizabeth Burns is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy F. Burns, of 56 East Sixty-sixth street, New York, who live part of the year at New Miami Beach home. She works for a flying magazine, and hopes some day to excel Amelia Earhart.

Whether she does or not, Miss Burns is certainly giving the world lessons in how to fly your own plane and think nothing of it.

Boys' And Girls' Fair To Be Best Yet Says Manager Allan Porter

Y. M. C. A. WILL HOLD GYMNASTIC SHOW SATURDAY

The Y.M.C.A. boys will present their display of talent at the Empire theatre on Saturday night as an example of what Edmonton youth can accomplish in entertainment and gymnastics. The 7th annual Corps Leaders Show explains a season's training and effort.

Like the little acorn, these productions have grown from their humble beginnings as a display of gymnastics to one of the city's leading productions of local talent. From two score performers in the Y.M.C.A. Auditorium 6 years ago, these efforts have expanded to 90 entertainers presented on an Edmonton stage for public approval. With Jos. T. Barrett as production manager, the shows are surprising examples of what Edmonton manhood has accomplished in co-ordination of mind and muscle, music and dancing. They display more than just the social and physical pursuits of the institution and for the first time present Y.M.C.A. tap and artistic dancing, displayed last fall by Gordon Garside.

All efforts are voluntary and largely constitute Corps Leaders and their most talented class members. The ages of performers vary from 15 to 35 years. The acts include singing, dancing, gymnastics skill, tumbling acts, pyramid building and the characteristic "Y" quality of good clean humor.

C. A. Forsythe, J. T. Barrett and A. D. Yeoman, class leaders, are deserving of a good deal of credit for the training and preparation of these lads in their annual effort.

New Members Join Girl Guide Group

Beryl Lane, Lilly Berge and Elsie Berthiaume were enrolled as members of the 13th Girl Guide Co. of St. Barnabas church, by Captain Jean Bradley, this week.

Signalling is proving a popular activity with this enthusiastic group and Margaret Johnston and Florence Berthiaume are particularly proficient. Patrols are the Red Robin, under Patrol Leader Lilly Mills, Second Hazel Campbell and the Honesty Patrol, composed entirely of girls learning their tenderfoot work under Lieut. Aileen Pearson.

Many New Classes Open to Competitors This Year

Determined to make the 1936 Boys' and Girls' Fair the biggest that Edmonton citizens have ever witnessed, Allan Porter and his directorate have this week announced a lengthy list of new and novel exhibits, contests and entertainment features. The fair will be held at the Y.M.C.A. buildings, May 6th to 9th.

One of the major innovations is a special class for group exhibits such as airplanes, boats, coaches, etc. Such items of manual training, models and woodcraft as a group names may be entered in this new class.

Kites will have a special class of their own and judging will be based on construction, decoration and design.

Pushmobiles will also have a feature place for lovers of this form of vehicular transportation. It is possible that a pushmobile race may be staged.

ENLARGE CLASS

Announcement is also made of enlargements of classes in the usual class for architectural and industrial drawings.

In the stamp exhibition branch of the fair a new procedure has been adopted, there now being only one main classification for stamps. There are Canada, British Empire and foreign. This is considered a more modern classification. Under these heads there will be various sub-classes.

Bagpipes and drums will enter into this year's fair, being featured in new contests in the music department.

A cup for the open championship in the swimming class will be an additional prize to be competed for this year, for the first time.

For younger fair enthusiasts there will be contests in wagon-coasting, hoop - rolling, marbles, jacks and skipping. Holding of a roller skating contest depends on the number of entries.

PRIZES TO BE GIVEN

The ticket managers announce a large array of prizes and shields for ticket selling contestants. A cup will be awarded the group selling the most tickets.

Boys' and Girls' Fair entries close Monday, May 4 at 6 p.m. unless otherwise specified. Having viewed a large number of shield designs, the fair directorate announces its selection. The cup provides successful entrants with a shield of better design and higher quality than ever before in fair history.

Technical School Now Has Motion Pictures To Help Educate Students

Tech is now taking the modern way of education. This week the Tech students decided to present to the school an up-to-date motion picture projection machine with a first class daylight screen.

The purchase of this equipment is being undertaken by the students themselves. We believe that this installation will be the first of its kind in any of the Edmonton High Schools. Today much valuable teaching material is available for use by motion picture projection and Tech is once more leading the way for the city. Delivery of the machine is expected by the end of April and the students are especially awaiting its arrival and its use by their class room.

This week also marked the winning of the Bantam Hockey Championship by Tech. In honor of this team Tech Grade VIII Girls were hostesses at an afternoon social. The members of the team and teaching staff were present. The team was warmly complimented by Mr. M. J. Hilton, principal of the school, for their clean play and unbroken record. The Bantams won every one of their schedule play-off games during the season.

How far the Tech Junior Hockey team would have got towards winning the championship in their division remains unknown. This was due to the elimination for determining the 1936-37 winners of this division taking place while the Tech Eagle teams were in full swing.

Following the Easter holidays it is expected that softball, baseball and club meetings will get away to a good start.

Baptists To Hold Rally As Final Event Until Fall

Last city-wide item on the agenda of the Baptist Young People, until next fall will be the rally to be held at Emanuel Baptist church on April 20. The city oratorical contest will be held and presentation of the banner to the society with the highest marks for 1935 will be made by Rev. T. B. McDermand.

A special feature of the meeting will be up-to-date lantern slides of the Young People's Convention Camp at Gull Lake. There will also be special music, forsweth Vaughn, president of the city executive will act as chairman.

ROVERS IN ALL PARTS OF WORLD TO CELEBRATE

Edmonton Rover Scouts are joining with Rovers scattered throughout many parts of the world, in celebration of St. George's Day, on the 22nd of April.

The local celebration is part of a group circling the world, in a "synchronized service of remembrance." The germ of this idea was born in Liverpool, England, and now the idea is spreading throughout England, Holland, France, Hungary, Sweden, Nigeria and Palestine. In Palestine, the Rover crew are holding their meeting at the sepulchre of St. George.

Canada is joining in this celebration for the first time this year and this is considered particularly fitting in view of the fact that the Canadian Trade Commissioner will be present and will be the special speaker at the Liverpool service.

Most places holding the service plan to arrange it so that they will be carrying out their programs at the same time, but unfortunately in Edmonton, circumstances make it impossible to do anything more than a day ahead. It will be held in St. John's parish hall where the 22nd Rover crew will be hosts on the occasion of the regular quarterly meeting of Edmonton Rovers. The ceremony will make Edmonton Rovers part of a great international chain, emphasizing the importance of thinking and acting in international interests.

HOLY TRINITY GROUP PREPARES

The Sixth Troop of Holy Trinity church has already fixed its eye on next week's Rover Ranger competition on the 24th of May Field Day and is already making strenuous efforts in the direction of the award for the best bridge built in the shortest time. Not believing in having "all their eggs in one basket," the Sixth Scouts are also concentrating on signalling and under the able direction of Sgt. Morgan MacDonald, expect to annex the signalling cup also.

YOUNG PEOPLE TO HOLD RALLY

Young People of Edmonton churches attending the Interdenominational Young People's Rally to be held in First Presbyterian church, on April 13, will be welcomed by Rev. H. S. Mekeel. Installation of new officers will be conducted by Rev. A. E. Black, who will induct the following: Ella Hudson, president; Blake McKenzie, vice-president; Gwen Roxburgh, recording secretary; Ruth Howard, corresponding secretary; Wilfred Cobbs, treasurer; Larry Speakman, debating convener; Winston Barker, survey; Connie Thompson, athletics. Bill Thornton will give a short report as past president and Rev. Jackson will present leadership training certificates.

Final in the debating league on "the Menace of Communism" will be a feature of the rally with Metropolitan Church meeting MacDonald Baptist. Professor James Adam will act as critic and judges will be, at present, Lieut.-Col. Geo. B. McLeod and Rev. H. S. Mekeel.

SOFTBALL LEAGUE TO START

All Trail Ranger clubs intending to enter a team in the Trail Ranger softball league should forward their entry to their district commissioner as soon as possible as the league is about to get under way. The league is to be divided into two divisions, senior and junior. Bill Moffatt is district commissioner for the Central Section, which includes Eastwood, Central and Westy United, and perhaps Highlands and Buchanan. A member of Knox church is district commissioner in the South Side.

My Mother

By RAY SKOGLUND

I love her for her winning ways.
And for the tender words she says.
Her pretty smile, her soft caress;
The way she comforts me in distress.
The honored way in which she is
The joy in life she takes and gives.
The way she bears the thorns of life.
When lest in sorrow's darkened strife.
She is a friend to all in need,
In kindly words, in thought and deed.
Her winning smile, her kindly face.
Her thoughtful heart, and soul of grace.
This one I write of is my Mother.
To take her place there is no other.

C.G.I.T. Affairs

The two C.G.I.T. groups at Buchanan held their Mother and Daughter Banquet on Friday with an attendance of about seventy. Miss May Sutcliffe spoke on the subject, "C.G.I.T." Comes of Age." The pastor, Mr. Stevens, spoke briefly on "The Church: The Home of C.G.I.T." Miss Gertrude Young led the singing. The senior group gave a skit and the junior girls presented several folk-dances. A vocal duet by Gladys Gotzynsik and Helen Yusup, piano solos by Jean Ward and Helen Greekas and a monologue by Violet Richards were features of a very interesting program.

Metropolitan departmental C.G.I.T. is holding its girls' service on Sunday evening, April 19. Mrs. Johnson, departmental superintendent, Jean Nelson, and Beatrice Mcllan, departmentals present are taking part in the service with the C.G.I.T. attending in uniform. Members are busy preparing for their Mother and Daughter Banquet to take place on Tuesday. An attendance of over two hundred is expected.

Wesley United Church C.G.I.T. groups are holding their Mother and Daughter Banquet on Tuesday, April 14. Mrs. A. C. Farrell will speak on C.G.I.T. past and present, Florence Davies on "Our Mothers' Guests Tonight," and the Rev. E. T. Scragg on "The Home of C.G.I.T.: The Church." The "Boys of a Day at Camp" will be portrayed by Helen Cross and Eileen Roach, a former C.G.I.T., will tell "What C.G.I.T. Has Given to Me." Joyce Craig is to lead the singsong. Mr. J. E. S. McClung will bring greetings from the Sunday School and Howard Croxton from the C.S.E.T. Helen McLennan is to preside as chairman and the banquet will be concluded with a candle-lighting ceremony.

McDougall Club Present Program

The Macs, young men's club of McDougall United Church, brought their March activities to a close with a banquet which was put on before 150 young people at Buchanan Mission on the evening of March 26. Chairman was Mr. Merv. Skenfield, club leader, and Bob Atkin, president, the young men presented an entertaining series of musical selections and comedy sketches to their enthusiastic audience.

Professor H. E. Smith of the University of Alberta addressed the March supper meeting of the Macs Club on "Juvenile Delinquency," dealing interestingly with the major aspects of the problem. The next supper meeting will be held April 15, with J. Layton, speaker.

VICTORIA DANCE WILL BE HELD IN EASTER WEEK

The Students' Union and the Alumni Association are holding Victoria's annual Easter dance this year on April 15 at the Tivoli. This is Victoria's big dance of the year and it promises to be a gala event. An exceedingly attractive dance program has been arranged. In the intermission there will be novelty dance numbers by the Kinney School of Dancing and Jack Taylor. The patronesses are Miss M. R. Crawford, Mrs. R. H. Dobson, Mrs. H. Borden. The committee in charge of the arrangements is Betty Carswell, Mr. Harold Poole, Ernest Sherriff, Mr. George Cook, and Gordon McAfee.

The winners of the Henry shield for debating were Helen Silwood and Cecil Young. The clever young debaters supported the affirmative of the resolution, "Resolved that sweepstakes should be legalized in Canada." The shield was presented to them by Miss Robinson at the dramatic party. Cecil Young was also presented with the medal he won by coming second in the public speaking contest held recently. Miss Robinson congratulated both as a debater and as a public speaker.

The academic crests and V's were given out Thursday to those entitled to them by their standing in the Easter examinations. The dramatic crests were given out also to those who took part in, and helped with, the various plays.

The Vic Argosy came out last week with its usual polished collection, much to the enjoyment of the students who spent the remainder of the day attempting to read it from under cover.

The checker championship is still to be decided between Gordon Pretty and Harry Fedoriuk. Both are excellent players and the contest is an interesting one for checker enthusiasts.

Birthday Banquet Is Feature Affair At Holy Trinity

Brownies of the 2nd Company of Holy Trinity church held their annual birthday banquet recently with the tables beautifully decorated. The most attractive decoration of all was the birthday cake with its ten candles. A charming presentation of "The Pied Piper" was given by the wee Brownies. The youngsters whose ages ranged from eight to eleven years also gave a game called "learning the points of the compass" and incidentally showed that they knew their compass.

Service stars were presented to Sheila Jackson, and Lenore Perry. Guests included District Commissioner Mrs. S. H. Gandier, District Captain Miss Helen Burns, Second Guide Captain H. A. Elliot, Ranger Captain Mrs. A. Ritchie and Guide Lieutenant Miss Leslie Lockerbie. The Mothers' Association of the Brownie Pack acted as hostesses for the evening.

Y.W.C.A. Doings

A reception will be held in Miss H. Hobrecker's honor, on Wednesday by the Leaders Corps, and the Alumni. Members of the physical committee are also helping in the arrangements.

The Beta Pi Gamma will hear a talk, Tuesday, by Miss Hobrecker on, "Other Business Girl's Clubs in Canada."

They will also have their last lecture on Interior Decorating, Tuesday night.

Mrs H. Hobrecker will be guest of honor at a breakfast Wednesday, given by the Quando Quo club. The affair will be held in the Y.W.C.A. cafeteria at 8:45.

The Merry Makers will meet on Wednesday night at the "Y". Following the period of games, supper will be served.

* * *

The Cheery Chums are entertaining at a tea on Thursday, for Miss H. Hobrecker, after which refreshments and the Y.W.C.A. staff. A talk on "Household Codes," and other "Y" across Canada work, will be given by Miss Hobrecker.

Community Hockey Team Is Feted By League Members

The Alberta Avenue Community hockey boys were entertained by the Community League at a party attended by about 100 guests last week.

The evening was spent in games, under the supervision of Mr. C. Bedell, after which refreshments were served by Mrs. A. C. Heptwood.

During the lunch, Mr. Hollingshead gave a few appropriate words to the boys and presented the cup to the junior hockey team who have done such splendid work this season, not being defeated in any games they have played.

Those in attendance were Mr. I. Jones, president of the federation; Mr. and Mrs. C. Lunnie and Mr. and Mrs. Hollingshead, also the Alberta Avenue executive.

After the banquet the young people danced, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Thelma Dobson.

SCOUT PICTURES AT SYLVAN LAKE TO BE RELEASED

Your Young People's correspondent was in this week on a private showing of colored movies of Edmonton Scouts in Camp. Executive Commissioner Backman drew the window blinds in his office during your correspondent's weekly visit, and the show was on.

As the scenes were turned there flashed on the office wall, which performed the function of a silver screen, the beautiful scenery of Sylvan Lake and its environs, all miraculously interpreted in natural color by the new process. The first scenes were taken at last year's camp woods and showed shots of the break of day, signalling, the colored totem poles and of the executive commissioner himself, exhibiting his skill as an archer. Also appearing on the office wall were Scout Master Wally Tyrrell of the 30th Troop of Christ church and his wee tent, together with scenes of the Labor Day Provincial Rover meet with Colonel R. H. Rogers assisting in the tug of war against Rover Leader F. D. Fowler and his proteges.

Shots of the Nancy "J", sailing on Sylvan Lake, and of the Scouts of Cadomin at their camp at Mist Hot Springs, staking mountain sheep and catching Rainbow trout for breakfast, were tantalizing items of the short interlude of Alberta Scouts and nature, which your correspondent had the good fortune to enjoy through the kindness of the Executive Commissioner.

Rev. McDormand Is Recipient Of Snapshot Album

Presented by Cody MacDonald, on behalf of the Strathcona Baptist Young People's Union, Rev. T. B. McDormand was the recipient of a snapshot album, as a gift from the Church Young People's group.

The album is already stacked off with snaps of the "gang" as the youth of his church were affectionately known to Mr. McDormand, who is leaving to accept a call to Amherst, Nova Scotia.

Paul Campbell, medical student at the University of Alberta, was the speaker of the evening, taking as his subject, "The Cross and What It Should Mean to Us." The organization was the Easter meeting of the group.

On Wednesday the first troop scouts and cubs held a joint hamburger feed to end off the hockey season. Three teams had been sponsored by the group and after all three reached the finals, all achieved the honor of losing.

The junior scouts consisted of Captain A. Jurin, L. Ferguson, J. Smith, A. Mackenzie, H. Jones, Nakamura, B. MacKenzie, R. Saito, K. Gibson and I. Cavanag. They had only taken part in one opposition until they came to the finals where strangely enough they met the 6th Boys and the 6th Holy Trinity.

After going through their schedule with 35 goals for and only 6 against the senior cub team consisted of Captain Frank Holdsworth, Rick Hislop, Don Fleming, George Constabaris, Lee Toplin, Gordon Keates and Bernard Cavanagh met their "Waterloo" in the shape of Bill Banaham's 22nd Pack who squeezed a 2-1 decision over them in the finals. The 22nd have invited the seniors to their "celebration" and needless to say, the cubs smelling food have joyfully accepted.

The junior team of Bob Cuthbertson, Bob Meyers, Tsukasa Uyehara, Donnie Blue, Terry Cavanagh and Bob Ault, though starting off with a bang found themselves short-handed on account of sickness and were unable to field a full team in the finals.

After the feed Mr. Backman, the executive commissioner, commissioner, showed films of Gray Owl, the Indian who befriended the beavers, and Rover Leader Fowler and his jamboree films and the cub rally. The latter was greeted with howls of joy as the cubs could see themselves in the different scenes. A hearty vote of thanks was given the commissioner.

Thanks was also due to Mrs. Woods Mrs. Gourlay, Mr. C. Wood and Mr. Ault for doing the honors in the kitchen.

HAMBURGER SUPPER IS HELD

A hamburger sandwich supper was staged by the Scouts of the 1st Edmonton Troop this week and all of those who attended reported having enjoyed a splendid evening. Bill Dalzell is Scout Master.

Northern Trapper First Discovered Goldfields Vein

By LESLIE ROBERTS
Canadian Press Correspondent

GOLDFIELDS, Sask., April 11.—Chief credit must go to Gus Nyman, grey-haired veteran of northern trap lines, if Saskatchewan is added to the list of gold-producing provinces, but he reaped no material gain as a result of his discovery and nearly lost his home.

Nyman trapped along the north shore of Lake Athabaska for many seasons. In the off-season he lived quietly in a hut beside an abandoned fishery on the bay where Goldfields has grown to town-size within the past year.

Sometimes he wandered about through the hills. On one of his rambles he found an interesting rock formation and carried pieces of the rock back to his cabin.

Some time later he showed his samples to a prospector. Then he left him to the scene, less than a mile from his cabin. The prospector chipped off more samples and, by agreement, shipped them out for assay. Later the ground was staked, but not by Nyman. The old-time trapper of Athabaska was not to share in the riches of his find.

Dame Fortune has not dealt kindly with the wizened trapper whose accidental strike was to set Saskatchewan's first gold rush in motion. Tales are told of more than one occasion on which he missed wealth by a hair's breadth.

Once he joined a staking party, in which it is said he was promised wages and a share in any discovery made. But a lack of business knowledge left him high and dry again on the beach at Goldfields.

Finally it seemed as though he might lose even his humble homestead on Goldfields' hillside as the ground had been taken over by mining interests participating in the fast-growing hunt for gold. But two well-known prospectors immediately communicated with Government authorities and laid the case before them. The authorities responded.

EASTERN MAN ADVISES SLOW, STEADY WORK

"The thing that impresses me about your northern fields is that there has been a complete absence of high-pressure promotion methods," said an eastern mining man when interviewed by the Bulletin while on tour here recently.

"That's a good sign," he continued. "Foreign investors are quite frequently frightened away by any undue publicity efforts on the part of get-rich-quick promoters—the ventures north of Edmonton are fortunate in that they have been singularly free of tactics of that nature.

"Most people who are willing to invest any great amount of capital are willing to investigate the possibilities of fields that show signs of production but bitter experience has taught them to be chary of highly-publicized areas."

Asked what he thought of the future of the north the eastern man, who requested that his name be suppressed until he returns here in May, offered the opinion that the true value of the fields will not be apparent for several years to come. He advised steady, quiet development.

FIGHT STILL ON OVER AIR ROUTE NORTH

Edmonton Blasts Prince Albert's Challenge Distributing Supremacy

The battle between Edmonton and Prince Albert for the position of "distributing centre" for the Lake Athabaska mining field continues apace but Edmonton is undoubtedly sustaining the supremacy if the number of prospectors passing through here northbound this spring may be taken as any criterion.

Situated as this city is with its unparalleled fine airport and seaplane base as well as excellent railway facilities, there is no doubt that it will always be "The Gateway to the North."

W. R. "Wop" May, superintendent of the MacKenzie district for Canadian Airways, is naturally anxious that the air mail for Goldfields should continue to be sent via Edmonton. His arguments in favor of the Edmonton-Goldfields route follow:

1. Freight, express, and mail rates by air, water, and rail are cheaper via Edmonton than by any other route.

2. Though this city the only combined air-mail-water transportation route to Goldfields is operated.

3. Edmonton, which has provided the north with supplies and equipment for many years, is the logical city to cater to Goldfields.

4. Air service from Edmonton and McMurray is three and four times more frequent into Goldfields than over any other route.

5. Regular air mail routes to the north are operated from McMurray, connected by air and rail from Edmonton, the shortest, fastest, and most practicable route.

6. Flying conditions between Edmonton and Goldfields are decidedly better than over any other route.

Edmonton-Goldfields air route is 400 miles, 280 air miles to McMurray from here and 225 miles from the end of steel at Waterways to Goldfields via Fort Chipewyan or 200 miles in a direct route.

Measured in flying time, Goldfields is four hours and 45 minutes distance. It takes 2½ hours on an average to fly between here and McMurray and 2¼ hours for the remainder of the trip to Goldfields.

Freight and express, which forms the bulk of transportation into the Lake Athabaska field, can be taken from here to Goldfields by combined rail and air service for a cost of 22 cents a pound, which is cheaper than any other route, Superintendent May points out.

Air mail service is able to operate from here into Goldfields cheaper than if it were flown by any other route because the mail is carried on the regular northern route to Fort Chipewyan, and an extra charge is only made for the 125-mile flight to Goldfields.

MINE CHAMBER IS CENTRE OF NORTH GOSSIP

Clearing House Visited By Miners, Prospectors, Reporters

Edmonton Chamber of Mines, housed with its sister organization, Edmonton Chamber of Commerce, in new quarters on the ground floor of the McLeod Building, is the clearing house for information regarding the development of the northern mines.

L. E. Drummond, secretary of the Chamber, occupies a nook in one corner of the vast room and there he interviews prospective investors, prospectors, miners and newspapermen. A harassed stenographer is pressed into service at frequent intervals throughout the day to help Mr. Drummond dictate another of his deathless epics about the prospects of the mining fields.

These literary works are accepted by the reporters who turn them in to city editors and frequently save the choicest morsels for special editions such as this.

Dr. Chris Riley, secretary of the Edmonton and Northwest Prospectors Association, also has a desk in the office but alternates between those premises and the prospectors' special room in the King George hotel where, it is reliably reported, the most colossal northern stories are unfolded quite regularly.

Tid-bits of news such as are issued daily at the information clearing house follow.

"Mining offers the best bet in the next 10 or 15 years of pulling Canada out of the hole," stated Hon. T. A. Crerar, minister of mines, in addressing the Ottawa branch of the Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy.

One person is allowed to stake nine claims, three of them in his own name, according to the Saskatchewan mining regulations which govern the Lake Athabaska gold field. The regulations amended to in 1935 are said to combine all the best features found in the acts of the older mining provinces.

Geological data on the Lake Athabaska gold field resembles the gold occurrences of South Africa and give every promise of becoming a major gold field, according to those who spent three months in the field.

Furnishing a comprehensive review of mining activities from coast to coast the Canadian Mines handbook for 1936, just issued, covers many more companies and is somewhat larger than any previous edition. A total of 3,774 Canadian mining operations are dealt with, and the book runs to 387 pages.

In wintertime visitors to Goldfields can eat in the Goldfields hotel for $2 per day. Breakfast cost 50 cents, luncheon cost 75 cents while dinners at night cost another 75 cents.

The continued efforts to increase the price of silver and stabilize it at some definite price in relation to gold seems to be gaining ground from the recent announcements from Washington. Any improvement in the price will reflect in the developments taking place at Great Bear Lake.

A membership of 200 is the objective set for the Edmonton and Northwest Prospectors' Association, which was formed this winter to further the interests of the prospectors in northern mineral areas.

Mining Authorities Receive Numerous Queries Re Fields

L. E. Drummond Lists Things Essential North Development

"We're getting letters from everywhere," said L. E. Drummond, secretary of the Alberta and Northwest Chamber of Mines, as he ruffled a sheaf of papers that lay on his desk. "Letters from New York, even, and the people that write them aren't just mildly interested.

"Of course we must protect the confidence that they place in us and not reveal their names," Mr. Drummond continued. "It is only by respecting that confidence that we will merit the investments that are more than likely to follow."

Such has been the interest caused by the first few years of operations in the Lake Athabaska, Great Bear Lake and other mining areas north of here that Edmonton, as a potential distributing centre, is attracting the eyes of the world. Numerous brokers and other agencies are experiencing the same deluge of enquiries to which Mr. Drummond refers.

"Just how soon these properties will be proved up is difficult to estimate," Mr. Drummond continued. "The period of development is gradual in nearly all mining work. Take, for instance, a mine such as Hollinger. It began production in 1911 with a recovery of $46,082 for the first year and in 1921 it had reached a recovery of $10,031,050. In ten years that mine paid $16,-558,000 in dividends.

"Such a mine needs perseverance and determination on the part of those controlling it and a methodical system of development in order to secure success."

Things, which in Mr. Drummond's opinion are essential to the complete development of the northland were listed as follows:

1. Equitable amendments to the present freight schedule on the Northern Alberta Railways to conform with rates applicable on the other railroads operating under similar conditions in the prairie divisions of Alberta and Saskatchewan.

2. That navigation improvements should receive attention along the Clearwater and Athabaska Rivers to make it possible for the boats to reach the head of steel at all times, with wharfage to facilitate the loading and unloading of steamers.

3. That the rivers and lakes be supplied with navigable lights and wharves to aid boat transport.

4. That the portage facilities between Fitzgerald and Smith should be considered. The Chamber of Commerce in Edmonton have suggested that this be removed from a dual government control (Alberta and North West Territories) and placed entirely under the Federal Government with a recommendation that the road across the portage be improved and gravelled.

5. That the portage along the Bear River Rapids be completed.

Three Dimensional Animated Cartoons Nearing Perfection

NEW YORK, April 11.—Three dimensional animated cartoons which can be shown with regular movie projection Mailie equipment and without use of any gadget by audiences were announced here Friday by Max Fleischer, pioneer in the animated cartoon field.

Fleischer declares his invention has passed the experimental stage and that full length animated cartoons using the third dimension throughout will be released within six months.

Fleischer obtains the third dimensional effect by fore-shortening the perspective of the camera to six feet and using a special lens which does not focus directly on the objects photographed.

Paintings Stolen

SEGOVIA, Spain, April 11.—Four valuable paintings attributed to Albrecht Durir, famous German artist, were stolen from the provincial museum Friday, along with a small copy of one of Rembrandt's etchings.

RESUMPTION OF AIR MAIL IS FORECAST

Activity on Mining Routes Convinces That Flying Is Practical

Mining provides the greatest field of opportunity for aircraft in Canada, and this phase of activity will be permanent in the North for many years to come. Coincident with it will be the development of regular passenger transport and airmail routes.

Resumption of the trans-Canada air route, which was interrupted by depression conditions after an auspicious beginning, can be only a question of time. The facilities are there, waiting to be used. Some progress has been made during the intervening time since the service was discontinued. A new series of airports has been constructed.

But it is altogether likely that some of these fields on the run from Halifax to Vancouver will be little used. Intermediate stops will be minimized to maintain a high-speed transcontinental schedule, and from these stopping places feeder lines will connect with important industrial centres off the main route.

Edmonton will, of course, be a key airport on the route.

MONTREAL, April 11.—Papers and a few selected issues worked against profit taking on Montreal Stock Exchange today and finished fractionally higher while downturns predominated the rest of the list.

Smelters led the downward issues with a drop of eight points to 278. Nickel dipped ⅛ while Noranda and Hollinger posted sizable gains. Papers moved up fractionally. Metals were irregular, while banks and utilities slipped as much as three points.

Losses of ⅛ and ¼ were shown by Southern Canada Power, Brazilian Traction, Montreal Power and Winnipeg Electric. Shawinigan held even.

At New York

NEW YORK, April 11.—Selective demand lifted scattered rails, coppers, steels, motors and specialties fractions to a point or so in today's stock market.

Holiday apathy market most of the brief session although the activity picked up in the last few minutes. Transfers approximated 950,000 shares. The close was steady.

Among Canadian stocks, McIntyre and Dome were a trifle lower, while International Nickel and Canadian Pacific improved fractionally. Dominion Government 4s pushed slightly higher. Canadian funds eased 1-32 of a cent at 99.50 cents.

Santa Fe again came to the fore as a supporting leader, pushing up about 3 points to another new high. U.S. Steel also was given a late run for an advance of around a point. Chrysler, General Motors and White motors joined in the recovery.

Such issues as American Telephone, Consolidated Edison, Allied Chemical and Western Union were backward.

SABOTAGE ON BRITISH SUB

PLYMOUTH, April 11.—Detectives were called last night to investigate suspected sabotage on the submarine L-54 at the Devonport dockyard.

It was the ninth reported case of suspected intentional damage to British naval vessels since last autumn.

A large spanner, of wrench, was found under the casing of the submarine's main motor, half an hour after the electrical equipment had been examined, it was learned.

It was understood the whole underwater machinery of the vessel would have been disabled if the discovery had not been made before the submarine put to sea.

If mustard gas comes in contact with the skin, a burn will appear within four hours.

WINNIPEG GRAIN PRICES ADVANCE

WINNIPEG, April 11.—A bullish United States government crop report resulted in advancing wheat prices on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today. Values closed ⅞-1 cent higher, May at 81⅛, July 82⅛ and October 82⅞ cents.

Conducive to higher prices, too, were good-sized export sales that totalled 750,000 bushels.

Trading throughout the abbreviated session was active. Liverpool and Buenos Aires remained closed over the Easter holiday. Chicago was higher.

Traders construed as bullish the United States official estimate of this year's winter-wheat crop of 493,000,000 bushels. This was 44,000,000 bushels under the average of private estimates last April 2.

Cash-grains trading was quiet, with spreads about unchanged. Prices in the coarse grains section were strong with wheat.

Wrestle Royal Has Thrills for Crowd At Empire Theatre

By JACK DEAKIN

Stentoriously they panted and unmercifully those five big, rugged wrestling men gouged, kicked and smashed with fists as a capacity house saw and thrilled to the first "wrestle royal" staged in this city.

Without a doubt Promoter Mike Cutcher's middleweight mat performance at the Empire Theatre last night went over the top.

It surpassed all previous shows for excitement and those wrestlers gave their all in that thrill-laden battle. The fans, for it was them on them, too, exhausted themselves as they perched excitedly upon the edge of their bows and cheered the wrestling spectacle with uncontrollable delight. It was 30 minutes or more of some of the finest ring entertainment the local populace has seen, and nearly a thousand fans turned out.

SPENDLOVE VICTOR

Billy Spendlove, that stockily built little gent of admirable fighting power, won the far-famed wrestle royal. With two of three falls over Edmonton's John "Chuckie-Boy" Demchuk, who came out second best, Billy polished off the bout and then proudly pounded his barrel-chest with lusty blows, for it was a gallant triumph.

The popular Bob Cummings once a "hard boy" but now the "white haired" lad to fans, was third to be taken out, but before this happened he waged a great struggle against Demchuk and Spendlove. The "gang" act by Demchuk and Spendlove was, however, too much for Cummings and, after one final stand, he too was carried out of the ring. However, after he took his leave the crowd stood en mass, yelling for his return, but his gallant hard had failed.

MEYERS SECOND OUT

Eddie "Tough Mug" Meyers was the second to be eliminated. Much to the enjoyment of the fans, Meyers was given a stiff "ride" before three "hugs" pounced on him for good. He followed Cummings and Jacques Eku, the big and rugged Eskimo, who was the first victim. When Eku fell he was promptly pinned with all four grapplers piled on top of him. Eku had to be carried to his dressing room where first aid was given his battered body.

Right from the first bell things started to happen, and at such a pace that it was hardly possible to see just what was going on in the squirrel battle grounds. The five wrestlers took their places. Cummings, Demchuk, Eku and Spendlove going to the corners while Meyers and Referee Maurice Hoy Block took the centre spot, with one other referee, the promoter himself, hugging the ropes on the outside.

SLIPPERY GENTS

To the tune of Timekeeper Chief Shute's bell the bouts started. Cautiously they stepped from their corners to meet. Meyers and DeBlock in the centre. Those first flying grabs, however, slid right through the net the four corner grapplers had set and then the wrestle royal broke loose. Fists flew, drop-kicks were handed out and wrestlers went through the ropes from the force of flying tackles.

It was Cummings, Demchuk and Spendlove against Eku and Meyers, for a while and the last mentioned grapplers took punishment no end. Eku, taking the full force of the three, went down first. His tumble to the mat was the signal for all four grapplers to pounce on him. They did, piling Eku underneath their heavy bodies with the newshawked DeBlock grappling the opponent man on the back. It took some time before they all piled off the hapless Eku and the grappler was tenderly helped to his dressing room for much rubbing and whatnot.

MEYERS NOT SPARED

That left Meyers to gang up on. He was not spared. He asked no quarter and got none, but was promptly set upon by the vengeance seeking trio. The punishment, long-owed by the fans, was dealt out to him in great quantities and it was only a few minutes before he was seen down for the first time.

Then Demchuk and Spendlove had Cummings at their mercy. They showed no mercy to the ex-popular Cummings. Finished back gamely. He was given a good hand by the fans for his gallant battle as he put on a great drop-kick act until Spendlove got a deadly hold on him and Demchuk put on a hammerlock. For some time Bob took it until both referees were forced to tear Spendlove from his prey.

Spendlove and Demchuk put a fitting climax to the bout. They polished it off with a scientific hold which saw the latter Spendlove bathe Demchuk severely and take two past falls over a Boston crab. Demchuk rallied for the second with some body-pounding drop-kicks and flying tackles to take the fall with a body pounce but he could not last out against the power in Spendlove's mighty form and the latter took the third and final fall with a body slam and press.

No finer show was witnessed. One of the features was Demchuk's vast improvement since wrestling in the United States. He has been greatly praised by U. S. promoters, and, following his performance yesterday, is worthy of it.

TWO PRELIMINARIES

Two preliminaries, the first which was a time-limit draw between Charlie Fraser and Ed. Reay, and the second one won by Karasenko when Emil Van Velzen was alleged to have fouled him.

Van Velzen put up a good battle against the local Greek star, but got too rough and the referee disqualified him.

FOOTNOTES—The show itself was great . . . No finer exhibition has been given here in years . . . Demchuk bowed very graciously to the ringside ovation he received after the "gang" act . . . The "gang" party is the first of its kind to the public's want to see more of it . . . Referee DeBlock was not satisfied with the lackadaisical wrestling at times . . . Hoy Block, the referee, who compiled a certain measure of skill himself, seems to agree with the fans . . . The promoter himself was badly handled from his seats by over-zealous fans . . . Two chairs were broken . . . The end.

FRANCE'S TOP SPORTS MOGUL IN MONTREAL

MONTREAL, April 11.—Jeff Dickson, the Jackson, Miss., boy who became France's leading sports promoter, dropped into Montreal for a personal visit with Leo Dandurand, one of Canada's best-known sportsmen.

It was purely a holiday visit, Dickson said. He returned to New York last night. Asked if he was planning any hockey players from the league he controls in Paris, Dickson remarked his hockey troupe is in capable hands care of all such details and he himself was not immediately concerned.

The man who came to this side to sign Joe Louis for a tour of European cities and Max Baer for European fights was asked to discuss boxing.

He said Louis would be popular on the continent and he could arrange exhibition bouts for him in various countries. Louis could not leave until some time in October after his fight with Max Schmeling and possibly a clash with Champion Jimmy Braddock. Should the Braddock fight not come off this year, Dickson believed Louis would fight Peterson, the British titleholder, in the United States.

GILROY STILL ALIBIING FOR CANUCK LOSS

Defends Officials For Actions at Garmisch Before C.A.H.A.

TORONTO, April 11.—When the International Ice Hockey Federation suspended two Canadian members of the British team on the eve of the Olympic hockey tournament at Garmisch-Partenkirchen last February, it did so against the expressed wishes of Canada, President E. A. Gilroy of the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association told the annual meeting of the C.A.H.A. yesterday.

Statements that Canada inspired the suspensions were incorrect, he said, declaring that he and other Canadians who attended the meeting at which the players were suspended strongly opposed the action being taken at that late date.

Gilroy gave a complete account of what had went on at Garmisch from September on. He stated that the suspension of two English players, Jim Foster and Alex. Archer, was opposed by the C.A.H.A. to that date because it was then too late to enforce a rule that should have been made known to the English team before they brought their squad to Germany. It was through the C.A.H.A. that the suspensions had been finally lifted.

RULES CHANGED

Gilroy said Canadian officials were convinced the tournament rules were changed during progress of the games and that, under the original arrangement, the four teams qualifying for the final series would play a round-robin series for the championship.

As it turned out, Canada was beaten 2-1 by England in the second round and when the teams both reached the final round it was found Canada would not have another chance at their conquerors. The title was won by England.

Gilroy said his protest resulted in a special meeting at which only eight of the 15 competing nations were represented "and seven of these teams stood possibly to benefit by Canada entering the final bracket under a handicap." Only Germany and Canada voted to throw the finals open on an equal basis to the four finalists.

The incident charged, too, that Russia used two players, in addition to Foster and Archer, who were ineligible. They were Gordon Dailley, born at Winnipeg, and John Gerald Davey, born at Port Arthur. He read birth records of these players.

Authorities on etiquette agree that when a man and woman are riding in the rear seat of an automobile the woman should be seated on the right.

Pats and Pans

By BILL LEWIS

DETROIT'S Red Wings make another bid for Stanley Cup honors tonight when they tangle with Toronto Maple Leafs in the fourth game of the playoffs. . . . Red Wings have won two games against the Toronto team's one, which means that a single triumph will give them the most coveted prize in professional hockey.

Red Wings, after winning three straight against Montreal Maroons, turned around and won two in a row from the Leafs, and it would have constituted a record if they had won Thursday night's game.

In view of the remarkable comeback of the Leafs, tonight's battle will be watched with extraordinary interest by hockey followers all over the continent. . . . The Torontonians have twice displayed remarkable recuperative powers since the N.H.L. playdowns got underway and this evening's encounter will show whether those comeback powers mean anything.

Saskatoon Wesleys Disappoint

Charlie McCool's Saskatoon Wesleys disappointed their Western followers when they lost to West Toronto Nationals in the opening game of the O.H.A. Memorial finals last night. . . .

Following four years of trying, and knocking at the Memorial Cup door, Wesleys have finally achieved their objective and their efforts against the Eastern champions will be closely watched.

There is no doubt but that the Saskatoon team has plenty of class, as far as junior clubs go, but it is also hard to figure just how much power the Eastern team possesses. . . .

All but one of the Wesley team go over the age limit next season so if they have not the necessary class this year they will undoubtedly have to wait some time before they again become real contenders for the Dominion title.

What Scots Think of Baseball

An amusing bit of sports writing (so far as we are concerned), is the account of the first baseball game recently played in Glasgow between the American Club of Glasgow, and the American Club of Edinburgh. . . . I give you the story of the first four innings' play as proof:

Before the game started both teams had batting practice.

Mr. Hanley, the American Consul for Glasgow, spoke to the men of both teams just before the game started and then he had the honor of throwing the first ball, amidst loud cheers and shouting.

The Edinburgh team went up to bat first, the Glasgow team took the field, and the game was on.

Sabrin up at bat smashed a grounder to third, but was thrown out at third base. Dolsky hit several foul balls, and then grounded out and was out. One more ball to go.

Brown filed out to the short spot, three out—four in—no runs.

Glasgow up at bat. "Beanie" Warshawski started the innings by grounding out. Greenfield was put out at first after hitting an infield ball.

Spudowitz was given a base 3 because the pitcher threw four dead balls. Spudowitz stole second ball. Schultze hit the ball to the second base man, but was thrown out at first, three out—no runs.

Glasgow up at bat.

Alpert had three balls called on him, and then Sang stole second base, and Alpert was walked to first.

The First Run

A double steal was pulled, Sang advancing to third and Allport to second base.

Fred was walked to first. It looked as if the pitcher is weakening.

Titchler was struck out by Gehringer—the pitcher is tightening up. Warstavsky walked to short stop—three out—one run.

Glasgow up. Greenfield hit a slashing one-base hit. Then he stole the second. Skidowsky hit a beautiful single, and Greenfield scored. The man on first stole second.

Eastern Basketball Championship Meet Dated On April 16

OTTAWA, April 11—Windsor Fords and Ottawa Rangers will meet in a best-of-three series here next week for the Eastern Canada basketball championship, it was decided last night at a meeting of Rangers officials. The first game will be played Thursday, April 16, and the second Friday. A third game, if necessary, will be played Saturday.

COACH HOPEFUL

ARNOLD HENDERSON

Official coach of the Edmonton Commercial Grads, who will send his charges out against the Des Moines Business Institute team tonight at the Arena, in the first game of a two-out-of-three series for the Underwood trophy. Both Manager Percy Page and Henderson are hopeful, without predicting a victory, that the Grads will have enough power to hold their strong opponents.

SUNDERLAND GAINS GROUND WITH VICTORY

LONDON, April 11.—Humbling Birmingham 2-1 at Roker Park Sunderland gained further ground in the race for the English Football League championship yesterday. The Sunderlanders climb with 52 points, now has a lead of nine points over Derby County, its nearest rival.

Derby was held to a 1-1 draw by Chelsea at Stamford Bridge while Stoke City, defeated 3-0 at Grimsby, was replaced in third position by Huddersfield Town who played a scoreless draw with Portsmouth.

Large crowds witnessed the opening games of the heavy Easter schedule in which most teams will play three games in four days. Of the 88 clubs which make up the four divisions of the league, only 12 were idle.

THREE TEAM TIE

The Villans, with 33 points, are now bracketed with Bromwich Albion and Blackburn Rovers. West Bromwich suffered a 4-0 setback against the Arsenal at Highbury and Blackburn Rovers, at home, drew 2-2 with Liverpool.

Another low-placed club to earn valuable points was Leeds United. The Yorkshiremen overcame Manchester City 3-1 at Maine Road.

In the second division, West Ham United is making a bold bid to regain first division status. By defeating Leicester City 3-2 in London the Hammers increased their lead to three points over Manchester United. Sheffield United and Charlton tied for second place with 46 points. Manchester United drew 2-2 at Burnley, Sheffield and Doncaster Rovers played a scoreless draw and Tottenham Hotspurs and Charlton Athletic each scored one goal in a hard-fought tussle at White Hart Lane.

Although the team got only one point as the result of a 2-2 draw with Fulham, Luton Town established a clear lead in the southern section of the third division.

Clever Wesleys Whip Wesleys, 5-1 In First Of Series

Speedy Saskatchewan and Western Champs Fail In Finish Around Nets, While Easterners Show Class

By ALLAN J. NICKLESON

TORONTO, April 11.—West Toronto Nationals, a smooth-working, powerful band of youngsters, pierced the heavy defensive armor of Saskatoon Wesleys last night and carved out a 5-1 win over the western Canada champions in the first game of their Canadian junior final hockey series.

Wesleys, not as polished as the eastern Canada titlists, lacked finish around the net. Many times especially in a thrilling last period, the speedy Saskatchewan youngsters had no one to beat but Red Hall in the Nationals' nets. Their shots were either inches wide or blocked by the sorrel-top.

The next battle of the two-of-three games series for the memorial cup will be played here Monday night, and a third, if necessary Wednesday.

COURAGEOUS FIGHT

The courageous fight the westerners staged won them the support of the crowd of 4,000 plainly pro-western after the Saskatoon youngsters came from behind in the second minute to tie a west Toronto goal scored in 41 seconds.

They cheered Wesleys' every attack and were upon their feet through most of the third when Saskatoon made their determined bid for goals.

It was just 1.20 when the gallant Wesleys evened matters. Captain Paul Kowel was the scorer, punching one past Hall. Lacrosse net minder for Orillia Terriers, Canadian senior champions last season Kowel tricked the defence and rifled one from 15 feet out.

RAPPED HOME THIRD

West Toronto rallied their second near the third minute mark of the second frame when Heron took "Peanuts" O'Flaherty's pass and banged it in from directly in front of the net. Pete Vogt, Saskatoon right winger, was serving a penalty at the time.

Heron also got the red-shirted Nationals' third goal all alone near the 10-minute mark and Carl Gamble, smooth centre player from Oshawa, added another near the end of the frame on a three-man rush.

Gamble flashed into prominence again in the final period when he broke away from a desperate, thrilling Saskatoon gang attack and caught the top corner of the net with a bullet-like drive.

Pete Leswick, sensational centre for the visitors, put one in the Toronto nets from a scramble near the end of the period, but Referee Gordon McKay, of Hamilton, called it back for interference. The crowd gave vent to their wrath by showering the ice with programs and peanuts. They kept it up until the end of the game while booing lustily.

GREAT BATTLE

It was one of the greatest junior battles here in several years. Both clubs back-checked fiercely but the Eastern titlists' plays showed more finish when they barged past the heavy Wesley rear-guards.

The Saskatchewan huskies seemed to find difficulty in controlling the puck.

The game was cleanly played throughout with West Toronto drawing three penalties for minor offences and Saskatoon two.

Jack Kovl, bruising rear-guard, Kowel, who played for North Battleford last season, and Earl Rewbold, another North Battleford product, looked best in a losing game.

At least two of the players are on professional reserve lists. Leswick tried out with New York Americans last fall while Kowel highly thought-of by New York Rangers.

LINE-UP

West Toronto—Hall; Laurent and Crawford; Heron, O'Flaherty and Gamble; Robertson, Gardner, Gamble, Robertson.

Teams Hold Workout At Arena — Outcome of Series Doubtful

Opening the 1936 basketball season with a bang, the stage is all set at the arena for tonight when the Grads oppose the Des Moines team in the first of a three game series for the Underwood trophy.

Both teams underwent a short workout at the arena Friday, sounding out what few kinks were left and are now in fine fettle for tonight's game. In a preliminary opener the Calgary Wittichens meet the Gradettes in their second encounter for the provincial title series. The Gradettes go into the fray one game to the good.

The American Business Institute of Des Moines team is considerably "strengthened by the addition of the Langerman twins, who have been given All-American rating, and are outstanding players. In the first game Jimmy Taylor of Calgary Normals will officiate while the second game will be in charge of Dr. Baden-Powell and Ken Dickson.

Severance of Relations Between Amateur Bodies Is Foreseen

By ELMER DULMAGE

TORONTO, April 11—Severence of relations between the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and its strongest ally, the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association, loomed last night over the definition of an amateur athlete. The C.A.H.A. will take a historic stand Monday.

It will decide then whether Canadian hockey has reached a stage where "shamateurism" will be abolished, where players are entitled to obtain employment because of their playing ability, should be paid for time lost from work and where professionals in another sport are not professionals in hockey.

At the opening meeting of the annual C.A.H.A. convention here Friday, a new definition of the "amateur athlete" was presented. There seemed a good chance that the definition would be adopted, despite the opinion of the A.A.U. of C. and that therefore the two organizations would cease to be allied.

DISCUSSION PENDING

While pending discussion of the Olympic team's troubles and management in Europe was kept in the background following the report of president E. A. Gilroy of Portage La Prairie, Man., the straight question of the new and modern amateur was presented in the report of a special committee.

The committee, headed by Cecil Duncan of Ottawa, and including Prof. W. G. Hardy of University of Alberta, Clarence Campbell of Edmonton and George Dudley of Midland, Ont., laid down four clauses, via the resolutions committee, that would make the amateur look like an entirely different fellow.

The four, some of which may be acceptable to the A.A.U. of C. follow:

1. Payment to hockey players by clubs or employers for time lost from work while playing games will be permitted.

2. Players will be allowed to capitalize on their ability as hockey players to obtain legitimate employment. They won't, however, be allowed to hold "shadow" jobs under this clause.

3. Professionals and amateurs will be allowed to play each other in exhibition games, at the discretion of the C. A. H. A. branches.

4. Professionals in another sport will be allowed to play under C.A.H.A. jurisdiction as amateurs.

DROP "AMATEUR"

Later on the convention will discuss a resolution by Duncan that the word "amateur" be dropped from the title of the National Hockey organization, and that it be known as the Canadian Hockey Association.

Whether the committee's recommendations will be adopted Monday by the convention was in doubt, but there appeated to be no doubt that strong support will be forthcoming. One veteran official opposed to the change, predicted the "old guard" would lose.

Tomorrow, the definition will be discussed at a conference between special committees of the C.A.H.A. and the A.A.U. of C. President W. A. Fry of the A.A.U., who favors "making haste slowly" on the proposition, will attend. Then the C.A.H.A. meeting will make its stand Monday.

A.A.U. MAY REFUSE

It appeared certain the A.A.U. committee would refuse to endorse all the changes and that the convention, when it reached a vote, would ballot with full knowledge that an affirmative vote meant severance of relations.

"It is time," asserted Prof. Hardy in presenting the committee report, "that we face present-day realities as they exist in hockey across the country." He urged the new definition be adopted. Strong support came from Dudley, president of the Ontario Hockey Association.

KIMBERLEY, SUDBURY SET FOR BATTLE

Both Allan Cup Seekers Ready For Second Game Of Series

WINNIPEG, April 11.—Victors in their first start, Kimberley Dynamiters, senior hockey champions of Western Canada, rested here last night in preparation for the supreme effort. They moved a step nearer a cherished Allan Cup goal by defeating Sudbury Falcons, eastern titlists, 2-0, Thursday night in the first of a best of three series.

Shooting for a first Dominion title, the British Columbia challengers turned loose strictly aggressive hockey to take a one-game margin into the second contest scheduled for Saturday. In the event Sudbury tie the series, a third game will be played Monday.

The crimson clan of Sammy Colbeild wobbled momentarily in the second and third periods of last night's game. The large, however, was sufficient to allow the explosion of two Kimberley blasts to break the flawless goal-tending of veteran Joe Jonsisson. By repeating Saturday they can retrieve the historic silverware from east of the Great Lakes where it has rested since 1931.

STILL OPEN RACE

Both teams paid a visit to the scene of combat this afternoon for a brief whirl at limbering up exercises. After a few turns around the iced surface they returned to their hotels. Later, automobiles were placed at the disposal for a tour of the city.

No injuries were apparent as the two squads went through their ice races. Lineups for the second game, it was intimated, would be the same as those sent out for the initial encounter.

Dynamiters Sport Whole New Outfit

WINNIPEG, April 11.—Kimberley Dynamiters, seeking their first Allan cup are sporting new uniforms in the Canadian record book with Sudbury Falcons, eastern contenders.

The two teams arrived here with uniforms of the same color. Canadian amateur hockey officials sent into a huddle and as a result the Kimberley boys were bedecked with a whole new outfit. The outfit consists of white sweaters and white stockings with the word Kimberley emblazoned diagonally across the front of the jerseys.

ALBERTA AVENUE CURLING BANQUET

The annual banquet of the Alberta Avenue Curling Club will be held on Tuesday the 14th at 7 p.m. in the Community Hall.

The winners in all competitions will receive their cups and prizes and a good program of music and dancing has been arranged. All friends of the Avenue Curlers are invited to come along.

RECORD CROWD EXPECTED FOR N.H.L. BATTLE

Conny Smythe Says His Leafs Are Mighty Hard To Beat

TORONTO, April 11—The mad Maple Leafs, Toronto's unpredictables, the team that doesn't recognize defeat, will draw perhaps $20,000 worth of customers to Maple Leaf Gardens tonight when they meet Detroit Red Wings in the fourth game of the Stanley Cup series. It will be the last home game of the season for the Leafs.

The town will turn out, it was indicated today, to say farewell to the game hockey men of Dick Irvin, who are still underdogs in the classic best-of-five series for professional hockey's richest prize. Should the Leafs win, squaring the series at two victories each, the fifth and deciding game would be played at Detroit next Tuesday.

Leafs kept themselves in the running for the trophy by beating Wings 4-3 in overtime here Thursday night to cut down the edge held by the Detroiters. After holding a 3-0 lead, Wings saw the Leafs put on steam and end with victory.

"They say we're playing on borrowed time," said Manager Conny Smythe, "but we're still going, aren't we? The Bruins thought they had us down and what did we do to them? Sure, we plastered them down with an 8-3 licking.

"I don't blame the Red Wings for thinking they had us down, either. But you saw us come back Thursday night and win. Well, we're right in there. Don't be surprised if we win again tonight. We are awfully hard to beat."

Judging by advance sales, it appeared likely a crowd of 14,500 or more would come out to see the fourth game between the powerful Wings and the grim and relentless Leafs. The Thursday-night crowd was 13,805.

Regarded as one of the best teams ever to play for the Stanley Cup, the Wings were 42 seconds away from victory Thursday night. By that margin they missed becoming the record team to win both National League cup and cup series without defeat.

It was the hardest game in the world to lose" said Jack Adams, Detroit manager, today. "Here we had them 3-0 with seven minutes to go. The boys were too confident at the end, but I hand it to the Leafs for a wonderful comeback. They certainly beat us when we shouldn't have been beaten."

Winnipeg Has Lead Senior Hoop Series

SASKATOON, April 11—Winnipeg Olympian, Manitoba champions, defeated Saskatoon Grads, Saskatchewan Murray cupholders, 33 to 24 last night in the first game of a two-game point series in the western Canada women's basketball playdown vacated by the Edmonton Grads. The second game will be played here Saturday night.

Olympics Triumph By Margin of 4-3 Against Bulldogs

Detroiters Take Two-Game Lead in International Play-Off Final

WINDSOR, Ont., April 11—Detroit Olympics fought gallantly from behind and scored a 4-3 victory over Windsor Bulldogs here last night for their second straight triumph in the International hockey league championship series.

The victory came after five minutes of overtime and sent Olympics back to Detroit for the third game with a commanding hold on the league title. They play again Sunday night with Bulldogs given little chance to stop the rampaging Detroiters. Olympics won the first game in Detroit 8-1.

Art Giroux shot the winning goal just five minutes after the start of overtime. The Bulldogs had taken the lead twice and had a two-goal margin in the second period but the Detroit offensive came back brilliantly each time. They wiped out that two-goal deficit less than two minutes after Windsor built it up.

It was Giroux's second goal, the other Detroit markers going to Wilf Starr, Ron Moffatt, Clarence Drouillard and Jim Arnott scored for Bulldogs.

First period—Scoring, none. Penalty Giroux.

PUBLIC SCHOOL SPORT NEWS

The 1935 football schedule, interrupted last fall by the snow, will be resumed after the Easter vacation. The league had reached an interesting stage when the winter set in. Three senior teams, Eastwood, Donald Ross and Bonnie Brae are occupying semi-final brackets while Calder and McDougall have a sudden-death game to play to decide the fourth semi-finalist.

On last fall's performance, Eastwood is favored to take the championship. Possessed of uncanny ability to play combination, Eastwood seniors were outstanding in their victories. However, their trip to the finals will be no cinch and plenty of opposition will be presented to extend them to the fullest.

The junior division is more or less on a tangle. Between D and F have, because of the games, been unable to decide winners. Two teams, however, Ritchie and Eastwood, have reached the semi-finals with the Queen's Ave. juniors one step behind.

By the time the football league has been completed, the softball league will be in operation. This game is getting faster each year with particular improvement noted in the brand of pitching offered up.

The boys of McCauley school have lost a good friend with the passing of Principal H. L. Humphreys. Mr. Humphreys followed with keen interest the progress of the teams from his school. He recognized the importance of instilling sportsmanship and was himself the exemplification of a courteous gentleman, whose personal code with to "play the game."

Marriages

STOKER—DAKIN

One of the most prettily arranged ceremonies of the early springtime season was that at which Miss Edith Dakin, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Dakin, became the bride of Mr. Robert Robson Stoker, only son of Mr. Robert Stoker and the late Mrs. Stoker, in McDougall United Church at a quarter to eight o'clock on Thursday evening. The bride, given in marriage by her father, was a charming picture in an exquisitely moulded gown of white satin, worn with a flowing veil of point d'esprit, caught with orange blossoms. Her shoes and accessories were in silver and she carried an armful of Madonna lilies. A cameo bracelet and ring, gift of the bridegroom, were her only ornaments. Mrs H. Mallory, cousin of the bride, acted as maid of honor and was smartly gowned in pink net. She carried a bouquet of pink and white carnations and wore a cameo brooch. Two bridesmaids, Miss M. Robson, cousin of the bridegroom, and Miss J. Stoker, his sister, were becomingly frocked in pink lace. Their flowers were pink carnations and they each wore a cameo pendant. The bride's little niece, Miss D. Dakin, was a charming flower girl. Mr. C. M. Rowell was best man and Mr. R. Dakin, brother of the bride, and Mr. W. Arnett acted as ushers. Mr. C. D. Mail played the wedding music and during the signing of the register Mrs. R. S. Emmott sang "At Dawning". Following the ceremony a reception to more than 70 guests was given in the Peacock Room of the Shasta Cafe. To receive with the bridal party, Mrs. Dakin wore an attractive costume in navy blue softly trimmed in white point lace. Her shoes and accessories were in navy and she wore a corsage of deep pink carnations. Mr. E. Dutton was master of ceremonies. Mr. H. McFarland proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by the bridegroom. During a short after-dinner program, Miss W. Crowther, who was accompanied at the piano by Mr. E. Dutton, sang delightfully and seven-year-old little George Robert Bissett gave several piano selections. Mr. and Mrs. Stoker will make their home in Edmonton. M-766-86

LAND HOLDINGS SAID ILLEGAL

MANILA, April 11.—Heavy holdings of land, said to be illegal, by Japanese in a Davao province on Mindanao Island, were the subject of conversations Friday by President Manuel Quezon and Japanese Consul General K. Uchiyama as they inspected the plantations of 13,000 Japanese colonists.

No decision was announced on the question whether additional land by Filipinos to Japanese should be cancelled or permitted to stand for a few more years of the contract. Japanese working 50,000 acres of land requested they be permitted to hold possession at least temporarily.

It has been asserted the Japanese hold 90 per cent of the agricultural land of Davao by lease from Filipinos who had no right to turn their leases over to foreigners.

Spots On Sun Rule Weather Says Savant

VICTORIA, B.C., April 11—Possibility of forecasting climate from the action of "sunspots" was considered by Dr. W. E. Harper, acting director of the Dominion Astrophysical observatory here, in an address before the Victoria centre of the Royal Astronomical Society of Canada.

Dr. Harper said the apparent effect of the sunspots, or vortices, was to change the amount of heat emitted by the sun, with a resulting change in the heat reaching the earth.

The net result on the earth, he added, was to vary the amount of rainfall, which in turn varied the nature and quantity of vegetation. Dr. Harper added it was claimed by Prof. De Lury, of Toronto, that sunspots have a relationship to drought area, growth of grain and grasshopper plagues.

Dr. Harper claimed a study of the solar phenomena might enable weathermen to estimate weather conditions over wide areas for the succeeding year. His lecture was illustrated with special slides and photographs.

Eslick, general secretary of the Tourist Trade Development Association of Victoria and Vancouver Island, in a letter to Mayor Lewis.

The Wings Ltd., plane piloted by Roy Brown made a heavy landing after its propeller broke 50 feet in the air just after taking off. Those in the plane were uninjured in the sudden jolt of the heavy landing but were carried free before the plane burned.

The three injured were Fred Gadsby, Winnipeg; Harry Nyland and Edward Anson of Lac Du Bonnet.

YOUNG WIFE FOUND SLAIN

NEW YORK, April 11.—A sash around her neck, the nude body of Mrs. Nancy Titterton, 34, attractive young wife of a Long Island executive, was found in her bathtub Friday and Police Sergeant Thomas Murtin said she had been murdered by manual strangulation.

Her wrists apparently had been tied, Martin said, and an acting medical examiner said there was evidence of an attempted assault.

The bedroom was in disorder. Underclothing of the red-haired matron, an authoress known to several magazines, was scattered all over it. One of the twin beds was disarranged.

Finding Out What Easter's All About

The quintuplets will be two years old next month, and no doubt there will be elaborate birthday celebrations. But at the moment they are more interested in Easter eggs and bunnies. Dr. Dafoe is not too professional to get down on the floor to play with his little charges, and we see here Yvonne, Annette, Cecile, Emelie (at back) and Marie being told the story of Easter. (Photo copyright, Edmonton Bulletin and Central Press Association.)

Five Dionnettes Still Canada's Big Feature: Mario Has Their Number

By MARIO, Bulletin Numerologist

Despite wars and taxes or any other issue of vital importance, there still remains, topping everything else in general public interest, the five little maids of Canada—the Dimpled Dionnes. What will be the future of Yvonne, Cecile, Annette, Emile and Marie?

Born together, reared inseparably, publicized as a "unit," will they remain as much alike in disposition, personality, intellect and destiny as they do in appearance?

I believe not. Numerology indicates quite the reverse.

Two or more of them have two or more points in common, but for the most part while they look as much alike as "peas in a pod," they are totally unlike in their mental and emotional characteristics.

The five have the same Birth Force having been born within a few minutes of one another. Their birthday, May 28, 1934, gives them a birth vibration of "Five."

INDICATES EXCITEMENT

This is the number of restlessness, change, excitement, travel and adventure. That they will experience an interesting life, filled with a succession of new experiences is obvious, for eventually they will probably go on the stage, or, at least, make public appearances. This would have been true even had their birth force vibration been a less "restless" number; but with the dominating "5", they are sure to lead anything but a cloistered life.

The "quints" probably will never be very tall, as their birth signs and vibrations point to slimness, smallness and a dominating characteristic is alertness and activity manifested in the eyes as well as in movements of the entire body.

Their months will remain small rather thin-lipped and often contracted. A long, straight nose will be another facial trait and their arms and fingers will be rather long. A goodly measure of beauty is assured.

Their health will be good, though they may never seem to be strongly robust. Should they be ill, the disease, whatever it is, will rest lightly upon them. Their birth vibrations were a great aid to the splendid Doctor Dafoe who looked after them so remarkably from the time of their advent.

The good doctor has probably found that the children depend a lot upon their nervous systems and with their alertness, activity and sensitive nervous make-up, he is wisely protecting them from too much excitement. That the quintuplets will ever suffer nervous disorders, however, is not probable. If they ever suffer from an ailment, it will arise in the lungs, but, as explained, any illness will be cast off in a remarkable display of resistance by these five babies with the "Five" vibration.

FIVE IS FLEXIBLE

The "five" type is flexible. Such people will work at anything, become interested in anything. Thus moral direction is highly essential as the "five" is easily influenced. Being flexible, such persons can be directed into almost any channel. Having seized upon a subject, or an occupation or a problem, good or bad, such types will work it out logically. Logic, whether directed to worth-while channels or not, is always present in the "five." It will not be expected that these children will create anything new, in any line, but, given a path of endeavor, they will improve it and get the most out of it.

They will not possess any great thirst for knowledge, but instead will seek change, excitement, adventure. They are more like Americans, in their desire for movement, advancement in any channel and the quick-change method, generally.

Free thought and free speech will prove other characteristics. Their minds will work quickly and so will their tongues. They will seldom lose an argument. They will possess splendid endurance and will-power, but their strength of purpose must be properly guided.

Their senses will be extremely acute. They can advance far in any field calling for delicate and accurate senses—work that requires a sense of perception—such as in musical criticism or creation.

Family life never appeals strongly to the "Five" person, so the children, if brought into public life, rather than surrounded by domestic influences, will be most contented. They will not take love seriously and will not be demonstrative in affections. When finally married, they will make good partners, with conditions favorable, but do not possess any abundance of "long-suffering" or fortitude in matters of the heart.

Soviet Russia now trains dogs as parachute jumpers for army service. The animals are taken aloft in a plane, placed in cylindrical boxes, with parachutes attached, and cast overboard.

Three Minor Car Crashes Holiday Accident Total

Accidents over the holiday numbered four, all of which were of minor nature, police officials reported today.

Driving his light delivery truck north on 95 street, G. H. Paige, 9338 118 avenue, collided with a taxi operated by Ronald Fawcett, 11000 125 street, at the intersection of 107 avenue, Friday evening, at 11:25 p.m. Damage to both cars was slight.

While driving his car along 95 street, W. McIntosh, 11818 78 street, was struck sideways by a car operated by Joe Costelee. The latter was pulling away from the curb at the time. Little damage was done to either car.

About to park his car in front of the Recreation bowling alleys, Dr. Walter Neiwehas had the back of his automobile damaged slightly when a vehicle operated by Herbert Beresford, 11135 122 street, crashed into him.

Paul Kulak, 9639 110A street, reported that while he and his wife were walking along 97 street near the Clover Bar road, two young boys pushing a home made wagon along the sidewalk knocked them down. Mrs. Kulak receiving a sprain in her leg. The boys got away before Kulak could get their names.

Swans Fly North

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y., April 11—A flock of more than 100 wild swans flew over Niagara Falls Friday on their way to summer grounds in Northern Canada. It was the first large flock seen here since several years ago when many were swept over the falls and killed.

Camrose Amateur Contest Stars To Appear At Capitol

Promoters Convince Reporter That Their Charges Are "The Goods"

By DICK JACKSON

"They're terrific," insisted Jim Holroyd.

"I'll say they're even good," echoed Stan Bailey.

Messrs. Bailey and Holroyd were speaking of the Camrose amateurs who are due to strut their stuff on the Capitol theatre's Monday night staging of "Amateurs on Parade."

Mr. Bailey, it may now be disclosed, runs Camrose's Bailey theatre which in turn runs off the Amateurs to find which entertainer type will run to Edmonton for a turn on the Capitol's stage and radio spot. Mr. Holroyd runs Mrs. Bailey's projection machines and also functions as the Camrose amateur Svengali.

JUST SVENGALIS

"It's colossal," agreed Showman Bailey.

"It's stupendous," enthused Showman Wilson.

"It's so gigantic, chorused the Camrose showmen, "that we have a waiting list of 800 amateurs."

"That's not even prodigious," said Showman Wilson, "amateurs are so awe-inspiringly box-office here that I've got a waiting list of over 600."

"Sure but our amateurs are stargantuanly big-time," retorted the Camrose showman. "With the amazing amateurs we have coming up here Monday is a girl trio so astounding that the only reason the Boswell Sisters still have a job is that the CBS bosses probably never heard of Camrose."

"And our boy quartette, terrific!" said Showman Bailey modestly. "Four boys and a 'geetar' so surprising they make the Mills Brothers sound like we do." (Whereupon Showmen Bailey and Holroyd joined their pipes on "Carry Me Back to Old Virginy").

"They must be good," said the awed scribe timidly.

Camrose contribution to the Capitol theatre Monday night stage program includes solos, trios, quartettes, tap dancers, mouth organists, an old time hill-billy outfit and black face comedians.

"We've had amateurs walk in eight miles to take part in the Camrose program," said Showman Bailey.

"There, that's human interest," said the worried Mr. Holroyd, "Don't forget it."

HUMAN INTEREST???

"Interest in the amateur stuff hasn't even started in the country yet," said Showman Bailey.

"There—more human interest," hinted Showman Holroyd. "Don't forget."

"We're gonna bring up three groups of amateurs to the Capitol. We have enough to come up every night for ten years," continued the second Camrosian.

Yah, sure; the Amateur path is the royal road to Hollywood, grinned Svengali Holroyd brightly, "how's that for the human interest stuff?"

"Astonishing," chorused the Showmen Wilson and Bailey exhaustingly big-time," retorted the Camrose showman. "With the amazing amateurs we have coming up here Monday is a girl trio so astounding that the only reason the Boswell Sisters still have a job is that the CBS bosses probably never heard of Camrose."

"And our boy quartette, terrific!"

STUDENTS ARE WRITING FINAL VARSITY TESTS

About 400 Expected to Receive Sheep-Skin At Convocation

The season for the gnashing of teeth and chewing of finger nails and such manifestations of grief and worry is on, for Varsity's annual final examinations begin today.

During the last few weeks the air of feverish studiousness, customary to this time of year, has pervaded the halls. The library has been doing a rushing business, working overtime, and crammed to the doors, as students anxiously sought those reference books which were assigned in October.

REGRET LOST TIME

Even the most studious and hard working are regretting past hours gone beyond recall as examinations rush upon them with startling suddenness. In the strain of "cramming" and writing, none feel secure, and everywhere about the campus the remarks these days are: "I know I'll flunk that French course. I wish I'd spent a little more time on that Geology," and so on.

To some four hundred or so students who hope to graduate, the horrible possibility of failure in some final course looms ever nightmarelsh, and here and there are those who ponder the advisability of attempting a little well-timed "tubing".

"Tubing", for the benefit of the uninitiated, is the process of going out of the way to be nice and chatty with the professors so that one's memory will be pleasantly fresh in the mind of that particular professor when he commences to mark the paper. However, since papers come to the examiner in such a manner that the name is scaled down, even the "tubing" process somewhat loses its point.

MUCH WORRY NEEDLESS

However, much of the worry indulged in at this particular time is needless, for the great majority always have done any fair degree of work find themselves eventually on the passing list. There are always the unfortunate few who do go down, but in general it is anticipated that about four hundred will walk up to retrieve a sheepskin at this year's Convocation.

The next two weeks will determine the result for better or for worse.

Political Leaders Are Assassinated

ZAGREB, Yugoslavia, April 11—Two prominent political leaders were assassinated last night for refusing to join the "Chetnitsi" a Croat nationalist volunteer organization.

THIS CURIOUS WORLD

by Clyming Ferguson

THE BEST KNOWN SPECIES IS THE SLOW LORIS, SO-CALLED BECAUSE OF ITS VERY DELIBERATE MOVEMENTS/ IN MALAY, IT IS REGARDED AS HAVING SUPERNATURAL POWERS.

The LORIS

IS ONE OF THE LEAST CIVILIZED MEMBERS OF THE MONKEY TRIBE/ IT IS THE SOLE REPRESENTATIVE IN INDIA AND THE MALAY COUNTRIES OF THE ANIMAL GROUP KNOWN AS LEMURIDAE/ AS SHOWN BY THEIR LARGE, PIERCING EYES, THEY ARE CREATURES OF THE NIGHT.

THE SLENDER LORIS (AT LEFT) IS THE SMALLER AND RARER OF THE TWO SPECIES/ ITS NAME COMES FROM ITS LONG, SLENDER BUILD/ THE NATIVES OF MALAY VALUE EVERY PART OF THE LORIS AS A CHARM. THE LARGE EYES, ESPECIALLY, ARE VALUED BY YOUNG PEOPLE, AS LOVE POTIONS.

WHEN ATTACKING BIRD OR INSECT PREY, THE LORIS MOVES AT A SNAIL'S PACE, WITH MOVEMENTS HARDLY PERCEPTIBLE/ SUDDENLY, HE RISES ON HIS HIND-LEGS, AND POUNCES ON HIS VICTIM.
